BASTION SQUARE'S SECRETS...

Witchcraft Alive and Well...

By LANI SELICK
Times Staff

There are 50 practicers of Wicca — the Witch religion — in British Columbia, according to Mark Fedoruk.

He is high priest of Victoria's only coven, started about a year ago. The 14 member coven holds its ceremonies in a room behind one of the shops in Bastion Square's Law Chambers building.

The ritual room is a deep wine color, contrasted with black. On opposite walls, a statue of Christ faces an underworld figure painted on a window. On the other walls, black mirrors oppose a picture of the Mandala and shelves of books.

The floor is carpeted. When a section of the carpet is raised, a large black and white circle painted with symbols is exposed in the centre of the dimly-lit room.

According to Fedoruk, Wicca is a nature religion. It is "flowing with nature, understanding nature's laws, not trying to be the master of nature but the vehicle of it."

MISUNDERSTOOD

Fedoruk believes Wicca is one of the most misunderstood and misrepresented religions in the world.

"The devil is the most maligned figure in the history of human religion," he says. "He's just the opposite, supposedly, of good, of God. But God is all creation, good and bad, negative and positive."

"Creation is a unity including polarities; the 'devil,' if that's how you want to think of him, is a necessary part of the unity of God's creation."

Followers of Wicca see "Baphomet" as symbol of "the system here on earth, life here on earth. He represents the unity between man and woman."

Followers of Wicca do not "consecrate" with Baphomet or worship him outside the context of his purpose in God's creation, Fedoruk said.

Are any witch religions

'Nature Religion, Not Voodoo'

oriented to an "evil devil"?

Devil-worshippers are involved with the Christian concept of Satan, not Wicca theology, he said. Devil-worshippers couldn't be considered followers of the Witch religion, whatever they call themselves.

FOUR HOLIDAYS

About Wicca in general: Fedoruk said most followers celebrate four major holidays — "Sabbats" — two solstices and two equinoxes, and celebrate seasonal change — All Hallow's Eve Oct. 31, Candlemas Feb. 2, Beltane April 30 and Lammas Aug. 1.

The witchy religion is formally organized around a coven, which has 13 members, Fedoruk explained that the number and structure of the coven is symbolic. Within the group, 12 persons stand for the 12 astrological signs. There is one extra person to stand for either the mother or father principle in life.

The Victoria coven has two extra members because the male and female principles are seen as equal in importance, so both are represented, he said.

The magic circle on the floor is part of all coven rituals. If a ritual occurs outdoors, a circle is drawn on the ground.

The circle in the ritual room is eight feet in diameter. Fedoruk said the circle actually extends to nine feet, but the ninth is invisible, except to the spiritually enlightened.

The magic circle is a diagram of patterns in life. Progression towards the centre of the circle charts the loss of earthly desires and the gaining of higher consciousness — and progression toward higher consciousness leads to an understanding of magic.

The word magic has much meaning for Wicca followers, but doesn't refer either to casting spells or pulling rabbits out of hats.

According to Fedoruk, "magic is using more than 5 per cent of your mind, becoming very sensitive, and understanding nature."

More Security With FALSE TEETH At Any Time

Don't be afraid your false teeth will come loose or drop at the wrong time. For more security and comfort, opt for FASTEETH Denture Adhesive Feeder. Non-acid FASTEETH gives dentures a longer, firmer, sturdier hold. Makes eating easier. No gummy, pasty taste. Dentures that fit are essential to health. See your dentist regularly. Get easy-to-use FASTEETH.

Area Building Triples

Construction activity reached a value of $15.4 million last year in the unorganized areas of the Capital Regional District.

This was the value of permits issued by the district's building department in View Royal, Langford, Colwood, Metchosin, Sooke, Jordan River, Port Renfrew, the Highlands and the Gulf Islands.

The total included 598 houses.

A direct comparison with 1970 is not possible because of changes, but the permit value that year for Langford, Colwood and Metchosin was $4.9 million.

The bulk of the $15.4 million construction activity in the unorganized areas last year was in Langford and Colwood, said a building department official.

Teacher Wage Hike 'Rejected'

The 6.5 per cent wage increase limit for teachers in British Columbia is inappropriate, Opposition Leader Dave Barrett said today.

Barrett said the government "pulled the figure out of the air" in setting the limit for teachers. His views came during a press conference in Victoria this morning.

Barrett said Education Minister Donald Brocks is "threatening the quality of education" in the province by a "foolish and somewhat benign" approach toward school financing and teachers salaries.

Muskie Favorite For Democrats

By GRAHAM LOVELL

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — Sen. Ted Edmund Muskie, of Maine, seems certain of a run-away victory in New Hampshire's Democratic party primary election next March—the first electoral step in the punishing, expensive and possibly fruitless campaign to unseat President Nixon later this year.

Few political analysts at present expect Nixon to be defeated in November—he will announce his almost-certain election plans in about 10 days' time—but most agree that Muskie will be "the man to beat."

Muskie formally entered the presidential race Tuesday night with a 10-minute television address in which he appealed for a chance to make the United States "a nation of high moral leadership and high purpose."

His declaration was no surprise—he had been following the campaign route for the last year, building up campaign staff and collecting financial and physical support. But the outcome in New Hampshire March 7, would be crucial to his chances when the Democrats nominate their candidate in Miami in July.

McGOVERN TOUGH

He is from a neighboring New England state, and seems assured of an easy triumph over other Democratic party challengers. At present, there are likely to be at least three others, and one of them—fellow Senator George McGovern—promised a tough fight.

The New Hampshire primary is the first of 24 state elections.

McGovern, who tried to assume the mantle of the late Senator Robert Kennedy in 1968 and win the Democratic nomination as a "peace candidate" for the presidency, registered for the New Hampshire primary Tuesday and promised "I am not going to concede this state or any state (to Muskie)."

Others competing for the state's Democratic vote include Indiana Senator Vance Hartke and Los Angeles Mayor Sam Yorty.

TRY IT AS A SAUCE.

GUNS COME OFF COPTERS

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Army is taking the guns off all its red cross-marked medical evacuation helicopters in Vietnam, painting most of them white and putting out millions of leaflets and posters appealing to the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese not to shoot at them.

The new test program aimed at reducing aircraft losses and casualties was begun Oct. 1. The idea of painting the helicopters white was to make it easier for the Viet Cong to recognize them as "medical" and not combat helicopters.

The leaflets stress the mercy mission of the medical helicopters, that they are unarmed and that they will pick up both friend and foe.

The messages also urge the Viet Cong not to fire on olive drab helicopters marked with red crosses.

Pollution 'Army' Wages Second Battle

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — "General" Mollie Lovinger formed an army complete with colonel, majors, captains and lieutenants and blitzed phosphate detergents out of Dade County. Now the "Pollution Revolution" is on the march for more and better sewage treatment plants.

"We can celebrate, but we aren't finished yet," said the 55-year-old woman whose brigade of retirees was responsible for an ordinance that made the sale of phosphate

family

WENDY DEY - EDITOR

detergents illegal as of New Year's Day.

"We're getting into sewage treatment plants now, and we also want to look at the recycling thing," she said. "There's lots to do, and we are the people with the time to do it."

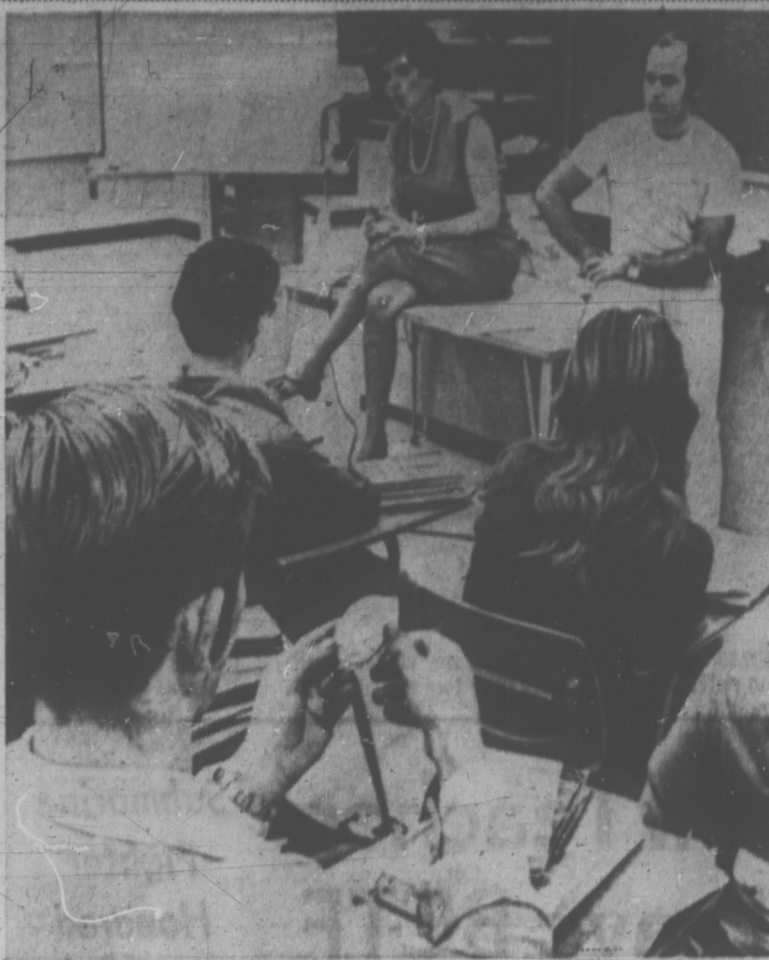

Mrs. Lovinger said the group is determined to force cities in Dade County to build more effective plants and using the same tactics of petitions and public forums will concentrate on getting federal funds to pay for the plants.

Mrs. Lovinger and her husband live at Point East, a development of 1,260 condominium apartments inhabited by about 2,000 retirees. It was after Mrs. Lovinger wrote an article in the development newsletter about the pollution danger to South Florida waters that the retirees decided to move against phosphate detergents.

They formed an army and named Mrs. Lovinger general. After an anti-phosphate ordinance was written, the "Pollution Revolution" army spent two months standing at street corners, super markets and other public places collecting 10,000 signatures supporting it.

Then the army asked for and got a hearing before the commission. The result was the adoption of an ordinance outlawing phosphate detergents Jan. 1, 1972.

Sex education lecture for students in Grades 11 and 12

Course Gives Students Healthy View

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Senior high school students here have a chance to examine things such as condoms for birth control pills during studies of family planning.

Mary Burton, a young teacher who pioneered the family-planning course which went into official operation last April, says allowing students to view the condoms helps to illustrate the numerous products on the market.

Although London secondary schools began the program in 1971, Miss Burton has been teaching it at her school for close to five years.

"I was a rabble rouser, I guess, and I probably could have lost my job," she said in an interview. "But when the London board decided way back about 1964 to investigate the chance of introducing such a course, I was asked to sit on the curriculum committee."

David Alpaugh, who also teaches the new course to Grade 11 and 12 students, said: "My whole reason is to teach students their responsibility of their sexuality and to relate maturely to one another."

"I don't even like the term sex education because it sensationalized this whole area that really coincides with the entire program which starts in kindergarten."

The course includes sections on marriage, menstruation, medical terminology and general relations between male and female.

The titling about words such as vagina, erection and scrotum soon ends when the novelty of using the "forbidden" language wears off.

"It's passed on from generation to generation that sex talk is dirty, and when you start breaking down those traditions, you start to have a healthier outlook on sexuality," said Mr. Alpaugh.

Male and female students attend classes together in the family-planning course and teachers say there have been no complaints from parents, many of whom were relieved the school system was handling the subject in co-operation with the London Academy of Medicine.

91st Birthday Celebrated

On Thursday Mrs. Frank Gibbs celebrates what she has aptly named "a little Christmas". It's her 91st birthday. She has lived in Victoria almost 70 years. She married and raised a family here. In 1909 when "my ticker started acting up," a move was made to Sandringham Private Hospital where, she says, "I'm surrounded by friendship and everyone takes good care of me."

Frail of body, but with a quick wit and a keen mind, Mrs. Gibbs keeps up her interest in every day happenings as well as treasuring many memories of days that are gone. Born in 1881 in Toronto, one of 14 children in the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Keates ("only eight of us lived"), Margaret quite early showed a remarkable ability for sewing.

Born With Needle, Thread

"Indeed, my mother used to say I was born with a needle and thread in my hand."

That ability brought her first prize in a school sewing contest at the age of 8.

In her late teens she went to work in the Toronto store of the T. Eaton Company. And it was there, when she was 21, that a former employee of the store, by then settled in Victoria, persuaded her to "head west."

"She was back in Toronto looking for someone to assist in establishing a dressmaking department in the David Spencer store in Victoria," Margaret Gibbs remembers.

"I'd always had a hankering to see the Pacific Coast. So, I said I'd come out and try it for a year."

A quiet look of pleasure touched her bright eyes as she added: "When the boat came in to the old Hudson's Bay dock on Wharf Street on May 4, 1902, I took one look at the little town and I knew I'd come home."

Spencer's dressmaking department didn't flourish so it wasn't long before this enterprising young woman was in business for herself "in a shop in the old Adams block."

There she was soon designing gowns and sewing for some of the elite homes in the city. There, too, she was insisting

elizabeth

that "boned bodices were not necessary when boned corsets were worn."

And, much to the disbelief of her clientele, she was also predicting that the day would come when women would not wear boned corsets. In fact, she told them, they would not wear corsets at all.

It was in those years that Margaret Keates met her future husband, Frank Gibbs, member of a family that went back in Victoria's history to the 1860s. He was on the staff of Brackman-Ker Milling Company.

They were married on May 4, 1910, exactly eight years after the bride set foot in Victoria.

Her Family Came First

From then on husband, family (two sons and two daughters) and home took precedence. "I closed the store and while I did lots of sewing after that, it was all for them."

Forty years ago, Frank Gibbs died. One son "Went" as a child and the second son died in 1968 "a year before I gave up the house and moved into Sandringham."

A daughter, Frances Dawson, lives in Victoria, the other, Sheila Coombs, in Smith Falls, Ontario. There are nine grandchildren and eight "great-grandchildren."

You can see then, that Margaret Gibbs' idea that tomorrow is "a little Christmas", is no idle saying for her.

There will be a party, a birthday cake, and through letters, cards, gifts, or in person, all her family will be there.

LONDON (Reuter) — A leading British researcher on test-tube babies was reported Tuesday as saying he is ready to go ahead with implanting a human embryo in a womb— all he needs is a suitable mother.

Dr. Douglas Revis, who has

"We have made a lot of progress but we cannot guarantee that this will be a success the very first time," he is quoted by The Guardian as saying.

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — The White House instructed U.S. government agencies to take a harder line in public and private with India during last month's India-Pakistan war and questioned whether the United States would be able to supply Pakistan with arms through third countries, the Washington Post says.

Details of top-level White House discussions were disclosed in the newspaper today by syndicated columnist Jack Anderson, who, The Post says, made available the full text of three highly-classified documents describing meetings of the National Security Council's Washington Special Action Group.

One of the documents released by Anderson is printed in full on Page 14.

Investigations are under way by the government into the source of the leak. Their appearance now could compare with the Pentagon Papers scandal, the top secret document which traced and analysed U.S. involvement in the Vietnam war.

No Hydro Bid On Pipeline

British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority is not listed among the five companies bidding for the right to build a natural gas pipeline to Vancouver Island.

Public Utilities Commission chairman Dr. J. F. K. English today named five companies — four in Vancouver and one in Nanaimo — which have been invited to present submissions before the PUC at hearings to be held later this year.

One of this group, Georgia Gulf Transmission Ltd. of Vancouver, is not listed at the provincial companies office as a registered company in B.C.

TWO RESIGN

A second company bidding, Malaspina Gas Pipeline Ltd. of Vancouver, was rocked by the resignation of two of its three directors. Resigning are former Victoria mayor R. B. Wilson and Allan McGavin of Vancouver.

Hydro chairman Dr. Gordon Shrum today refused to say why Hydro did not appear among the companies named by English. The PUC chairman said Hydro did not make a formal application for the right to go before the commission's hearings.

English said Hydro had communicated with the PUC but had not given information "in the same terms of reference" as the other companies.

In addition to Georgia Gulf Transmission, English named the following companies seeking the right to build the pipeline: Centennial Natural Gas Pipeline Ltd. of Vancouver, Island Transmission Company Ltd. of Nanaimo, Malaspina, and Pacific Northern Gas Ltd., also of Vancouver.

Thursday at 9:30 a.m. at the Hotel Georgia in Vancouver the PUC will convene a pre-hearing conference to set dates for submission of technical data necessary for the full hearings later on.

One confusing aspect of the situation is that the PUC has invited Hydro to be at the conference Tuesday as an "interested party," as English put it.

Shrum confirmed Hydro will attend the conference, but he refused to shed any light on why the crown corporation was not named in the group English announced today.

"I can't give you any more information other than to say we will be at the conference tomorrow," Shrum said.

Disclosure that Georgia Gulf Transmission is not a registered company did not upset English.

"At this point we're not concerned whether they are registered or not, because this will come out at the hearing," he said.

PIPELINE CASE

Further complicating events surrounding the pipeline case is the resignation of Malaspina Pipeline directors Wilson and McGavin.

Their resignation was disclosed Tuesday. Malaspina, put together this year by Premier Bennett's former executive assistant Daniel Ekman, now is left with only Vancouver investment dealer Dick Whittall as a director.

Wilson and McGavin, a bakery owner, told the Times today their resignations had nothing to do with public criticism of Malaspina's bid which centred around Ekman's close relationship with the premier.

Wilson said he resigned three weeks ago, as did McGavin, because revised terms of reference for application "announced" late this fall by Bennett created a "whole new ball game."

Wilson was referring to a decision Bennett made which allowed non-Canadian-owned companies to seek permission to build the pipeline. Last spring Bennett said submissions would have to come from only Canadian-owned companies and specifically excluded Westcoast Transmission Ltd. from bidding.

U.S. CONTROL

Westcoast is an American controlled company. Its subsidiary Pacific-Northern Gas is one of the firms named by English.

"Originally the government's intention was not to allow Westcoast Transmission to bid on it to keep all the bids from Canadian companies. I gather that now any-

275 Postmen Suspended; 1,000 Given Reprimands

TWO FOR TEA, just you and me, is the word from this chihuahua pup to his friend the mutt, but there's no information on who did the pouring. Owner of the puppy, Mrs. A. S. Bloomfield of Winniipeg, is trying to find a new home for the little guy and had hopes that the picture would cause more action than a storm in a teacup. In the meantime it's two for tea.

Workers Incited Pre-Yule Strike

Times News Services

OTTAWA — The post office suspended 275 letter carriers today for their part in an illegal walk-out last November.

Twenty-five of the men were handed five-day suspensions to take effect immediately and the other 250 got one-day suspensions to be spread over the next three weeks.

About another 1,000 men were sent letters of reprimand.

The men staged the illegal walkout for several weeks in November to protest the post office's hiring of part-time workers during the Christmas season.

Postmaster-General Jean-Pierre Cote told members of Parliament at that time that his department would take action against the illegal walkout and after a "thorough investigation" the suspensions and letters of reprimand were announced.

'INTERNAL' DECISION

The post office department spokesman said the decision was "an internal one" made by the department. The problem was an administrative one concerning employees who had disobeyed, he said.

The Letter Carriers Union to which the men belong said today it had no statement to make concerning the post-office's measures. However, most of the executive of the union said the day in meetings as it was expected they would make a statement later in the day or Thursday.

IN THREE AREAS

The government's punitive action concerned letter carriers in three main areas — Hamilton and St. Catharines, Saint John, N.B., and Halifax.

All but 63 men in the Hamilton area were suspended for either five days or one day, the spokesman said.

In the Atlantic region, three men were suspended for five days in Halifax and three for the same time in Saint John.

These men were considered responsible for "inciting" the men to walkout illegally, the post office spokesman said.

Mujibur To Be Free Saturday

KARACHI, West Pakistan (Reuter) — Sheikh Mujibur Rahman, the detained East Pakistan leader who has been named president of Bangladesh, now is expected to be given his freedom Saturday.

"This is the latest estimate available as leading figures in the sheik's outlawed Awami League already have begun converging on Rawalpindi for his release."

President Zulfikar Ali Bhutto of Pakistan announced Monday that he was giving Mujib his liberty unconditionally, but did not say exactly when.

Mujib, 51, idol of East Pakistan, was held for more than nine months in a West Pakistan prison and recently was transferred to house arrest.

He is supposed to have one more round of talks with Bhutto before he regains his freedom.

Bhutto is at present in Larkana, his hometown in Sindh province where he is celebrating his 44th birthday today.

7 LIVES FOR ONE

TORONTO (CP) — Last summer Wallace Connolly spared the life of his mongrel dog, Jackie, even though a veterinarian suggested that the injured pet be destroyed.

Early Tuesday, Jackie repaid the favor seven times over, barking to wake up Mr. and Mrs. Connolly and their five children as fire destroyed their Scarborough home.

Jackie, a seven-year-old brown and black part terrier, was mauled by a big dog last summer and a veterinarian had little hope he would recover.

But Mr. Connolly took the dog to another vet who put him in an animal hospital until he recovered.

Terror In The Sky

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "All of a sudden the tail went up and it seemed like we were on a roller coaster," a passenger recalled in describing the effect that clear air turbulence had on a National Airlines jumbo jet with 331 persons aboard.

Twenty-five persons were injured, three severely, when the plane encountered the mysterious weather phenomenon Tuesday at an altitude of 31,000 feet over Texas.

"Everything went flying," a passenger said. "People's shoes were torn off their feet. Meals were being served and there was food going everywhere."

Another said: "I felt my head hit the ceiling. Then my whole body was pressed against it. I looked down and could see the floor coming up."

Scientists know little about the air turbulence that slammed the plane's tail. It occurs in generally clear weather between 20,000 and 35,000 feet and can't be detected even by radar.

The Boeing 747 jetliner was three hours out of Miami on a five-hour nonstop flight to Los Angeles.

LASTED ONLY SECONDS

"I think the whole thing lasted about three seconds," said a stewardess, Yvonne Mariett, 20, of Miami.

The unexpected jolt was felt most by those at the rear of the plane. Mariett said she "looked down the aisle and saw people falling out of their seats." The airline said no one with a fastened seat-belt was hurt.

"People were screaming, kids were crying and some were panicking," said one of the passengers, Navy Medical Corpsman Calvin Shirley, 22, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla. He and two doctors aboard helped the injured as the plane continued to Los Angeles.

The injured were taken to three hospitals.

A National spokesman said the only apparent damage to the plane was dents and holes in interior walls from luncheon trays and light baggage. Federal Aviation Administration inspectors pronounced the plane structurally sound, and it returned to Miami later in the day.

Nixon Gives Go-Ahead To Build Space Shuttle

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) — President Nixon today authorized the development of a $5.5 billion space shuttle vehicle to carry U.S. manned and unmanned civilian and military payloads between earth and orbiting space laboratories.

Nixon made the decision at a meeting at the western White House with National Aeronautics and Space Administration director James Fletcher and his deputy, George Low.

The manned spacecraft centre in Houston has been designated the lead centre with program management responsibility, over-all engineering and systems integration and performance requirements for the shuttle.

The system is expected to take six years to develop. It should be operational by the end of this decade.

NASA has been pushing for this program

with the end in sight this year of the Apollo moon manned missions.

The shuttle will consist of a booster and an orbiter. It will take off like a rocket, fly in orbit like a space ship and land like an airplane.

Fletcher demonstrated a model of the shuttle to Nixon during a picture-taking session in his office overlooking the Pacific ocean.

Fletcher explained that the space ship will have a pilot, co-pilot and would be capable of carrying two passengers.

The space shuttle will be the first reusable space vehicle, Fletcher explained to Nixon.

Nixon and Fletcher made the shuttle announcement while the president was awaiting the arrival of Japan's prime minister, Eisaku Sato, for meetings Thursday and Friday.

KAISER CHIEFS 'BENEFIT' FROM SHARE SELL-OFF

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Top officers and directors of Kaiser Steel and its parent, Kaiser Industries Inc., secretly bought stock in a Canadian subsidiary that was not available to United States investors, The Wall Street Journal reports.

The transaction, which company officials claimed was legal, was intended as an "executive benefit," the paper says.

The Journal said the Kaiser insiders later sold a large portion of stock in Kaiser Resources Ltd., the Canadian subsidiary, at a profit. Shortly afterwards, the stock began a precipitous decline as the Canadian company disclosed that its huge coal-mine venture had run into formidable problems, the newspaper says.

Kaiser officials said they had no knowledge of the company's problems when they sold the stock. The Journal reports.

The initial purchase, involving 63,000 shares costing some $750,000, was made through a Canadian investment company set up to evade the ban on U.S. sale of the Canadian securities, the paper says.

Girl Survives Peru Jungle Air Crash

LIMA (AP) — A 17-year-old girl survived an airliner crash in the Peruvian jungle on Christmas Eve, wandered for days in the tropical rain forest, swam across flooded areas and waded through swamps, then built a raft that carried her to a woodcutters' camp.

Juliane Koepcke, the daughter of two noted German-born ornithologists, was brought to the jungle colony of Tour-navista Tuesday by two woodcutters who found her semi-conscious, floating down the Pachitea River aboard the log and vine raft. From there she was flown to a U.S. missionary centre at Pucallpa, 300 miles northeast of Lima, and reunited with her father.

Her mother is missing in the crash.

Later today the plane's owners said the plane's wreckage had been located in a jungle area following directions given by the girl.

The girl was reported suffering from hunger, exhaustion, cuts and bruises, but she seemed to be in fair shape.

ARE BIRD EXPERTS

Juliane's father, Dr. Hans Koepcke, and her mother had lived in Peru for more than 20 years and were the leading authorities on Peruvian birds. The girl graduated from high school a few days before Christmas, and she and her mother took the plane Christmas Eve to join Dr. Koepcke at Pucallpa.

Amanda de Pina, a nurse at a medical post in Tournavista, said Juliane remembered looking out the window and seeing an engine afire, then the airliner lurched and she suddenly found herself flying through the air.

The next thing the girl remembered, the nurse said, was waking up amid the wreckage, still strapped to her seat and covered by the bodies of three or four other passengers.

The terrified girl ran from the scene, stopping only to pick up a Christmas cake which she had been bringing to her father.

The cake lasted three days. After that Juliane ate nothing, the nurse said.

Lawyer Rejects QC Appointment

Vancouver lawyer Kenneth E. Meredith Tuesday rejected his appointment as a Queen's Counsel, charging the award often is given for political reasons.

Meredith was one of 23 persons receiving the award this year. Among them was Vancouver mayor Tom Campbell whose appointment surprised and displeased some members of the legal profession.

Meredith did not refer to specific cases in his reasons for rejecting the award.

Campbell has a law degree but has never practised. Attorney-General Leslie Peterson said today he was not disappointed to hear of Meredith's decision.

"That's his prerogative," Peterson said, "you know lawyers I think are probably the most independent-minded people in any profession; and if you had them all agreeing on something I think I'd be a little worried."

Peterson said QCs are given for both public service and legal reasons to men who "have made their mark" in these areas. He said he has no plans to discontinue the practice.

Parks Lauded For Barring Snowmobiles

One of Canada's leading ecologists today commended the B.C. parks branch for resisting pressure to allow snowmobiles and other off-road vehicles in provincial parks.

Dr. Ian McTaggart-Cowan of the University of British Columbia, was commenting on a statement made Tuesday by Lloyd Brooks, deputy minister of conservation and recreation, that his department has refused requests to lift the ban.

Snowmobiles are having a devastating effect on wildlife — are inadvertently responsible for eliminating thousands of small mammals, as well as the larger ones, he said.

"I'm not against snowmobiles and I think it's a healthy form of recreation," he said. "But there is a time and place for them. They should be kept out of parks."

ANIMALS DIE

McTaggart-Cowan said recent studies showed that snowmobiles destroy small mammals living under the snow, just above ground level, where the temperature is slightly above freezing.

The pressure of the vehicles charging through the snow closes up their subterranean homes and tunnels and the animals die.

Small animals are vital food to larger animals and birds. He said larger animals also suffer if they are harassed in any way.

"Deer and moose live on the edge of survival during winter months, especially if the snowfall has been heavy," he explained.

The animals' loss of energy from being chased by a snowmobile might make the difference between life and death.

PEACE, QUIET

McTaggart-Cowan also pointed out that parks were established to allow people to enjoy peace and quiet and for the protection of wildlife.

He noted that all classes of provincial parks only represent about 2 1/2 per cent of the land area of the province.

"There is plenty of room and space for all types of off-road vehicles," he said. "There is no need for them to invade provincial parks."

Brooks said clubs have pressured the parks branch to open certain sections of parks for snowmobiles, but there was strong opposition to such a policy by skiers and people in general.

"Cross-country skiing is becoming popular," he said. "Snowmobiles and skiing are not compatible."

"There are also many people who want provincial parks kept as places of peace and quiet — where wildlife can live without being molested," he said.

Impressive Blood Donor Showing

Blood donors in Nanaimo and Vancouver made an impressive showing Tuesday and a critical shortage in the Red Cross blood bank is well on the way to being overcome, a spokesman said today.

He added that a renewed supply is likely already on the way to Victoria's two major hospitals. Both St. Joseph's and Royal Jubilee Hospital reported Tuesday that some kinds of surgery have had to be curtailed or delayed because of the blood shortage.

Almost 1,700 donors turned out in Nanaimo and Vancouver in the past two days to help meet the shortage of 1,000 pints in the Red Cross bank which supplies hospitals throughout the province.

The Red Cross usually collects 2,000 pints a week from clinics throughout the province but has said it must have 3,000 this week to make up the poor showing over the Christmas-New Year holiday.

As long as the donor turnout doesn't let down through the rest of the week reserves will be re-established, said the spokesman.

The next clinic in the vicinity of Victoria is at Sanson Hall, Sidney, Thursday from 3 to 5:30 p.m. and 6:30 to 8:30 p.m.

Sewer Study Grant Okayed

A federal government grant of $14,040 to the Capital Regional District for a sewer study has been approved, chairman Hugh Curtis said today.

The study, which will cost $21,822, will take place in the four core municipalities and will examine ground water infiltration of the main trunk sewer systems. It will likely get under way within five weeks and will be primarily directed by the municipal engineers.

This is the second regional district project approved under Ottawa's federal works incentive program. The first was $22,172 for parks trail development, with the federal government contributing a similar $14,040. The trail work will be started early in March.

Nine Hired For Sidney Park Work

An extensive scheme for park improvement began in Sidney this week with the hiring of nine extra public works employees under the federal local initiative program.

A government grant of $15,912 will enable the municipality to complete a four-month beautification plan organized by Ald. Wilkie Gardner.

Most of the work will be done by manual labor and involves construction of steps at beach accesses, clearing of brush, grass seeding and construction of benches.

Search Fails to Find Two Missing Boaters

An RCMP search today again revealed no sign of two Victoria men who have been missing since their converted rowboat was found washed ashore at Valdez Island Monday.

The body of the boat's third occupant when the party left Valdez at 4:30 p.m. Sunday to head for Thetis Island, three miles away, was discovered washed ashore near the boat at Shingle Point on the island.

Ganges coroner Miles Acheson held an inquiry into the death of Risa Greene, 16, of Vancouver, Tuesday.

Death, he said, was due to exposure in the water. He said the girl's clothes may have acted like a balloon, keeping her afloat.

Acheson said it is believed the girl and her two companions tried to turn back to Valdez but the boat capsized.

He described the boat as being a 12-foot rowboat, adapted to carry a seven-foot sail.

Winds, Acheson added, were about 25 knots at the time of the mishap.

Still missing are John Botterell, 26, of 533 Transit, and Mark Danes, 23, of 1760 Gonzales.

They and the girl were intending to visit Adam Hunter on Thetis when they set out from Valdez. It was Hunter who found the body and boat on the beach and went back to Thetis to contact the police.

Another Ultimatum Given In Family Allowance Split

QUEBEC (CP) — Unless the federal government changes its stand on family allowance policy, Quebecers may stop accepting the federal system as it exists, Claude Castonguay, social affairs minister, warned Tuesday.

He told a news conference talks with the federal government on provincial control of family allowances have been deadlocked since November when Premier Robert Bourassa said the two governments were close to agreement on a formula for provincial control.

Mr. Castonguay said Ottawa's insistence on linking the negotiations to discussions on adult-training programs and manpower centres areas Quebec also wants to control have stalled the talks.

He hinted he might resign his post if Ottawa did not recognize provincial control of family allowances.

Mr. Castonguay also told the news conference his department would introduce legislation requiring municipalities to fluoridate their water supplies in the national assembly this year.

QUEBEC WOULD DECIDE

Under the province's proposal, Quebec would decide who receives how much for family allowances but the job of setting minimum national standards and issuing the cheques would fall to the federal government.

"I don't see what other gesture is left for us to make without really giving up the essentials of the role the Quebec government must play in the field of income security," Mr. Castonguay said.

If the federal stand does not change, he said, the question arises whether the population wants to maintain a system that produces "the very negative results that have been shown several times."

The outcome of the family allowance negotiations will "necessarily become one of the elements on which the population bases its choice or its opinions about the maintenance of the status quo."

Mr. Castonguay said he feels it is "urgent" to draw up a new division of powers between the two levels of government.

the weather

An active storm passed the weather ship during the night and is headed for the B.C. coast. It will pound the north coast with gales and rain. Milder air is spreading across the province ahead of this system. Rain is expected with it south coastal areas late today and it will spread snow through the interior. Forty degree temperatures are expected along the coast today while highs in the interior will climb to near 30.

An onshore flow of cool Pacific air developing in the wake of the storm will result in continued cloudy weather throughout B.C. tonight and Thursday.

Priest Turns to Playboy To Get His Recruits

PIKESVILLE, Md. — A priest who placed a recruiting advertisement for his Catholic order in Playboy magazine says the magazine offered him "the most mileage for the dollar."

"This was not meant to be controversial," said Father Joseph Lupo, director of vocations for the Order of the Holy Trinity, "it was meant to reach the kids I wanted to reach."

The advertisement in the most recent issue, which cost $9,000, pictured two college men. The text reads — in part — "If you have love to give and the courage to offer it, you are already a Trinitarian — come join your brothers."

Father Lupo said Tuesday, almost a month after the advertisement appeared, "The results have been almost fantastic, overwhelming."

GAINESVILLE, Fla. — "A bedridden millionaire who says that 'you can't take it with you' has so far given away $900,000. 'Some of my friends thought they could take it with them,' says Henry Beck, 69, a victim of emphysema. 'I know differently. I made money from people, so why not give it back?' Beck accumulated his fortune through real estate."

LOTTERY WINNERS Gertrude Maheu with $200,000 cheque and Edgar Rajotte with $100,000.

MONTREAL — A middle-aged dressmaker, laid off her job in November, has won the $300,000 grand prize in Quebec's quarterly lottery scheme. Mrs. Gertrude Maheu, winner of the Super-Lofo held every three months, said: "I've never won anything in my life. Don't ask me what I'm going to do with the money because I haven't yet decided. But one thing's certain — life'll be a bit different now."

When Mrs. Maheu, separated from her husband, was working, she got up at 6 a.m. and always had to worry about the rent and household bills. "Just say times were always hard for me — very hard."

Second prize, worth $100,000, was won by Edgar Rajotte.

DETROIT — Former teamsters' union president James Hoffa plans to conduct a countrywide campaign for prison reform as well as a personal battle to clear himself of the charges that led to his imprisonment.

"I've had a long, rocky road the last 50 months... a road that's undeniably prejudiced against those of us in the labor movement," Hoffa told a jovial gathering of his old labor colleagues Tuesday.

LONDON — The first woman justice to preside at the Central Criminal Court in the Old Bailey took her seat Tuesday. Rose Heilbrun, 57, referred to throughout the proceedings as My Lady, issued a bench warrant for the arrest of a youth who did not appear on the robbery charge.

COPENHAGEN — King Frederik, in hospital with heart trouble and influenza, had a fairly quiet night, but his general condition has not significantly changed; a medical bulletin said today. In a bulletin Tuesday night, his doctors said the king's general condition was "slightly weakened."

MONTREAL — Yves Geoffroy, convicted wife-slayer missing from a prison here since his Christmas Eve wedding, has written a letter to prison officials claiming he is innocent of the 1969 murder for which he was sentenced to a life term. Geoffroy, given a three-day pass Christmas Eve and married that day to Carmen Parent just outside the walls of St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary, says in the letter: "I'm not guilty and I want to take advantage of the few years of youth I have left." Police believe Geoffroy is now in Mexico.

ALMONTE, Ont. — The phantom barber has struck again. Taffey Lee, 21, was forced into a car Monday, driven to a secluded lane, ordered out of the car and his abductor sheared her shoulder-length locks.

Miss Lee was left stranded in the lane about a mile north of this town, 35 miles southwest of Ottawa, and had to walk back to town. There was a similar incident at nearby Pakenham, Ont., in November and police suspect that the bearded barber was the same man in both cases.

Missing Millions Lead to Charges

PHILADELPHIA — Arrest warrants were issued Tuesday for an investment banker, a retired general and the former third highest executive of the Penn Central Railroad on charges they diverted $21 million of the ailing company's funds to build their own fortunes.

When two of those charged in the warrants became uneasy with the millions of dollars in losses suffered by the company — they allegedly bought controlling interest in it with the diverted funds, charged district attorney Arlen Specter.

Specter said the conspiracy contributed directly to the collapse of the Penn Central.

According to the arrest warrants, the case involved:

- Diversion of $21 million in Penn Central funds for the illegal purchase of a charter airline.
- Junkets to posh resorts on the French Riviera with attractive young women, procured and paid for by the general to influence the business judgment of the other two men.

- Use of $85 million in Penn Central investment funds to manipulate the value of a stock, on which the alleged conspirators made money and the Penn Central lost millions.

The arrest warrants were issued for David Bevan, Gladwynne, Pa., former chairman of the Penn Central's finance committee; Charles Hodge, Boca Raton, Fla., former chairman of the investment banking firm of F. I. Dupont Gloré Forgan, advisers to the line; and Brig. Gen. (Ret.) Olbert Lassiter, Beverly Hills, Calif., former president of Executive Jet Aviation, Columbus, Ohio.

The three were charged with conspiracy to cheat and defraud the railroad and fraudulent conversion of railroad funds. The charge still must be presented to the grand jury.

Refugees Going Home

Times News Services

COMILLA — Burdened with their bundles and small children, their blackened cooking pots and oil lamps and battered umbrellas, the refugees of Bangladesh are coming home.

They come in trucks and buses, in long processions of bicycle-rickshaws. At first, after the surrender of the Pakistani army last month, only the venturesome crossed from India to homes close to the border.

Now the trickle has become a stream. The Bangladesh government hopes to have all 10 million refugees home by April, in time to plant next season's rice.

But it is evident that the goal of clearing all the refugees out of India in the next two months will be nearly impossible to meet.

SEND-OFF

At the Boyra camp, five miles from the border, 100 families were moved out Saturday by UN trucks. First, they were summoned to a clearing in the dust-choked camp of 15,000 persons and presented with supplies intended to last them for two weeks. Calling the event "send-off day," the camp commandant, Mahindra Kumar Dash, presented the head of each family with a large tin pot wrapped in newspaper.

Inside was a smaller pot, two cups, a plate and a ladle. Each departing refugee was issued nine pounds of rice, three pounds of grain, charcoal, some soy bean oil, a piece of chocolate, a bar of soap and four rupees (about 47 cents).

Making a feeble effort at a "ceremony," camp officials crowded the refugees in front of an orange-colored tarpaulin beneath which Das stood. A young man with a microphone tried whipping up some enthusiasm with shouts of "Jai Bangla" (victory to Bengal), but got only feeble responses.

ROARED BACK

But when he tried "long live Sheikh Mujib," both in Bengali and in English — for the benefit of visiting Western newsmen — the crowd roared back in approval.

Sheikh Mujibur Rahman, who is expected to be released anytime now in West Pakistan, is the leader of Bangladesh's Awami League party and for now the rallying point of the country's shaky political base.

Those who received the handouts seemed to consider them impressive. Indian and Bangladesh officials have been telling the refugees for over a week that they will continue to get similar assistance once they return to their homeland.

"But they are all afraid," said Das. "They're worried about their ration in Bangladesh." Rice paddies are now lying fallow and the next crop will not be in for six months.

APPALLING

Also, despite the appalling conditions in the camps, the refugees have received security from Indian authorities and such benefits as comparatively advanced medical treatment. In Bangladesh, a land of 75 million people, there are 700 hospital beds, according to an informed source.

Although they will not say so publicly, Indian officials are known to be concerned that large numbers of the refugees — perhaps three million of them — will not leave India and will simply slip out of the camps and meld into the villages of India's West Bengal state.

Meanwhile, the Indians are working hard at creating the impression that vast numbers have already returned voluntarily. Col. P. N. Luthra, in charge of the nationwide rehabilitation program, claimed in Calcutta that as of Friday night, 500,000 persons had returned.

EXAGGERATED

But conversations with border authorities, both in India and Bangladesh, make clear that this figure is grossly exaggerated. These authorities also indicated that no accurate records were being kept. Luthra himself conceded, "Any operation of this size cannot be very well organized."

At the Petrapol checkpoint, about 50 yards inside India from Benapol, an Indian border police officer sat at a table in an open-faced hut in the shade of a towering peepul tree and watched travellers crossing the frontier in both directions. "We don't keep records," he said. "Most of these people are just visiting their fatherland to see how things are. You might say they are tourists. At any rate, most of them are not staying."

He guessed that within the last eight days as many as 30,000 persons had crossed into Bangladesh at his checkpoint, but that just as many had crossed back out.

Building a Big Mistake?

In his latest comments on the subject, President Nixon repeated an earlier declaration with that slight cumulative change of emphasis which over the past two years has brought his Vietnam policy right around the circle, from "we'll stay until our objective is achieved," down to "we'll leave as soon as there is some indication that the South Vietnamese will have a reasonable chance to keep their non-Communist independence and U.S. prisoners have been returned."

In essence, that is a descent from insistence on victory to a willingness to go home as soon as the enemy will let him. Apart from being logical, in the circumstances, it is also the wish of a very large portion of the American public.

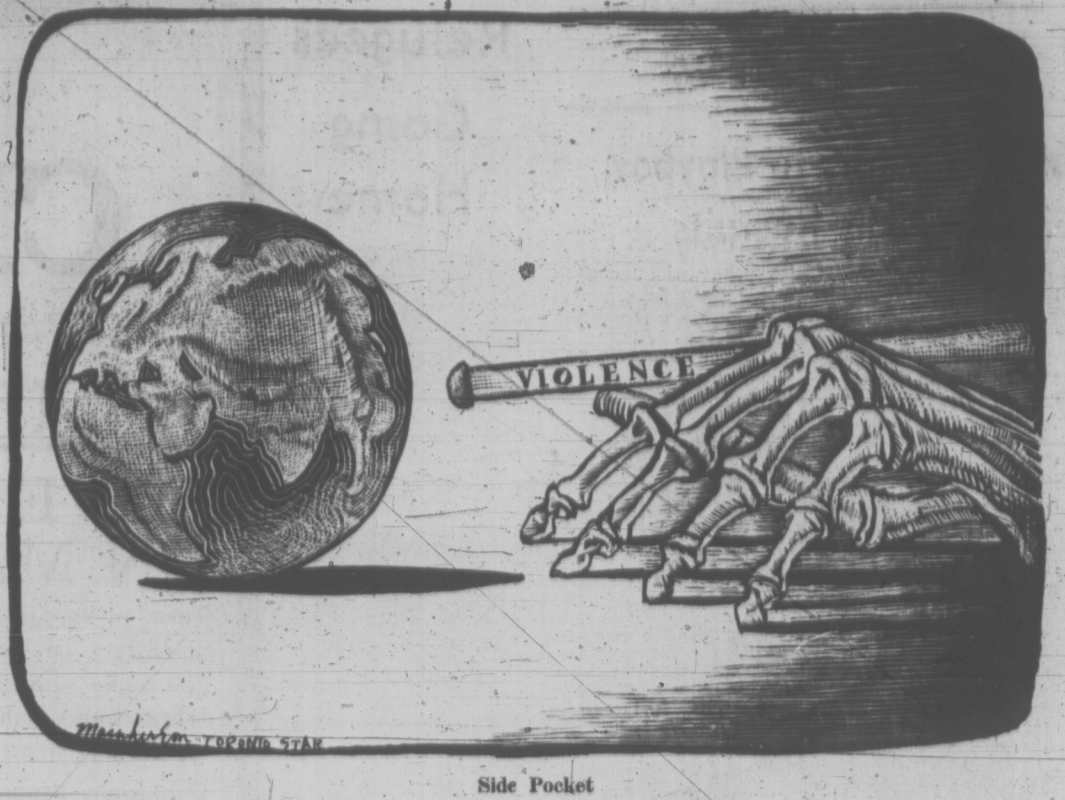

In the face of this situation, therefore, it is difficult to understand the reasoning of the North Vietnamese, who appear to be doing everything to hamper the withdrawal of the United States forces. Developments have gone far beyond the stage where any concessions or overtures on the part of Hanoi could be construed as weakness. The world knows what has happened in Vietnam. All that really remains is to set a date and make the end official.

Yet now, if reports are to be believed, the North Vietnamese are laying the stage for a vast assault, with larger stocks of supplies than ever before amassed in the hills. If the intention is to sweep down on the reduced American forces and try to gain a great military victory for the sake of prestige and the historical record, Hanoi risks losing what the jungle and United States domestic trends have won for it over the past two or three years.

Nothing could swing United States opinion behind the military authorities more quickly than a savage enemy attack, demanding reinforcements to salvage the American forces, greater-than-ever bombing activity, and a whole new approach to what has become a stagnant war.

Such an action by Hanoi would be one of the major military and psychological miscalculations in history. A lot of Northern face would be lost along with Northern heads.

A Long Agenda of Transition

LONDON — With the currency realignments settled, the first sign of progress has appeared in trade negotiations between the U.S. and the European Common Market: Canada, watching carefully on the sidelines, stands to register some modest gains for grain exports.

After the first negotiations before Christmas on U.S. requests for Common Market concessions in trade, both sides were talking more positively than before the currency settlement. It now looks as though the Europeans will agree to stockpile about 110 million bushels of surplus wheat for a one-year experiment as a direct result of U.S. pressure.

Any further stockpiling would be subject to negotiations for a common approach to grain surpluses with other exporters, including Canada. The U.S. is also seeking European concessions for exports of citrus fruits and tobacco.

Negotiations will resume on Jan. 14 in Brussels, with the U.S. hoping for quick progress, although there is some doubt that agreement can be reached in time to go to the U.S. Congress immediately when it reconvenes Jan. 18.

First Item

The U.S. requests are only the first item of a long agenda of transition and, hopefully, integration—facing the Common Market. During the coming year the ECM moves towards three major developments.

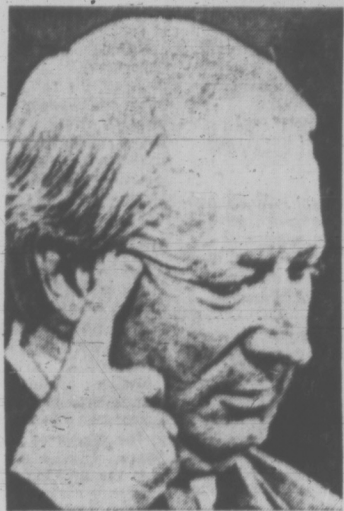

One is the enlargement of the community from six to 10 countries with Britain, Denmark, Norway and Ireland scheduled to become members at the end of next year.

A second is ECM's 10-year plan for monetary and economic union, side-tracked in 1971 by the currency problems.

The third is the question of major international review of trade barriers and adjustments to which outside countries, including Canada, are entitled as a result of the Common Market's enlargement, bringing four additional countries under discriminatory common tariffs.

In his Christmas press conference, in the full flush of success, if not outright victory, for France's long-standing campaign for U.S. dollar devaluation, President Pompidou was cautious and firm.

EDWARD HEATH

In a reference to the U.S. demands he said: "Everyone talks to us of integration, union, yet in the only domain in which we have realized this union (agriculture) they want to weaken it. Well, let me tell you that if the common market for agriculture is weakened, at this moment there will be no hope for economic and monetary union, and there would be no further perspectives for political union."

Because the U.S. did agree to the devaluation, some short-range concessions are most likely. And since the Americans deny, despite European suspicions, that they want to dismantle the whole common agriculture policy, there are reasonable prospects for progress in a more fundamental long-range review of agriculture trade problems. The problem for the Common Market is to safeguard the principle of a single agriculture market while abolishing, or controlling, surpluses that must be financed or sold on world markets at subsidized prices.

Reasonable Solution

William Eberle, U.S. chief negotiator, has recognized this as the problem, indicating that a reasonable solution should be possible.

A series of top-level meetings is being arranged for the new year to set sights on several objectives for common European policies, and to keep up the momentum. Both Mr. Pompidou and West German Chancellor Willy Brandt have agreed to consult British Prime Minister Edward Heath in London. This process will culminate, hopefully, in a grand 10-nation Common Market summit late this year to discuss trade and defence as well as monetary and economic integration.

In this milieu Canada will have to press firmly indeed to win a response for the special standing consultation machinery which External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp is hoping to establish. The Europeans are not keen on the precedent. If Canada, why not Australia or Brazil? Moreover, as is agreed, the mechanics of a standing committee, in which one side represents 10 countries, would be complicated.

A Place to Visit, Not to Stay

The lack of leadership in Bangladesh is proving embarrassing to India for it could mean that India may be forced to maintain a presence in that new state longer than might be advisable. Indian civil servants and elements of the Indian Army are fleshing out the rudimentary apparatus of a new political structure, providing administrative guidance and security.

The release of Sheikh Mujibur Rahman by President Bhutto of Pakistan will doubtless ease the situation in the Bengal state, but India must clearly avoid the charge that its invasion of what was formerly East Pakistan was a prelude to annexation.

According to reports, the diplomatic community in New Delhi is agreed upon the necessity of maintaining the Indian Army in Bangladesh to prevent the massacre of people who collaborated with the Pakistani regime. Officials are trying to cool tempers by forming a national militia for the Bengali irregulars or Mukti Bahini, and by opening universities. To further dampen Bengali hatred, there will be trials of certain former East Pakistani officials.

For the time being at least, the Indian presence can be adequately explained by the need to maintain order and provide a modicum of government. India is well aware that Bangladesh could be transformed from a severe economic problem to a dangerous political and military one if New Delhi does not disengage at the earliest possible moment.

With Memories of Droll Gaiety

To the modern generation, Maurice Chevalier probably seemed to be a very old man trying gallantly to remain very young in heart in an era that had ended.

Following his stage career, he achieved some success on film in pictures of the 'fifties and 'sixties, notably Gigi, and won recognition as a television personality. The verve, the lift of a song in his own style, the straw hat on the side of his head, the cane and the character, however, all belong to an age that antedated the often brutal realism of the entertainment world's "love" of more recent times.

He has answered his final curtain call — and somehow his departure, at least for an older generation, has robbed the world of a type of gaiety and drollery it can ill afford to lose.

Fun and Games But Deadly

The report of a luncheon conversation between an Indian brigadier and a Pakistani colonel formerly engaged in some of the fiercest fighting near Dacca makes incredible reading for western eyes.

The Indian officer was host and with members of his staff wished to talk over the circumstances of one of the more significant actions in which he faced the Pakistani.

The report of the discussion closes with what must be one of the most light-hearted assessments of the short war on record.

"It was all good fun," the brigadier said to the colonel, "But it was a shame to have to lose so many men."

"All good fun?" Did the corpses left on the battlefield laugh themselves to death?

JAMES H. GRAY

Striking Oil Again

CALGARY — The first kind words for Hon. Edgar Benson to be heard in Calgary in years were heard recently in the Calgary Petroleum Club. The head of one of Canada's largest oilwell drilling contractors, rubbing his hands over the rapid improvement in the drilling business, said:

"Once Mr. Benson got his tax bill through Parliament, it removed all the uncertainty. Now that people know where they stand, tax-wise, they can get on with their deals."

During the past 10 days there has been a firming up of a lot of exploration plays with financing supplied by "year-end money" from the United States. That is money which would otherwise go to the U.S. government in taxes but can be spent on natural resource investments to reduce tax liability.

Even without the U.S. tax money the drilling business is moving into a better than normal winter season. Of the 318 rigs of all sizes and states of repair in western Canada, 224 were working or under contract last week. There is never a time when all rigs are under contract. A boom year is when 260 to 270 have work.

Into the Black

Not only has there been a rapid increase in the demand for rigs during the past two months, footage prices have risen sharply to a point where the industry can now get back into the black once more. During the early summer prices for work were undercut sharply by two contractors who were in financial trouble. These firms are now out of business and their rigs have been largely scrapped and the salvage exported to the U.S.

The executive quoted above said that he could probably put another two or three rigs to work within 10 days except for lack of experienced key personnel. Because the oil and gas drilling business in Alberta and the far north does the bulk of its work in the winter, the long summer lay-offs have been a handicap in keeping experienced men in the industry.

A tool-pusher — the top man on a drilling rig — can earn up to $15,000 a year. Under him are three drillers who are each in charge of one eight-hour shift. During the slack season the tool pushers work as drillers and low drillers on the seniority lists drop back to rough-necking on the drill floor. Every year experienced drillers pocket their winter's pay in the spring and never come back. There are steadier and more congenial ways of making a living earning up to $11,000 a year.

Money in the Ground

If a real boom should happen to develop with a big discovery, the drilling contractors would be hard put to get many more rigs into action.

One of the causes of the upsurge in demand for rigs has been a gas oil discovery in the Claresholm area of southern Alberta. Five rigs moved into the area to try to complete tests before a land sale in the area scheduled for this week.

Even the Sable Island discovery of last autumn has helped Alberta drilling contractors. Four big rigs from Alberta have been shipped east, three to Quebec and one to Prince Edward Island. Once those rigs are down there it is expected that wildcatting activities will increase over the next year. Having a rig handy when the urge to drill is strong is always a help in making up an exploration company's mind.

At the present time there are 30 rigs located in the Yukon and along the Mackenzie River delta. Not all are under contract but Calgary oilmen expect that most of them will eventually be drilling on acreage where the companies have commitments to put down holes.

Surplus Condition

One of the factors which is helping the Alberta industry is the tightening up in the demand for drilling rights in the U.S. Idle rigs below the line used to ship into Canada and worsen a surplus condition here. In recent rig auctions of companies in liquidation three of the complete drilling units which were sold went to the United States.

"The big thing has been to get rid of the money-losing outfits," the executive said. "The companies which have survived the last couple of years are all well-managed, well-financed, good house-keepers who seldom cut prices below cost just to keep rigs working. For the first time in a long time we can say we are getting very good prices for our service."

He, like all the others in the business, insists that there is nothing wrong with the oil business a couple of discoveries won't fix. For example, there was the Rosevear discovery last summer between Edson, Alta., and the Kaybob fields. Within a matter of a couple of weeks 12 rigs were either in the area or heading toward it. That one small discovery took up a lot of slack and turned the fall of 1971 into a prosperous one for the drilling business.

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

Friend in Need

Somewhere in Victoria there is a Good Samaritan to whom I wish to say thank you.

On Dec. 12 I came to Victoria to spend our mutual birthday with my sister. Both in our seventies and not so hale as we used to be, we sailed home to bed about 9 p.m. Around 11 or so I awakened dying for a cigarette — none on the premises, so I crawled into my suit, took the lock off the door and went prowling for some. Stores all closed, came back to apartment, front door locked and Sis, dead to world doesn't hear the buzzer. Wondering what to do when a friendly taxi driver pulled up.

A veteran of two wars, I asked him to take me to a Legion Club and there I met a man (name unknown) who drove me to my sister's, and when I still couldn't get in, took me home to sleep on his couch.

I tried to find his name through the Veterans but couldn't so through the paper is the only way I can express my gratitude. — J. W. L. McCrea

Inflationary

Your article on Income Tax and the poor might lead some people to think that this is the only tax borne by the poor. Actually, a little thought will show that all taxes, whenever first bears the hunt, must be paid by the consumer. Others may save some part of their income, but the poor necessarily spend all their income on consumption. As soon as taxes are raised, the first and heaviest sufferers are the poor.

When we consider that between 1951 and 1971, federal government expenditures rose from $2.9 billions to $16 billions, we need look no further either for the cause of inflation, or the increasing number of the poverty-stricken.

The only thing that can bring increased prosperity to the country and a reduction in the number of the poor is a drastic decline in governmental expenditures; you can guess as to how much chance there is of this happening, and so "the poor we will always have with us." — J. P. Thornton, 843 Wilmer St.

Kind Gestures

We should like to express, through your newspaper, our heartfelt thanks to the many hundreds of people who so generously donated hampers, gift certificates, cash and other Christmas goodies to the Bureau.

Their beautiful spirit of giving was most appreciated and they can be assured that their kind gestures certainly helped make this Christmas a happier one for many, many families. — (Mrs.) D. Beckett, Co-Ordinator, Christmas Bureau

Maltese Danger

I am at present a Canadian citizen, but was born in Malta and lived there 16 years.

I heard recently in news reports that Russia has concluded a trade agreement with Malta and may add extra money for military investments. I am concerned that Russia may soon take over Malta.

I visited Malta two years ago. Residents of Malta currently have a good standard of living in a free country. I would hate to see Malta under a Communist system.

Under a Communist system, people would lose their freedom, and might not be allowed to visit (or be visited by) friends and relatives living in different countries.

I am sure relatives and friends of Maltese citizens share my concern for their future welfare. — Joseph Schembri, 5873 Blythswold

Navy Blues

Having read the few words under a recent news picture, I cannot allow the Royal Canadian Navy (may she rest in peace) to fade into the past without a protest. To realize that we shall never see again "the jolly little lads in Navy blue," so far as Canada is concerned, is a most regrettable matter.

So we must wait for ships of other nations to visit our country in order to see the traditional uniform of the world's navies. So:

Requiescat in pace
To the late,
Royal Canadian Navy.
Ours is the right, and ours the task
Just where to fix the blame,
On those who did this brazen deed
We rest the load of SHAME.
— Padre A. W. Gollmer, late Padre of the Admiral Raynor branch, Navy League of Canada.

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of Jan. 5, 1912:

Parents in Victoria who have sons desirous of taking a course in seamanship and who wished to concede to their wishes, but have been forced to refuse in the past, will be glad to know that the good old ship Egeria has commenced her career as a training ship at Vancouver. The ancient warship, which is under the command of Capt. Charles Eddie, was secured by the Vancouver branch of the Navy League at the auction sale held at Esquimalt a few months ago by the Imperial authorities for $6,800.

A Sudden Shift in Quebec Politics

By ROBERT MCKENZIE
Toronto Star

QUEBEC CITY — The long document by revolutionary writer Pierre Vallières published in the newspaper Le Devoir last month marks a watershed in the history of the Quebec independence movement.

Vallières, whose name has become the living symbol of terrorist action in Quebec, repudiated violence. He also, astonishingly, endorsed the democratic program of the secessionist Parti Québécois.

He did both these things from the freedom of a hiding place where he has eluded police since jumping bail last Sept. 9. Thus it can hardly be claimed his revolutionary spirit was broken by the duress of prison conditions.

That the event was considered totally insignificant in the rest of Canada is obvious from the treatment it received in newspapers beyond Quebec's borders — in the main, a few paragraphs beside the supermarket ads.

Throughout Quebec, it was on the front page of every newspaper, not out of any cheap sensationalism but because those on the scene instinctively felt the shift which had suddenly occurred in Quebec politics.

The mood, almost overnight, has changed.

Until the appearance of Vallières' text, it is fair to say most Quebecers expected that, sooner or later, there would be another spectacular terrorist coup similar to the October, 1970, political kidnappings.

Although Vallières, as he himself is the first to admit, has no power to disband an organization as loosely knit as the Front de libération de Québec, the threat of violence is nevertheless greatly reduced.

There will doubtless be further isolated bomb explosions and bank hold-ups signed "FLQ," but the mystique, the romantic vision of an armed workers' uprising creating an independent, Socialist Quebec, is dead.

That such a vision ever achieved a modicum of credibility among Quebec youth was largely due to the intellectual weight placed behind it by Vallières and his fellow "Félicite" Charles Gagnon.

The success of mostly unsuccessful trials which they faced during their four years in captivity paradoxically gave the two young intellectuals a platform they might never have achieved had they not been behind bars.

Both had the credentials and the intellectual ability to use their unusual rostrum to maximum effect.

Gagnon, before going into hiding with Vallières in 1966, was a University of Montreal sociology lecturer.

Vallières, now 33, was hand-picked by Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau and State Secretary Gerard Pelletier, not yet members of the Liberal party, to succeed them as co-director of the left-wing Catholic review Cité Libre in 1965.

He confirmed his talent as a writer, although in a different cause, in White Niggers of America, the now widely published essay on the oppression of the Quebec worker which he wrote in captivity.

Gagnon also turned his back on armed revolt as a means of changing Quebec society several months ago although he disapproves of Vallières' endorsement of the Parti Québécois.

Will a new "thinker" emerge to provide the intellectual fabric without which no terrorist movement can acquire any cohesion or semblance of a clear design?

None is in sight, certainly not Paul Rose, the condemned killer of Quebec labor minister Pierre Laporte.

Despite the artfully airbrushed Paul Rose posters, the stickers portraying the touque, rifle-toting patriot and all the other paraphernalia of romanticized revolution, it is difficult to imagine Rose as the rallying point of a coherent revolutionary movement.

Vallières outlined three basic reasons for his renunciation of the FLQ and his endorsement of the Parti Québécois.

One was that a revolutionary situation cannot exist in Quebec as long as change via the electoral system remains possible.

Secondly, and this was his main argument, he said it has become obvious every act of terrorism reinforces the status quo. Above all, he voiced his conviction that the federal and Quebec governments are preparing to use some major act of terrorism — real or fabricated — to "crush the Quebec people by destroying the organizations it had formed to free itself — the Parti Québécois, the labor federations and the citizens' committees."

Thirdly, Vallières swallowed his past criticism of the Parti Québécois as a bourgeois party and said it has become an instrument for a profound transformation of (Quebec's) economic and social structures.

One consequence of this statement will undoubtedly be renewed attempts by other Quebec parties to tar René Lévesque's Parti Québécois with the FLQ brush. Since these attempts have failed in the past, there's little reason to believe they'll stick any better now.

Even the Montreal Gazette, scarcely to be suspected of separatist sympathies, wrote on this subject:

"The PQ is not just a democratic party but almost a quintessentially democratic one, for it embodies the belief that ballots can break up a country. A stronger faith in the electoral process as a means of achieving radical objectives is not to be found."

Because of this widely held view, it is increasingly difficult to imagine a repetition of the October, 1970, scenario when hundreds of innocent Parti Québécois organizers and union officials were raided and arrested pell-mell at the same time as a few dozen genuine terrorists and revolutionaries.

Some Parti Québécois officials fear a phoney terrorist campaign which would be used as a "frame-up" to crush the party before the next Quebec elections. Vallières voices the same fear over and over again in his document.

But the very fact that he has called for the disbanding of the FLQ means that less and less Quebecers will be willing to believe that a few isolated acts of terrorism can ever again amount to an "apprehended insurrection."

Strike of Black Laborers Brings Fear to South Africa

By COLIN LEGUM
The London Observer

GAVERONES, Botswana —

The virtually total strike by 30,000 Ovambo workers in Namibia (South-West Africa) is the most dramatic industrial or political challenge to the power of the apartheid regime in South Africa since the pass law demonstrations which culminated in the Sharpeville shootings in 1960.

But whereas the 1960 protest was led by sophisticated political movements, among the industrial workers in the heart of the Republic, the Ovambo workers are among the least sophisticated of the country's industrial population.

They work under the restrictive system of contract labor which ties them as migrant workers to a clearly defined "master-servant relationship." Also, they have neither trade unions nor legal political organizations. They come from a tribal area in the most remote northern part of the country, just south of the Portuguese Angola frontier.

Most 'Loyal'

Hitherto, the Ovambo have been looked upon as the most acquiescent and "loyal" of all the African tribes — hence the role they have come to play as the major labor force in Namibia's economy. Now they are choosing to go home to eke out a bare subsistence livelihood rather than to continue working for less than $5 a month plus free food and lodgings. The result has been to paralyze the whole industrial and commercial life of Namibia and to affect parts of the agricultural community as well.

This strike, however, goes far beyond a normal industrial dispute. Its ramifications strike deep into the whole system of apartheid. It reaches out to the international community, since Namibia is a disputed territory which the United Nations Security Council has declared independent and illegally occupied by South Africa.

It extends the conflict between the Vorster regime and the Church. And finally it raises major questions about the role of the liberation movement SWAPO (South-West Africa People's Organization), whose main area of activity is in Ovamboland.

The combination of all these factors has had a traumatic effect on the Vorster regime, comparable with Sharpeville but less immediately dramatic only because the events are occurring in such a distant part of the country.

For white South Africa, the darkest nightmare has always been the fear that some day the black workers will collectively down tools and bring the Republic's economy grinding to a halt. It is to avert this possibility that the Republic maintains such rigid controls on every aspect of the industrial life of its millions of black workers. The ultimate step in this policy has been the establishment throughout the country of a system of migrant labor tied to special contracts of limited duration.

The idea is that the African workers will live in their own homelands and enter the white areas (covering over two-thirds of the country) only under special conditions, defined by law as master-servant relations.

Nowhere has this system been carried to such extreme lengths as in Ovamboland and yet it is among the Ovambos that the first total strike has occurred. It is this element that must raise grave doubts within apartheid circles about the efficacy of the system.

Defence Bulwark

No less alarming is the fact that the rebellious industrial community comes from a tribe which has hitherto been looked upon as the bulwark of South Africa's defence against the international community's pressures for the independence of Namibia.

The territory first came into South African hands as a League of Nations mandated territory after World War I and it is now a disputed United Nations trust territory. Not only has the Security Council ruled that South Africa is in illegal occupation of the territory, but the World Court at The Hague has upheld the UN's legal right to declare the territory independent.

One of the tactics used by the Vorster regime to challenge the UN has been to offer to hold a referendum among the people of the territory because they relied on the loyalty of the Ovambos, who make up over half of Namibia's total population. Clearly they will now have serious second thoughts about the ability of the Ovambo chiefs to deliver the votes of their tribesmen for continued South African rule.

The political resistance to South African rule over the territory traditionally came from the numerically smaller but more politically sophisticated Herero people, who occupy land in the centre of Namibia. It was largely to neutralize their pressures at the UN, where the Reverend Michael Scott has pleaded their cause for over 20 years, that the Pretoria regime set about encouraging the Ovambos as a counter-force.

Simultaneously, SWAPO, under the leadership of Sam Nujoma, has been building up a clandestine political and guerrilla movement in Ovamboland. The South African regime has always been anxious to prove the SWAPO has little or no influence among the Ovambos.

When the strikes first began the authorities were quick to deny that they had any political implications. Now the police have discovered leaflets — sometimes hand-written — distributed in the port of Swakopmund, in the copper mines, in the capital, Windhoek, and on farms. This suggests a high degree of central political organization.

What must worry the government is the effect of tens of thousands of Ovambo workers returning to their homeland, where there is no employment beside low subsistence agriculture. Such a large dissident force is obviously a political factor to be reckoned with.

Someday will they all lay down their tools?

Because the government is determined to play down the influence of SWAPO it is fixing its suspicions on the church leaders in Ovamboland who under the local Lutheran bishops and the Anglican Bishop of Damaraland, Dr. Colin Winter, have in recent months taken an increasingly critical stand over the treatment of the Ovambo workers.

One of the major grievances they have helped to ventilate has been over the hated contract system which separates husbands from their families for stretches of 18 months and which is the only legal way whereby tribesmen can go to work outside their homeland.

A number of missionaries have already been banned from the country and other church leaders are not allowed to enter Ovamboland. There seems little doubt that further tough action and prosecutions against church leaders will follow.

The future of Namibia has been under a cloud for over 20 years. The Ovambo industrial revolt will greatly add to the difficulties of the Vorster regime in trying to hold on to a territory where its rule has been declared to be illegal.

The Time of His Life

The following letter came in the mail yesterday from the editors of Time magazine:

"Sir: We are returning your diary for the year 1971. Thank you for letting us examine it. It was most useful during our consideration of your application to be made Time's Man of the Year for 1971. As you may have seen by this time, we decided instead to confer that designation upon President Nixon, a decision which superficially may seem to bear out your contention that you've got to be a President or a quarterback to qualify for the big prizes in this country."

"Let me assure you, however, that the editors of Time did not reject your application out of hand. We went over your diary quite carefully, in an effort to give you every benefit of the doubt. Several of our editors, for example, were highly impressed by evidence that you had seen 'Patton' twice during the year and argued that this indicated a Presidential temperament."

"Your comments after the entry about seeing 'Big Jake' with John Wayne, however, suggested a lack of dynamism that would have been inappropriate in the Man of the Year. I refer to the sentence, 'John Wayne is like professional football, as dully predictable as Chinese opera—but I can't resist either one.'"

"Let us consider the major events of your year. The biggest event in January was the death of the last fish left in a small aquarium you had been keeping. It was a catfish. You reveal that under your management, black mollies, swordtails, angel fish and several other common varieties had died with great rapidity. You wrote: 'I think I have a black thumb.'"

RUSSELL BAKER

"None of us here at Time felt that we could make a man with a black thumb the Man of the Year."

"Unless, of course, there were great deeds revealed elsewhere in the diary. We looked for evidence of great deeds. February contained only two entries. On the 18th you attended a cocktail party. On the 26th, you went to a high school wrestling tournament and had dinner afterwards at a restaurant."

"March offered very little evidence of activity. A man named Spinoza came to dinner on March 7 and stayed until 3:30 the next morning. On March 30 you tell your diary, 'Ought to sit down some day and think what I would do if I were President.' There is no evidence that you did. On March 19, the telephone company dunned you for payment of your son's telephone bill. He owed $220."

"On March 20, you worked on a model airplane and watched 'Charlie Chan's Secret' on television. In a moment of insight worthy of Man of the Year, you admitted, 'This is a Vice', but the following week you watched 'Charlie Chan at the Circus.'"

"In April, you went to Yale. Made a fool of myself at Yale," you wrote. Nothing more. If your diary is to be believed, the only other thing you did in April was read 'a new book about the tragedy of F. Scott Fitzgerald.'"

"We were impressed by that, perhaps because at Time we are literate men. But in May you reported reading 'another new book about the tragedy of F. Scott Fitzgerald,' in June, 'a magazine article about the tragedy of F. Scott Fitzgerald,' and in October, 'two new books about the tragedy of F. Scott Fitzgerald.'"

"The editors agreed that if the Man of the Year was going to read every new manuscript that came along about F. Scott Fitzgerald, he was going to have precious little time to do man of the year things."

"We were all extremely impressed by your June 17 entry. That was the day you painted the window boxes, took a bicycle ride and helped your son study French."

"To find another day of equally intense activity, however, we had to search all the way to November 19, when you 'chewed out the boys for not getting haircuts and for looking like bugs,' had a drink at a friend's house, hired a man to put up the storm windows and finished reading the first instalment of the Pentagon Papers in The New York Times, an instalment which had been published five months previously."

"We hope you will understand why we felt, on the basis of your diary, that President Nixon seemed the more appropriate choice to be the Man of the Year for 1971. At the same time, we do not want to discourage you from entering again in the future."

"With a heavy dosing of vitamins, plenty of application, lots of daring and imagination, as well as luck, you might very well become the Man of the Year for 1972, particularly if you can get elected President or become a quarterback."

"Better luck next year!"

Judge Reserves Ruling
In Stolen Pearl Case

VANCOUVER (CP) — Judge Maurice Mulligan reserved decision Tuesday on Jan. 12 on a defence motion that three Vancouver men be acquitted for lack of evidence on a charge of possession of $750,000 worth of stolen pearls.

The judge adjourned the trial after hearing prosecution arguments against the motion. Charged with possession and conspiracy to possess stolen pearls are lawyer Martin Chambers, 31, and businessmen Eugene Killam, 30, and Barry Ehrl, 32.

They were arrested early last year in a Vancouver hotel and a quantity of pearls were seized. The pearls allegedly were those taken from a railway express car in a robbery in Seattle Dec. 22, 1969, in which express car driver Carley J. Aicher, 51, was murdered.

The prosecution has said it is not trying to suggest the defendants were involved in the actual robbery or in the murder.

Victim Identified

WELLS (CP) — A man found frozen to death Dec. 17 on a trail near this Cariboo community has been identified as James Harold Mostie, 28, of no fixed address, RCMP said Tuesday he had lived in the Queen Charlotte Islands and Vancouver before moving in December to the Wells area where he apparently was planning to live in a cabin along the trail where he was found dead.

Surrey Pumping

SURREY (CP) — The cost of pumping water from low-lying areas of Surrey is estimated at about $9,000 a month, Surrey council was told. Two pumps were rented to drain sites where the water was becoming dangerous.

Back at Work

VANCOUVER (CP) — City police constable Ed Johnson, 36, shot after a bank robbery Nov. 15, is back at work. Bank robber Bruce Thornhill killed himself after the shooting when surrounded by police in a house.

Mediator Named

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mediator Clark Gilmour has been appointed to act in a contract dispute between the 5,500-member Registered Nurses Association of British Columbia and the B.C. Hospitals Association.

'Look Me Over'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Alderman Art Phillips announced he will run for mayor in the election scheduled for December. Phillips, 41, has been an alderman since 1968. He said he announced his candidacy early to give voters "a chance to look me over."

Protest Flooding

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — The British Columbia Association of Non-Status Indians plans to protest the construction of the proposed Moran Dam on the Fraser River north of Lillooet. Secretary-Treasurer Gloria Gabert told a meeting of the association here that the dam would cut into the salmon industry and wildlife resources, as well as flood sacred Indian lands.

Arbitration Boards
A Waste—Teachers

VANCOUVER (CP) — Spokesmen for British Columbia's teachers and school boards agreed Tuesday that having a large number of teachers' salary disputes decided by arbitration was expensive, but they differed on cost estimates.

Adam Robertson, president of the B.C. Teachers' Federation, estimated the cost to teachers and school boards at $250,000 and said it resulted from Education Minister Don Brocks' announcement Oct. 26 that the provincial government would not share teachers' salary increases exceeding 6.5 per cent.

"Arbitrations were a waste of time and money, brought about by the minister's dictum," he said.

INFLATIONARY

Brocks set the limit after Vancouver teachers received an 8.9-per-cent increase under a formula relating their salaries to others in the community.

He called the Vancouver increase inflationary and said he feared it would establish a pattern across B.C.

His announcement led many school boards to make 6.5 per cent the maximum increase they would consider in salary negotiations and 49 districts went to arbitration for decisions.

Robertson said, however, that increases in 12 negotiated settlements reached before the announcement averaged 7.67 per cent, while BCTF calculations for 35 of the 49 arbitration awards show an average pay increase of 7.62 per cent.

He said the figures show Brocks' limit had no appreciable effect, except to force arbitration.

Bob Bowman, director of personnel and employee relations for the B.C. School Trustees Association, said the total cost of arbitration was probably closer to $200,000 than $250,000, and maybe lower.

Dissident Soviet Writer Goes on Trial in Secret

MOSCOW (AP) — Vladimir K. Bukovsky, 29, a Soviet dissident imprisoned since last March, went on trial today before a Moscow people's court on charges of anti-Soviet agitation and propaganda.

The official news agency

Tass said the writer was charged with "activities aimed at undermining and weakening Soviet power."

"He is charged specifically," Tass said, "with trying to persuade Soviet army officers to transmit information abroad, trying to organize illegal smuggling of printing equipment from abroad to duplicate subversive anti-Soviet materials, circulating among Soviet citizens and in some foreign publications slanderous inventions about the social and political system of the U.S.S.R."

Western correspondents were barred from the trial.

A dissident source said a Soviet defender of human rights, physicist Andrei D. Sakharov, also was denied admittance.

A letter signed by Sakharov and circulated by dissident friends of Bukovsky indicated that at least part of the case against him was based on interviews he had given to Western newspaper and broadcasting correspondents.

"We feel that these materials do not serve as a basis for the arrest and trial of Bukovsky," the letter said.

"His interview is based on things which he saw, heard and experienced himself during detention in special psychiatric hospitals and labor camps."

SWEET- SOUR STEW

1/4 cup all purpose flour, 1 tsp. salt, dash of pepper, 2-lbs. beef stew meat, cubed; 1/4 cups shortening, 1 cup water, 1/2 cup ketchup, 1/4 cup brown sugar, 1/4 cup vinegar, 1 tbs. Worcestershire sauce, 1 cup chopped onions, 6 large carrots, cut in 1/4 inch pieces. (3 cups.)

Combine flour, 1 tsp. salt and pepper in a paper bag. Add meat, shake to coat. In large skillet brown meat well in hot shortening. Combine water, ketchup, brown sugar, vinegar, Worcestershire sauce and 1/4 tsp. salt. Stir into browned meat; add onion. Cover and cook over low heat for 45 minutes, stirring once or twice. Add carrots cook 45 minutes more or until meat and carrots are tender. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

HINTS FOR MAKING STEW

Cuts of meat to look for are: brisket, plate, short ribs, chuck, flank, bottom round. These are all beef cuts. The cuts from lamb most suitable for stew are shoulder and flank. Seasonings: The most often used spices and seasonings for stews are bay leaf, celery seed, celery salt, parsley, thyme, garlic powder, marjoram, cloves, allspice, peppercorns or curry powder.

In selecting vegetables for stews, the chief consideration should be variety in flavour, colour, shape and texture. Only one strong juice vegetable should be used at a time. Suitable vegetables are potatoes, turnips, onions, carrots, peas, string beans, celery, tomatoes and cauliflower.

Budget Balancer Recipe Sheets are available at all Woodward Food Floors.

Witchcraft Alive and Well...

By LANI SELICK
Times Staff

There are 850 practicers of Wicca — the Witch religion — in British Columbia, according to Mark Fedoruk.

He is high priest of Victoria's only coven, started about a year ago. The 14-member coven holds its ceremonies in a room behind one of the shops in Bastion Square's Law Chambers building.

The ritual room is a deep wine color, contrasted with black. On opposite walls, a statue of Christ faces an underworld figure painted on a window. On the other walls, black mirrors oppose a picture of the Mandala and shelves of books.

The floor is carpeted. When a section of the carpet is raised, a large black and white circle painted with symbols is exposed in the centre of the dimly-lit room.

According to Fedoruk, Wicca is a nature religion. It is "flowing with nature, understanding, nature's laws, not trying to be the master of nature but the vehicle of it."

MISUNDERSTOOD

Fedoruk believes Wicca is one of the most misunderstood and misrepresented religions in the world.

"The devil is the most maligned figure in the history of human religion," he says. "He's just the opposite, supposedly, of good, of God. But God is all creation, good and bad, negative and positive."

"Creation is a unity including polarities; the 'devil,' if that's how you want to think of him, is a necessary part of the unity of God's creation."

Followers of Wicca see "Baphomet" as symbol of "the system here on earth, life here on earth. He represents the unity between man and woman."

Followers of Wicca do not "consecrate" with Baphomet or worship him outside the context of his purpose in God's creation, Fedoruk said.

oriented to an "evil devil"?

Devil-worshippers are involved with the Christian concept of Satan, not Wicca theology, he said. Devil-worshippers couldn't be considered followers of the Witch religion, whatever they call themselves.

FOUR HOLIDAYS

About Wicca in general: Fedoruk said most followers celebrate four major holidays — "Sabbats" — two solstices

and two equinoxes, and celebrate seasonal change — All Hallow's Eve Oct. 31, Candlemas Feb. 2, Beltane April 30 and Lammas Aug. 1.

The witch religion is formally organized around a coven, which has 13 members. Fedoruk explained that the number and structure of the coven is symbolic. Within the group, 12 persons stand for the 12 astrological signs. There is one extra person to stand for either the mother or father-principle in life.

The Victoria coven has two extra members because the male and female principles are seen as equal in importance, so both are represented, he said.

The magic circle on the floor is part of all coven rituals. If a ritual occurs outdoors, a circle is drawn on the ground.

The circle in the ritual room is eight feet in diameter. Fedoruk said the circle actually extends to nine feet, but the ninth is invisible, except to the spiritually enlightened.

The magic circle is a diagram of patterns in life. Progression towards the centre of the circle charts the loss of earthly desires and the gaining of higher consciousness — and progression toward higher consciousness leads to an understanding of magic.

The word magic has much meaning for Wicca followers, but doesn't refer either to casting spells or pulling rabbits out of hats.

According to Fedoruk, "magic is using more than 5 per cent of your mind, becoming very sensitive, and understanding nature."

Area Building Triples

Construction activity reached a value of $15.4 million last year in the unorganized areas of the Capital Regional District.

This was the value of permits issued by the district's building department in View Royal, Langford, Colwood, Metchosin, Sooke, Jordan River, Port Renfrew, the Highlands and the Gulf Islands.

The total included 598 houses.

A direct comparison with 1970 is not possible because of changes, but the permit value that year for Langford, Colwood and Metchosin was $4.9 million.

The bulk of the $15.4 million construction activity in the unorganized areas last year was in Langford and Colwood, said a building department official.

Teacher Wage Hike 'Rejected'

The 6.5 per cent wage increase limit for teachers in British Columbia is inappropriate, Opposition Leader Dave Barrett said today.

Barrett said the government "pulled the figure out of the air" in setting the limit for teachers. His views came during a press conference in Victoria this morning.

Barrett said Education Minister Donald Brocks is "threatening the quality of education" in the province by a "foolish and somewhat benign" approach toward school financing and teachers salaries.

Resignation May Spark Krupp Power Struggle

BONN (WP) — Guenter Vogelsang, managing director of the Friedrich Krupp concern, stunned West German industrial circles Tuesday by announcing that he will leave the famed giant of Ruhr manufacturers at the end of 1972.

The announcement immediately touched off speculation that Krupp, West Germany's fourth biggest firm, might be in for a leadership crisis whose effects would be felt throughout German industry.

Vogelsang, 52, has been head of Krupp since its 1968 transformation from a family-held concern into a limited-liability public corporation. In the ensuing four years, he had won the chief credit for resolving Krupp's financial difficulties of the 1960s and putting the firm back into the black.

The terse announcement issued from Krupp headquarters in Essen gave no explanation of why Vogelsang had decided to quit with five years left to run on his contract.

However, industry sources said the reasons appeared to be bound up in a power struggle between Vogelsang and Berthold Beitz, Krupp's chairman of the board and the man who preceded Vogelsang as general manager.

These two men have been the dominant figures in the recent history of the firm that won both fame and infamy all over the world as Germany's armorer in war and steel colossus in peace.

Alfried Krupp Von Bohlen and Halbach, the last of the five generations of Krupp who controlled the firm personally through 156 years of family ownership, had hand-picked Beitz to lead the firm in its initial post-war resurgence.

DIVERSIFIED
Under Beitz, Krupp became a sprawling, diversified concern producing everything from watchsprings to ships. In the mid-1960s, however, the company became over-extended because of its granting long-term credits to Communist Eastern Europe and required a massive bailout by the West German government.

In order to gain governmental help, Alfred Krupp agreed to turn the firm into a public corporation — a move that was accomplished after his death in July, 1967.

Under the complex reorganization, Vogelsang, who had been an executive of the Mannesmann Steel Works, was brought in as a managing director. Beitz became board chairman and also took over running the Krupp foundation, which was set up to administer Alfred's personal fortune.

DIVISION
Industry sources say that this division of labor was supposed to give Vogelsang operational control over the company. In the ensuing four years he led the firm through a thorough-going internal reorganization that concentrated on spinning off unprofitable activities and diversifying into still-newer areas like electronics.

However, the sources added, Beitz, a suave, super salesman type, and Vogelsang, a detail man schooled in the tougher school of Ruhr steel production, had clashed repeatedly over where their respective lines of authority were drawn.

The sources said that Beitz had never reconciled himself to being on the sidelines and was forever trying to reassert his dominance over Krupp operations. Vogelsang, they said, had come to regard this increasingly as an undermining of his authority, and they speculated that his departure is due to this situation.

GNP Mines Against Merger

VANCOUVER (CP) —

Great Northern Petroleum and Mines Ltd. of Vancouver announced Tuesday that it has decided against joining a proposed Chicago-based conglomerate.

It was announced earlier that directors were considering a proposal to join a group of United States companies which were being amalgamated. It was part of the proposal that B. I. Nesbitt, president of Great Northern, would become president of the conglomerate.

Nesbitt said in a statement that the decision was influenced by the increasingly strong position being achieved in development of gas reserves and imminent production, and also by the imponderables involved in assessing potential gains or losses in the merger proposal.

ON JANUARY 5th 1973 will you be a success -or just one year older?

Looking back on 1971, can you honestly say that you advanced a great deal? Maybe you had a raise—or two—and it was eaten up by rising costs.

Will 1972 be better? Only if you make it so. Perhaps you should change your line of work—or your employer—and "get with" something more successful.

How about becoming associated with an industry that's booming—with a company that has increased its business from $17,000,000 to over $180,000,000 in ten years. That kind of success can't help but rub off on everyone associated with it.

Want to know more? Then attend an informal gathering at the Imperial Inn this Thursday, January 6th at 7:45 p.m.

ONE HOUR OF YOUR TIME MAY BRING YOU
THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS IN INCREASED EARNINGS!!

If you don't think
Real Estate Selling is "your bag"

consider this:

1. Financially, this can be a very rewarding career—your earnings depend on how much effort you are prepared to make.
2. You will be helping people solve their housing problems—performing a necessary service at their request, not selling something they don't really want.
3. In many ways, you are your own "boss"—choosing your own hours, working companions, type of business done, etc.
4. Many local occupations face cut-backs — Real Estate anticipates years of increasing business with a product in constant demand.
5. You will receive complete training before starting work... and can probably continue in your present job while training.
6. You have nothing to lose by attending this meeting—it will provide information only, and you will not be "pressured" into anything.

If you are now a
Licensed Real Estate

consider this:

1. Block Bros. is growing—fast—from three to five offices locally in 1972. This indicates the success of our "better way" of selling.
2. No competition from management, whose only purpose is to help you produce more—and thus earn more.
3. Your telephone and advertising are paid for, the commission split is generous, AND you can participate in profit sharing.
4. Retirement savings plan, sickness and accident group insurance and gas and oil discounts are valuable fringe benefits.

Provisional Budgets 'Unclear'

NORTH COWICHAN — Provisional budgets have little relationship to the final product, Ald. Don Morton, finance committee chairman, said Monday.

After aldermen adopted a preliminary budget of $5,368,326, compared to last year's revised budget of $5,158,886, Morton said:

"The budget doesn't present a clear picture because we don't know the value of a mill; we don't know the provincial government grants, and we don't know the regional district, hospital or school levies."

The early budget, he said, is simply an attempt to forecast what the annual budget will be in March.

"It's a legal instrument to continue operation until the annual budget is introduced." He said the expenditure portion of the budget includes almost all of the requests of the committee chairmen and department heads.

Foreign Reserves At $5.5B

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's foreign exchange reserves rose to more than $5.5 billion at the end of December, an increase of nearly $297 million in the month and $873 million in the year, the finance department reported today.

The latest increase was, in the main, due to federal government purchases of U.S. dollars during the early part of December, when uncertainties in the international exchange picture caused upward pressure on the Canadian dollar.

But it was also due in part, the department said, to revaluing some of Canada's holdings of other foreign currencies after new exchange rates were agreed to by most countries to settle the crisis later in the month.

At the end of December, Canada's reserves included $3.6 billion in U.S. dollars, $13.6 million in other foreign currencies, $791.8 million in gold, and $332.6 million in Canada's account in the International Monetary Fund. Canada also had $371.9 million in IMF special drawing rights at the end of the year, and a further $116.6 million was added this month.

KEEP THINGS ORDERLY

The reserves are used by the government to buy and sell currencies to keep an orderly international exchange market in Canadian dollars. The Canadian dollar has been floating in international exchange markets since June, 1970. Previously it was pegged at 92.5 cents in U.S. dollar terms.

Normally, with a floating currency, the government has not intervened in the free market to influence the exchange rate except to smooth out day-to-day fluctuations. However, the department said, the government bought U.S. dollars "in the first half of the month when an unusual degree of uncertainty existed in the exchange markets."

U.S. dollar holdings rose to $4.6 billion from $3.79 billion at the end of November.

Most of this money is invested in short-term U.S. government treasury bills which pay interest. The interest earnings are added to the reserves, but profits from the investment are later transferred to the Canadian treasury's general revenues.

After the U.S. ran a balance-of-payments deficit in its international accounts for years, the exchange rate crisis arose last August when the U.S. stopped buying and selling gold at $35 an ounce. This, in effect, removed the tie between gold and the U.S. dollar, and forced all of the Western world's currencies to float.

RESOLVE THE CRISIS

The crisis was resolved when most of the major currencies were revalued upward and the U.S. agreed to devalue the U.S. dollar, setting it at 1.38 an ounce of gold instead of 1.35. The new U.S. official gold price of $38 an ounce, however, will not come formally into effect until legislation is passed by Congress.

Benson to Face B.C. Truckers

Finance Minister Edgar Benson will face B.C. truck loggers as part of the annual convention of independent loggers Jan. 11-14 in Vancouver.

With Benson on a panel discussing the economy will be Vancouver Province labor-management feature writer Jack Clarke and B.C. Labor Minister James Chabot. The panel is scheduled to take place at 2:30 p.m. Jan. 13 in the Fraser, Mackenzie and Thompson rooms of the Bayshore Inn.

The 29th annual convention of the Truck Loggers Association, this year's meetings will be oriented toward forest management, public aspects of the forest industry, accident control and taxation.

The official opening will be by former federal cabinet minister Paul Hellyer, of Action Canada, following a welcome by another former minister, William M. Hamilton, now president of Vancouver Board of Trade.

B.C. Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston will also be a panelist, dealing with the subject, Benefit of the Forest Industry to B.C., along with Ian Mahood, of Mahood, McKercher and Associates, and Les Reed, of F.I.C. Reed and Associates Ltd., at 2:15 p.m. Jan. 12.

Other notables taking part will include Roy F. Bennett, chief executive officer of the Ford Motor Co. of Canada

AB KENT - EDITOR

Provigo

Sales growth of 5 per cent resulted in net income 20.7 per cent higher in the 40 weeks ended Nov. 6, reports Provigo Inc., of Montreal.

The food and tobacco warehouse firm also had an extraordinary item, a carry-over of prior losses of a subsidiary, to produce net earnings of $1.7 million, up 24.1 per cent from $1.38 million a year ago.

Sales were $170.48 million compared with $162.4 million. Share earnings were 46.1 cents vs. 37.1 cents after the extraordinary item.

Hurtig

M. G. Hurtig Booksellers Ltd., of Edmonton, one of the largest retailers of books in Canada, has been sold to Harry Smith and Sons Ltd., a Vancouver book wholesaler.

The sale was for an undisclosed amount. The firm's three Edmonton outlets change hands at the end of January but will retain the Hurtig name and management.

Met Hurtig went into the book business 17 years ago with $1,000 and 300 square feet of office space, entering publishing in 1955.

Giant

A 22 per cent increase in ore reserves is reported by Giant Mascot Mines Ltd. at its nickel mine near Hope.

Proven ore is now placed at 1.68 million tons graded .8 per cent nickel and .4 per cent copper. Probable reserves in addition to proven have not been calculated yet.

New reserves have been established largely in the Climax zone, continuous from 3,425 feet to 2,850 feet, and the Cinaman zone from 3,223 feet to 3,075 feet. Drilling continues in both zones.

Bow

Operating net income of Bow Valley Industries Ltd., in the six months to Nov. 30 amounted to just over $1 million (17 cents a share) compared with a loss of $20,000 (seven cents) in the period a year earlier.

The figures include extraordinary items worth 10 cents in 1971 and 24 cents loss in 1970. Gross income for the period last year was $24.64 million against $20.5 million in 1970.

Husky

Husky Oil Operations Ltd., an Alberta company, wholly owned by Husky Oil Ltd., has taken over the assets and operations for exploration, production, refining and marketing of its parent.

Husky Oil Ltd. continues to head the overall organization in Canada and the U.S.

No staff changes are contemplated, and headquarters will be in the Calgary premises occupied by Husky Oil Ltd. until the end of 1972.

ICI

An amalgamation of two large U.S. chemical companies became effective this week to raise the standing of Imperial Chemical Industries Ltd., of London.

Ltd., and Carl Terzian, professional speaker, of Carl Terzian Associates, Los Angeles. About 1,500 members and associate members are expected to attend the convention, which ends with a banquet and dancing in the Showmart building, Pacific National Exhibition grounds. The association represents 25 per cent of B.C. coastal log production by 100 companies, or more than 1 billion board feet a year.

ICI America Inc., Stamford, Conn., merged into Atlas Chemical Industries Inc., Wilmington, Del., with the merged company known as ICI America Inc.

The newly-expanded firm is wholly-owned by ICI, London, and its headquarters will be Wilmington, the site of Atlas since its formation in 1912. There are seven divisions, from aerospace and explosives to agricultural and pharmaceutical.

Loomis

Record revenues of $19.8 million are reported by Loomis Corp. for the 12 months ended Oct. 31, up 23 per cent from $16 million in 1970.

Net income totalled $561,000 (70 cents a share), an increase of $125,200 from $435,800 (55 cents). After extraordinary items and tax, net income in 1971 was $615,000 (77 cents).

COMINCO ANNOUNCEMENT

R. HENDRICKS F.E. BURNET G.H.D. HOBBS

Robert Hendricks has been elected chairman and chief executive officer of Cominco Ltd., F.E. Burnet, president, and G.H.D. Hobbs, executive vice-president and a director of the company. These executive changes follow the retirement of W.S. Kirkpatrick as chairman and as a director, after almost forty-six years of distinguished service with the company.

Mr. Hendricks joined Cominco at Trail, B.C., in 1929. He was loaned to the Department of Munitions and Supply in 1941 and returned to Cominco in 1945. He moved to Montreal in 1947 to become assistant to the president. In 1956 he was made vice-president, sales. He became a director in 1958 and the next year was elected executive vice-president. Mr. Hendricks became president in 1966 and president and chief executive officer in 1969.

Mr. Burnet joined Cominco in 1936. After extensive experience in company mining operations in Canada and the United States, Mr. Burnet became vice-president and general manager of Cominco's U.S. subsidiary, Cominco American Incorporated, Spokane, Wash., in 1962.

He was elected president of that company in 1964 and chairman and chief executive officer in 1968. Mr. Burnet moved to Montreal in 1968 when he was appointed a vice-president of Cominco. He became vice-president at Vancouver in 1970 and, in April, 1971, he was elected executive vice-president and a director of Cominco.

Mr. Hobbs joined Western Steel Limited, Vancouver, in 1946 and was president of that company when it was acquired by Cominco in 1946. He was elected chairman of the board of Pacific Coast Terminals Co. Ltd. in 1967 and chairman and chief executive officer of Western Canada Steel in 1968, the year he was appointed Cominco's vice-president at Vancouver. Prior to his present position, Mr. Hobbs was vice-president, Pacific Region of Cominco. ***

CAPITAL GAINS TAX

What to do about it, now that it's here

Montreal Trust introduces new Investment Accounting and Safe Custody Services that can save you a lot of problems. And maybe some money.

If you own stocks or bonds, you will now be required to maintain an accurate, up-to-date set of records for Capital Gains Tax purposes and investment accounting will be needed for the proper day-to-day management of investment portfolios. This means that every time you trade a stock you will have to be aware of the tax consequences of your action. This detailed accounting will, for many people, prove to be complex and extremely time-consuming but complete records will be required when the time comes to file your tax return.

We are therefore introducing a special service for our clients, whereby all necessary documents and information are supplied by us once a quarter, or more often if required, in a concise, easy-to-read format. This will mean you are in the position to review your investment portfolio with the latest, most accurate information at your fingertips, and as a consequence, avoid paying more tax than is absolutely necessary.

If you would like more information on this new service, simply call Frank Portlock in Victoria at 386-2111.

Nixon Wanted Tough India Line, Document Reveals

WASHINGTON (WP) — Following is a typescript of the text of one of three secret documents made available to the Washington Post by syndicated columnist Jack Anderson describing a meeting of the U.S. national security council's Washington Special Action Group:

International security affairs. Memorandum for record. Subject: WSAG meeting on India-Pakistan.

Participants: Assistant to the president for national security affairs — Henry A. Kissinger.

Under secretary of state — John N. Irwin.

Director, Central Intelligence Agency — Richard M. Helms.

Deputy administrator (AID) — Maurice J. Williams.

Chairman, Joint Chiefs of Staff — Admiral Thomas H. Moorer.

Assistant secretary of state (NEA) — Joseph J. Sisco.

Assistant secretary of defense (ISA) — G. Warren Nutter.

Assistant secretary of state (IO) — Samuel Depalma.

Principal deputy assistant secretary of defense (ISA) — Armistead L. Selden, Jr.

Assistant administrator (AID-NEA) — Donald G. Macdonald.

Time and place: 3 December 1971, 1100 hours, situation room, White House.

Summary:

Reviewed conflicting reports about major action in the west wing. CIA agreed to produce map showing areas of East Pakistan occupied by India. The president orders hold on issuance of additional irrevocable letters of credit involving $99 million, and a hold on further action implementing the $72 million PLS 480 credit. Convening of security council meeting planned contingent on discussion with Pak ambassador this afternoon plus further clarification of actual situation in West Pakistan. Kissinger asked for clarification of secret special interpretation of March, 1959 bilateral U.S. agreement with Pakistan.

KISSINGER: I am getting hell every half hour from the president that we are not being tough enough on India. He has just called me again. He does not believe we are carrying out his wishes. He wants to tilt in favor of Pakistan. He feels everything we do comes out otherwise.

HELMES: Concerning the reported action in the west wing, there are conflicting reports. The Paks say the Indians are attacking along the border; but the Indian officials say this is a lie. In the east wing, the action is becoming larger and the Paks claim there are now seven separate fronts involved.

KISSINGER: Are the Indians seizing territory?

HELMES: Yes; small bit of territory, definitely.

SISCO: It would help if you could provide a map with a shading of the areas occupied by India. What is happening in the west — is a full-scale attack likely?

MOORER: The present pattern is puzzling in that the Paks have only struck at one three small airfields which do not house significant numbers of Indian combat aircraft.

HELMES: Mrs. Gandhi's speech at 1:30 may well announce recognition of Bangladesh.

MOORER: The Pak attack is not credible. It has been made during later afternoon, which doesn't make sense. We do not seem to have sufficient facts on this yet.

KISSINGER: Is it possible that the Indians attacked first, and the Paks simply did what they could before dark in response?

MOORER: This is certainly possible.

KISSINGER: The president wants no more irrevocable letters of credit issued under the $99 million credit. He wants the $72 million PLS 480 credit also held.

WILLIAMS: Word will soon get around when we do this. Does the president understand that?

KISSINGER: Time is his order; but I will check with the president again. If asked, we can say we are reviewing our whole economic program and that the granting of fresh aid is being suspended in view of conditions on the subcontinent. The next issue is the UN.

IRWIN: The secretary is calling in the Pak ambassador this afternoon, and the secretary leans toward making a U.S. move in the UN soon.

KISSINGER: The president is in favor of this as soon as we have some confirmation of this large-scale new action. If the UN can't operate in this kind of situation effectively, its utility has come to an end and it is useless to think of UN guarantees in the Middle East.

SISCO: We will have a recommendation for you this afternoon, after the meeting with the ambassador. In order to give the ambassador time to wire home, we could tentatively plan to convene the security council tomorrow.

KISSINGER: We have to take action. The president is blaming me, but you people are in the clear.

SISCO: That's ideal!

KISSINGER: The earlier draft statement for Bush is too even-handed.

SISCO: To recapitulate, after we have seen the Pak ambassador, the secretary will report to you. We will update the draft speech for Bush.

KISSINGER: We can say we favor political accommodation but the real job of the security council is to prevent military action.

SISCO: We have never had a reply either from Kosygin or Mrs. Gandhi.

WILLIAMS: Are we to take economic steps with Pakistan also?

KISSINGER: Wait until I talk with the president. He hasn't addressed this problem in connection with Pakistan yet.

SISCO: If we act on the Indian side, we can say we are keeping the Pakistan situation "under review."

KISSINGER: It's hard to tilt toward Pakistan if we have to match every Indian step with a Pakistan step. If you wait until Monday, I can get a presidential decision.

PACKARD: It should be easy for us to inform the banks involved to defer action inasmuch as we are so near the weekend.

KISSINGER: We need a WSAG in the morning. We need to think about our treaty obligations. I remember a letter or memo interpreting our existing treaty with a special India tilt. When I visited Pakistan in January 1962, I was briefed on a secret document or oral understanding about contingencies arising in other than the SEATO context. Perhaps it was a presidential letter. This was a special interpretation of the March 1959 bilateral agreement.

Blanket Relief

A Canadian armed forces' Boeing 707 left Vancouver International Airport Tuesday with a cargo of 7,500 blankets.

The blankets are earmarked for the Canadian International Development Agency, and will be stored at a UNICEF warehouse in Copenhagen until needed for field hospital use in the future.

The CIDA, a Canadian government relief agency, has sent the last of its stock of blankets to the Pakistan-India area.

The cargo of blankets was declared surplus some time ago and obtained by the CIDA.

The blankets have been in storage at CFB Esquimalt for more than a year awaiting disposal instructions.

SHE CARRIES ON

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — A long way from France, a vivacious young singer is keeping the Chevalier name in lights.

Straw hat in one hand, microphone in the other, Claire Chevalier, the late Maurice Chevalier's grandniece, belts out songs in a nightly show here in sock-it-to-'em style.

"There are some things that get in people's blood and never go away; that's how I would describe my uncle's style and songs," Claire, 27, said in an interview.

"When I need a happy song I sing one of his. They're so 'simpatico,'" she said in French-accented Portuguese.

Born in Marseille, Miss Chevalier has been travelling all over the world and singing since she was 17. Entertainer Maurice Chevalier, who died last week, was her grandfather's brother.

ONE OF FIRST official duties outside city hall performed by newly elected mayor Peter Pollen was to attend the opening of Salvation Army art exhibit Tuesday at provincial Museum. The show, marking organization's 90th birthday, is open until Monday. Viewing paintings with mayor is Mrs. Hugh Tilley.

Pepin Talks Airport Aid

TEL AVIV (Reuter) — A possible Canadian government investment in the development of Israel's international airport at Lydda was discussed here Monday between Israeli Transport Minister Shimon Peres and Canada's minister of commerce and industry, Jean-Luc Pepin.

Peres proposed that a group of Canadians take part in a corporate body to be established to draw up a master plan for Lydda airport, as well as to finance new passenger and freight terminals and electronic equipment for civil aviation.

Part of Christmas Stolen By the Great Snow Hater

Once upon a time, not so long ago, the first of the great snows of winter arrived. And it was a happy group of youngsters indeed who awakened one Saturday morning to find the entire countryside bathed in a mantle of white.

It was a dream come true for a number of people, especially children. It was "A White Christmas."

Besides, school was out for the vacation period, and what better way to spend a holiday than sliding down hilly slopes or, even better still, sleighriding and tobogganing on a downhill street? Wow!

There was a dandy area nearby, little traffic, even on good-weather days, and the curving roadway made for a sporty track. It was almost "lightning fast," not too slick for mom and dad, and the almost universal question was heard again: "Can we, Dad?"

The standard reply was "If you're careful, but watch out for cars."

Soon the street was literally alive with children, bundled up against the cold. Sleighs, hobsleds, toboggans, and even saucer-shaped sleds mysteriously emerged from dusty basements. Even venturesome parents turned out. (Have you been for a sleigh ride recently?)

Families who lived on the street were asked if they would, if possible, keep their cars in the driveways, or garages, or not use the street, a cul-de-sac. The uphill walk wasn't too demanding.

Sleds Hard for Tots to Control

In this way there would be less chance of injury to the children. After all, sleds are difficult to control at first, especially for the smaller tots, so why not give them a clear run? Besides, snow is usually short-lived, and there would be little inconvenience during the holiday period. If you needed a push, the youngsters would be obliged.

Most residents complied, and were very obliging. They were cautious, too, because after all the street was not officially blocked off for sleighriders, as is sometimes the case. But then, every street can't be sealed off, can it?

If the youngsters were having a ball so were some of the parents. But there still remained a problem. One car remained parked on the street. It was parked on the curve, and in a dangerous spot. It was feared a tobogganer might run into it, and be hurt.

But it was owned by the Great Snow Hater who also lived on the street. The car would remain, he said, and he would not park the car in the driveway, or move down the street.

The youngsters, although disappointed, took other measures. They accepted the Great Snow Hater's decree and they banked the snow near the car, so that the sleighs would pass by this obstacle. It worked, and the slide was open.

But the Great Snow Hater wasn't taking any chances. He didn't want to see his car hit by a speeding toboggan. So he erected a barrier of rocks and gravel around it. And if it deterred sleighing, tough! Youngsters shouldn't be sleigh-riding on streets anyway. It was against the law.

Tried Sweeping Sand Off Snow

So, the Great Snow Hater phoned the authorities. I want the hill sanded, he declared. The municipality obliged. A taxpayer is sometimes right. A truck was dispatched. The sanding job was completed. The driver had no choice.

The children complained, but to no avail. They even tried sweeping the sand from the street. Quick thinkers, these youngsters. But, alas, it wasn't too successful.

The Great Snow Hater had cast his spell of doom over the area. The sand and the thaw had done their work. The fun days were soon over.

Now the street is clear again and, oddly enough, the offending car is back in the driveway. But the sand and the gravel remain.

And if the great snows come again, so what? That's the thinking. So will the Great Snow Hater, and the sand truck. Obviously.

If you don't believe it, just ask the grinch who stole part of this Christmas from the kids.

Drop All Skiing Brundage Plan

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP) —

President Avery Brundage of the International Olympic Committee has suggested dropping all Alpine and Nordic skiing events from the Olympic schedule but staging them outside the official program at Sapporo next month.

The suggestion was made at a meeting in Chicago last week between Brundage and representatives of the International Ski Federation (FIS). FIS President Marc Hodler told a reporter today.

It followed repeated charges by Brundage that both Alpine and Nordic skiing were being commercialized and that leading skiers failed to meet the strict conditions of the new amateur code.

"I would regard such action as a discrimination of the entire ski sport," Hodler commented.

Hodler stressed, however, that the ultimate word is with the national associations that make up FIS. Earlier, these had announced plans to stage separate world championships, in either France or Austria in the spring in case Alpine skiing is dropped from the Olympics.

Griese Wins Grid Award

MIAMI (AP) — Quarterback Bob Griese, the former Purdue All-American who guided Miami Dolphins to the American Football Conference crown last Sunday, has been named winner of the Jim Thorpe Memorial Trophy as the outstanding player in professional football, a team spokesman announced Tuesday.

The five-year Dolphin veteran received the award after leading his National Football League club to a 10-3-1 season mark with post-season victories over Kansas City Chiefs, and Baltimore Colts to clinch the AFC title.

'Left-Out' Feeling Irks Howe

DETROIT (AP) — Gordie Howe has spiked a rumor that he is quitting his job as a vice-president of Detroit Red Wings. However, he said he hasn't felt "totally involved" with the team and hinted there may be friction between him and other front office executives.

Howe, reached at a Miami airport after he had met Tuesday with team owner Bruce Norris, said: "I guess I was a little too strong when I told a couple friends that I was going to Florida to see Bruce to see just what I was supposed to do for the hockey club. Probably that's how this thing got out of perspective."

NOT FUNNY to National Football League rivals are running backs of Miami Dolphins, shown striking classic pose as Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid. Sundance is 237-pound

Dr. Smythe, Ballard In Battle for Leafs

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Hugh Smythe said Tuesday he recently offered to buy out Harold Ballard, majority shareholder of Maple Leaf Gardens here.

The comment from Smythe, younger son of Conn Smythe, 76, who built the downtown Gardens 40 years ago, came as an internal struggle over control of the National Hockey League broke into the open.

"Harold wouldn't take to me," said Smythe, who became a vice-president after the death last October of his brother, former president Stafford Smythe. Ballard, former executive vice-president, was elected president.

On his part, Ballard said in an interview he rejected an offer two weeks ago.

"The offer was from a lawyer who said he was acting for a Mr. Quigley of Hamilton," he said. "The offer was for $35 a share, but I said I wouldn't take anything less than $50. I think the offer might have been made on behalf of a third party, perhaps for the Smythes."

ESTIMATES HOLDINGS

Ballard estimated his holdings at 264,000 shares. The Smythes are estimated to control slightly more than 250,000 shares.

Robert Quigley, unavailable for comment, operates the Quigley Construction Co. in Hamilton.

"I don't know any Quigley," Smythe said. "I approached Harold myself. He wouldn't listen, although the offer would have been in the $35 range and we would have kept him on as president."

Smythe did not identify his associates nor say who would finance his bid to gain control of the Gardens.

"But it would be wrong to speculate that my father is involved," he said.

The senior Smythe spends the winters in Palm Beach, Fla. Ballard said he owns "only about 2,000 shares of Gardens stock."

Conn Smythe still retains an office in the Gardens, has a secretary, a car and two private telephone lines.

Dr. Smythe, who practises medicine, does not have an office at the Gardens. He owns about 2,000 shares of stock while Stafford owned 348,110 shares in partnership with T. D. Jeffries, president of Victory Manufacturing Co.

"There was some doubt whether Stafford's estate would permit the family to retain his stock," Smythe said.

"There are heavy claims against it. A month ago the family thought we would have to sell but then the situation changed. We've got additional finances and intend to stay."

Ballard, an executor of Stafford Smythe's will, said: "There are succession duties of about $1.5 million against the estate. There are also charges for the court case over the income tax charge."

At the time of his death Smythe was fighting charges by the federal government that he evaded income tax on income of $279,000. Charges still are pending against Ballard of evasion of tax on $134,000.

A calculation of Smythe's assets when he died placed the gross estimate of his holdings at $5,653,695.

Day of Reckoning Enjoyed by Nats In Win Over Cats

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

There's always a day of reckoning, and goaltender Jim Rankin steered the Vancouver Nats to their big moment Tuesday at Memorial Arena: The Nats' 3-2 victory over Victoria Cougars can be considered an evening-up result.

And no one knows it better than Victoria winger Don Morrison.

The last time the two clubs squared off in a Western Canada Hockey League engagement, Morrison scored four times against Vancouver goaltending to power a 7-5 Cougar victory — Victoria's first on the road.

As 1,603 fans might testify, Morrison had the chances to score at least four more Tuesday. But Rankin wouldn't allow it, and the Nats came around for their first road triumph after 17 tries.

How sweet it is, says Charlie Hodge, who now has experienced two straight victories since replacing Alf Cadman as the Vancouver coach.

"I don't know what went on before, and I don't want to know," he said. "But these kids won two games because they wanted to play hockey."

The former National League goalie, who should know, admitted "Ranking helped," too.

DESERVED BETTER

Ranking took delight in frustrating the Cougars, who deserved better fate. The Vancouver netminder blocked only 27 shots compared to the 28 turned aside by Victoria's Darryl Fedorak. But the even total hides the degree of difficulty.

Rankin had to handle many more difficult chances.

Morrison's, for example.

Cougars' leading goal-getter with 18, Morrison had four great chances by the 12:45 mark of the first period. Another at the 11-minute mark in the second, and, finally, a last glorious one at the 18:57 mark of the third period.

All alone in front of Rankin, he stared the Vancouver goalie in the eye, bled a shoulder. Ranking wouldn't budge. Finally, Morrison shot. Rankin closed his pads on the puck and the door on Cougar hopes of going into overtime.

Newcomer Dean Magnus, with two great chances early in the second, and Gary Donaldson, on a clear-cut breakaway later in the same session, also fell victim to Rankin's robbery.

As it was, Magnus and Donaldson scored the Cougar goals. One by each wasn't enough.

POWER-PLAY FAIR

Don Harrison, defenceman Dennis Resch and Wayne Paulson connected for Vancouver, enough to lift the Nats out of the basement. Harrison and Paulson both scored while the Nats enjoyed an edge in manpower.

Rankin's play took some of the spotlight off Magnus and Reg Malinowski. Victoria's newest acquisitions who joined the Cougars less than 45 minutes before game time.

If there was any bright spot in the evening for Cougar Coach Fred Hucl, it came with the play of Magnus.

Magnus, very obviously, was the "sleeper" in the trade that brought the pair from Winnipeg in exchange for goalie Dave Maynard and forward Rod Loymachan. Besides scoring once and coming close on two other chances, Magnus showed several good moves that indicate the 18-year-old may be a useful performer.

STILL RECOVERING

Both Malinowski and Magnus are recovering from recent illness. Tuesday's skate was Malinowski's first since contracting flu on Dec. 27. Plus which, it must be remembered they started playing Tuesday's game at 11 p.m. Winnipeg time.

They met their new line-mates just before the game, but it still could have been a happier occasion except that other Cougars, as Hucl noted, "played flat."

"You can get away with one or two players having an off night. But when eight of your regulars go flat, you're in trouble. They were fighting the puck and just weren't sharp," said Hucl.

Cougars showed most of their flatness during power-play situations, a season-long failing.

It was the 11th one-goal loss of the season for the Cougars, who meet the Nats in a return bout, tonight at Kerrisdale Arena.

Centennials Upset Again

By The Canadian Press

Saskatoon Blades accomplished Tuesday what few other Western Canada Hockey League teams have been able to do.

For the second time in four nights they upset Calgary Centennials 2-1 and the result was a tightened race in each of the league's two divisions.

The Centennials had their first-place margin in the west reduced to a single point over Edmonton Oil Kings, who slipped past Flin Flon Bombers 4-3 in overtime.

The Blades, meanwhile, inched into second place in the east two points behind Regina Pats, who held on to first place with 3-2 victory over Winnipeg Jets.

COME FROM BEHIND

Saskatoon trailed the visiting Centennials 1-0 after the first period, but tied the game in the second and Lawrence Sacharuk rapped in the winner in the final 20 minutes.

Derek Black supplied Calgary's only goal and Murray Myers tied the game for the Blades in the second.

Edmonton's home-ice victory came when Terry Smith fapped in a rebound one minute and 44 seconds into overtime. It was the first time in league history the Oil Kings had not lost a regular-season game to the Bombers.

Flin Flon led 2-0 after the first period and 2-1 after 40 minutes.

Brian Ogilvie opened Edmonton's scoring and Don Kozak combined with Phil Russell to score the third-period tying goals. Ron Andruschuk trailed twice and Blaine Stoughton once for Flin Flon.

Rookie centre Dennis Sobchuk led the Pats with two goals in their victory over the visiting Winnipeg team.

Mike Wanchuk scored the other Regina goal while Jerry Butler and Garry Doerksen replied for the Jets.

Meanwhile, idle Medicine Hat Tigers learned Tuesday that player Jim McCrimmon has been suspended by the league for one game. Tom Fisher, executive secretary of the WCHL, said the suspension was imposed for incurring five game-misconducts.

Net Favorites Moving Along

SYDNEY (AP) — Evonne Goolagong of Australia and Briton Virginia Wade easily won their third-round women's singles matches to enter the quarter-finals of the New South Wales Open Tennis Championships today.

Top-seeded Miss Goolagong, 20, had no trouble defeating 15-year-old Diane Fromholtz of New South Wales 6-2, 6-2 on the White City grass courts dampened by heavy rain which delayed the start of play by four hours.

Miss Wade, the No. 2 seed, had an equally easy victory over another local player, Mrs. Elizabeth Craig, 6-1, 6-2.

Miss Goolagong and Miss Wade appear likely to reach the final, scheduled for Sunday.

Christmas Golf Fees Returned

Officials of the Victoria and District Golf Association announced Tuesday that all entry fees paid by local golfers for the annual Christmas Tree Tournament, cancelled because of snow on Dec. 27, have been returned to the players' separate clubs. Players may collect refunds from the secretary of their club.

Entry fees paid by out-of-town golfers were returned by mail.

High Price Being Paid For Progress in B.C.

"We are only beginning to understand that we have been paying a very high price for progress, and that the price is continuing to go up. In British Columbia, where economic development is heavily orientated towards the exploitation of natural resources, deterioration of the natural environment is one of the prices being exacted for the high standard of living we enjoy."

So states the introduction to "The Value of Fresh Water Sport Fishing in British Columbia," an independent research study sponsored by the fish and wildlife branch and completed by Pearce Bowden Economic Consultants Ltd.

The report goes on to add:

"All outdoor recreation activities suffer from the degradation of the environment but sport fishing is more vulnerable than most. Fish need clean water and clear spawning grounds to survive, but pulp mills, other industries and cities foul the water while hydroelectric dams and careless logging practices block stream beds. And all of these detract from the beauty of the natural setting which is a vital part of the angler's recreation experience."

Thus a paradox is created in which the very processes that produce the time and money to go fishing "threaten the supply and quality of sport fishing opportunities."

The authors of the study go on to attack the problem of separating strict economic values of fresh water fishing from those intangible benefits known to all fishermen.

"It is easy to sympathize with the view that placing an economic value on something like sport fishing is somehow repugnant, especially since fishing is valued in no small part precisely because it is outside the market place," says the report.

"Yet market value is the measure which industrial resource users employ to support their demands over those of recreationists. Anglers must be prepared to challenge the exploitation of valuable fishing waters by also specifying, in dollar terms, the value of recreational fishing."

Several of the inferences drawn out of data compiled from the 1969-70 season are surprising.

Our province's non-tidal sports fishery provided over three million fisherman days of sport for 182,100 residents, 22,662 out-of-province Canadians as well as 73,118 non-Canadians during the 1969-70 season.

Broken down further, we find that 85 per cent of this angling effort came from residents while non-Canadians accounted for 10 per cent.

Non-Canadians, however, were the most successful fishermen with an average of 5.2 fish per day compared to 3.3 fish per day for out-of-province Canadians and 2.4 fish per day for resident anglers.

In getting down to the economic nitty-gritty, the report states that residents spent $53 million on their pursuit of fish while non-residents forked out $12 million. Out of the amount coming from non-residents, a cool $1.8 million came back to residents as net benefits in the form of business profits and government revenue from licence sales, profits on liquor sales, the gasoline tax and sales tax.

The best estimate of the total value to residents of the B.C. fresh-water sports fishery during 1969-70 was $17,745,000 or $6.50 per angler day.

And the total value "of the benefits to British Columbians of fresh water sport fishing is the sum of the benefits from fishermen's spending and the value of free fishing opportunities. In 1969-70, this value ranged between $15,408,000 and $29,058,000, with the best estimate being $19,503,000."

Converting this last estimate to a discounted value for all of 1970 produced a total of $395 million.

And that figure isn't to be brushed aside lightly! Another item of interest gleaned from questionnaires, which were used as a basis for some of the report estimates, concerned the opinions of resident anglers on the prospects of fishing in B.C.

"They feel that the fishing is declining because of pollution and because of overcrowding on many popular sites. They would like to see the government do more to protect and rehabilitate natural spawning grounds and to continue the programs of course fish control and hatchery production of game fish. As one step toward reducing congestion, resident fishermen would like to see non-residents discouraged from fishing here."

We must add, however, that the latter thought is an overall opinion — which was reversed in a number of tourist-conscious areas.

So there you have it! More fodder for the cannon.

World Hockey Group Suffers Legal Setback

NEW YORK (AP) — The new World Hockey Association, which plans to begin operations next October, may have to open without a New York franchise.

Neil Shayne, a Long Island lawyer who held the option to operate a WHA team in New York, Tuesday lost a bid to compel Nassau County to give playing dates in its new Coliseum to his team.

Judge Daniel G. Albert of the New York Supreme Court dismissed Shayne's suit, saying the county was within its rights to give the hockey franchise to whomever it desired.

The National Hockey League added a Long Island franchise last month and awarded the club to Roy Boe, owner of New York Nets of the American Basketball Association.

Shayne's option on operating a New York WHA team expired Monday, his deadline for providing the league with playing dates and an arena.

Last week, Shayne sold WHA rights for New Jersey, part of the area he controls under his WHA franchise, to "a group of hockey fans."

The Jersey group may play in the WHA next season, operating out of the Cherry Hill arena, which seats 4500.

Shayne, meanwhile, is negotiating with the WHA, hoping to place a franchise in New York next year when a rink may be available in Brooklyn or Queens.

Bucks Snap Hex, Trounce Knicks

By The Associated Press Milwaukee Bucks, defending National Basketball Association champions, may finally have overcome the jinx that has plagued them against New York Knicks.

At least, the Bucks gave an indication of it Tuesday night, beating New York 121-100.

For the Bucks, who dropped a 101-99 decision to New York Monday night after leading by 15 points, it was only their fifth victory over the Knicks in 24 meetings — including playoffs over the last four seasons. But the 21-point margin was the worst drubbing they had ever given New York.

Kareem Jabbar and Oscar Robertson, the Bucks' dynamic duo, scored 36 and 22 points, respectively. Walt Frazier was high for the Knicks with 21 points.

Other scores:

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION Houston 119, Seattle 110; Philadelphia 127, Detroit 127; Phoenix 112, Chicago 108; Golden State 112, Buffalo 84; Atlanta 93, Portland 91.

Lowly Kings Show New Sting

Widing's Pair Helps Trip Seals 4-1

By The Canadian Press.

Los Angeles Kings have been doormats in the National Hockey League's West Division for most of the season, but their play in recent games is a warning to other NHL teams they don't intend to remain in that lowly position for long.

The Kings scored three goals in the first period Tuesday night and coasted to a 4-1 victory over California Golden Seals in the league's only scheduled game.

The victory gave the Kings six wins in their last 11 games, after a slow start in which they won only five games of their first 28. Although still in last place in the West with 23 points, the win moved the Kings within striking distance of a possible playoff spot. They are only seven points away from third-place California.

Juha Widing scored two goals, his 13th and 14th of the season, to pace the Kings over the Seals. Widing, benched earlier in the season by coach Fred Glover because of his poor play, is credited with much of the team's scoring punch lately.

Since his return to the lineup, he has caught fire, scoring seven goals and three asists in his last eight games. He leads the club in scoring with 14 goals and 12 assists for 26 points.

When he connected Tuesday night for his first goal after 33 seconds of play, he equalled a club record of scoring a point for the sixth consecutive game. It is the third straight game the Kings have scored in the first minute of play, and Widing has scored two of those, and assisted on the third.

Bob Berry and defenceman

Gillie Marotte scored the other first-period goals to give the Kings the 3-0 lead and Widing got his second goal late in the third period.

Gerry Pinder, who deflected a shot from defenceman Carol Vadnais, got California's only goal, spoiling a shutout bid by Los Angeles goalie Rogatien Vachon.

The Kings, who haven't enjoyed a 3-0 lead in a few seasons, relied on some outstanding forechecking in the first period to keep the Seals off balance.

"We're not used to a three-goal lead," said Glover, "and we had to slow down for the remaining two periods."

The Seals, meanwhile, have run into problems after a fast start. They have won one game and tied three in their last nine games.

Backyard Prospect Signed by Alouettes

MONTREAL (CP) — Billy Poole, 25, a native of suburban Lachine and top quarterback at Boston University in 1971, has signed with Montreal Alouettes, the Eastern Football Conference club announced Tuesday.

Poole, six-feet two-inches tall and 185 pounds, started all but one game for Boston U. last season.

A former player with North Shore Rugby Football Union junior conference, Poole will battle with incumbents Sonny Wade and Jim Chasey for the No. 1 quarterback spot.

Both Wade and Chasey are imports, while Poole will be classified a Canadian in the contentious 18-14 Canadian-import ratio each Canadian Football League club must maintain.

Poole had an outstanding career at Boston. In 1970, he set a school record for most yards gained in the air during one game, despite a 51-17 loss to Delaware.

Green Bay's 'Battering Ram' Easy Winner of Rookie Prize

NEW YORK (AP) — John Brockington of Green Bay Packers, who shattered the National Football League rushing record for the first-year running backs by grinding out 1,105 yards, was named Tuesday the NFL Offensive Rookie of the Year by The Associated Press.

The 225-pounder from Ohio State, who became only the fourth rookie in pro football history to gain 1,000 yards, was the overwhelming selection, amassing 43 1/2 of the 60 votes cast by a panel of sports writers and sports casters.

Quarterback Jim Plunkett of New England State Patriots, the top vote-getter in the American Conference, was runner-up with 14 1/2 while running backs Vic Washington of San Francisco 49ers and John Riggins of the New York Jets picked up one vote apiece. Washington played in Canada with the Ottawa Rough Riders and British Columbia Lions before joining the 49ers.

Four times this season Brockington rushed for more than 100 yards, including a 30-carry, 142-yard showing in Green Bay's 17-14 victory over Chicago Bears Nov. 7.

Brockington's brutal battering for extra yards, rather than breakaway explosiveness enabled him to lead all National Conference rushers, topping runner-up Steve Owens of Detroit Lions by 70 yards and falling just 28 short of league-leading Floyd Little of Denver Broncos.

Brockington rolled up his 1,105 yards in 216 carries for a 5.1-yard-per-rush average. His longest run from scrimmage covered 52 yards and he scored four touchdowns.

His output bettered by nine yards the rookie record set in 1961 by Cookie Gilchrist of Buffalo Bills, who played in the Canadian Football League with the Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Toronto Argonauts. The other first-year 1,000-yarders were Cincinnati's Paul Robinson with 1,023 in 1968 and Beattie Feathers of Chicago with 1,004 back in 1934.

Tote-Board Proposal Pays Off Handsomely

NORTHVILLE, Mich. (AP) — Stan Naramore, a student at Albion College, used the tote board of the Jackson at Northville Raceway to propose marriage to Linda Atkin of Madison, Ohio, Monday night.

Naramore, who sought a unique way of asking his true love's hand, asked Raceway president Leon Slavin if he could employ the services of the board. Slavin agreed.

So, just before the third race the message went up on the infield board before several thousand racing fans:

"Linda, I love you. Let's work in double harness. Will you marry me?" Signed, Stan.

As soon as the race had been run, Linda used the board to reply: "Yes."

When the evening's racing was over, the Racetrack Romeo and his bride-to-be were treated to a champagne dinner by the management. No one suggested, or even hinted, that it was a first bride party but Slavin offered the use of the track for the wedding. The offer was declined with thanks but there was no information on where the wedding would be held, or even on when it would be held.

Asked why he had proposed at the track, Naramore replied that he and Linda had gone to the track on their first date, three years ago, and it seemed appropriate to mark the occasion by taking the final step there.

Hotelmen Surprised

Glen Moffat pumped in all of his six points during the overtime session Tuesday night to help Independents to a 94-90 upset win over front-running Hotel Douglas in one of two Victoria Senior "B" Men's Basketball League games at Highrock Junior High School.

In the other encounter, Price and Smith (nee Robertson's) nipped Restoration Services, 57-54.

Hotel Douglas led 47-41 at halftime but Independents bounced back in the second half to knot the score 82-82 before the clock ran out in regulation time.

Bob Burrows, the league scoring leader last season, seems to be taking charge again. Burrows paced Independents with 40 points while Chris Hall supplied back-up power with 18 points.

Alex Brayden paced Price and Smith with 18 points.

ALONG THE HOCKEY TRAIL

Curling, anyone?

It's getting to the stage of the season when stakes are great and the rock-throwers get serious.

There's a run of the usual club-bonspiels, but greatest importance is attached to playdowns that open doors to provincial and, hopefully, national finals.

Thus the spotlight focuses on the Racquet Club and Esquimalt's Sports Centre this weekend.

Vancouver Island's mixed final draws eight rinks to the Racquet Club. The magic number is four because that is how many will survive the three-round, double-knockout affair in order to advance to the Pacific Coast Curling Association final scheduled Feb. 11-12 at Victoria Club.

Two draws will be played Saturday (at 2 and 9 p.m.) and one on Sunday (10 a.m.).

The eight Island finalists — four from the south and four from the north zone — are four-somes skipped by Esquimalt's Harvey-Thomson; Lyle

Women's, Mixed Playoffs at Weekend

Garraway and Don Mathewson, both of the Racquet Club; Keith Dagg of Victoria; Harry Whittam and Harry Karst, both of Nanaimo; and Chuck Perry and B. Ballance, both of Comox.

Five girls' rinks and 16 ladies' quartets will open play Friday at Esquimalt in the South Island distaff playdowns. Additional draws Saturday and the windup rounds Sunday will declare two Island finalists in each division.

The scheduling of the women's and mixed playdowns on the same weekend has irked women curlers, many of whom were forced to choose between the mixed or the ladies' playdowns, and not both in past years.

Two surviving rinks from the women's competition will advance to the Island final Jan. 21-23 at Comox Valley. The zone winner gains a berth in the coast playdowns at Vancouver Curling Club, Jan. 28-30, from where one rink will move on to the provincial championship at Dawson Creek, Feb. 5-8.

The girls' Island winner will advance directly to the B.C. playdowns scheduled for Williams Lake next month.

SCHOOLGIRL
7:00 p.m. — Kathy Taylor (RC) vs. Bonnie Harper (D); Crystal Aylesworth (E) vs. Pat Becker (P); Bye: C. McIntosh (VCC).

7:00 p.m. — Vera McKown (E) vs. Fran Hodge (LC); Lois Bishop (VCC) vs. June Randall (RC); Mary Harper (D) vs. Alyce Blom (D).

Key: LC—Lake Cowichan; RC—Racquet Club; VCC—Victoria Curling Club; P—Playland; D—Duncan; E—Esquimalt.

Island seniors will swing into play Jan. 21-23 at Victoria Club with a new format. The over-50 curlers (who must have an aggregate rink age of 210) will declare Island representatives at the one event, rather than starting at the club level and moving into the south and north zone finals before reaching the Island playdowns.

LOOSE STRAWS: Consols (men's) playdowns get started Jan. 14-16 with the North Island final at Port Alberni and the southern playoff at Duncan.

A total of 26 rinks have entered the inaugural Esquimalt seniors' bonspiel, Jan. 11-14, and Sports Centre officials are hoping for at least six more entries to round out the starting field to an equitable 32. Esquimalt's regular men's 'spiel' goes Jan. 24-30 while Racquet Club ladies expect a full field for their rock-fest Jan. 20-23. Other January bonspiel dates around the Island include Qualicum (men), Jan. 20-23 and, of course, Duncan's men's 'spiel', which starts with a limit entry this Thursday under the following draw:

Home Re Takes Of

Home Recipe Plan Takes Off Ugly Fat

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drugstore and ask for Naran. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoonsful twice a day as needed and follow the Naran Reducing Plan.

alender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

FDR Wanted Ireland to Cut Ties With Axis CUTBACK PLANNED

LONDON (AP) — President Franklin D. Roosevelt wanted to put pressure on neutral Ireland to break relations with the Axis during the Second World War and lease bases to the Allies, but Britain persuaded him not to, fearing it would revive arguments over the island's partition.

Secret British documents of the war years, now made public, show that in 1943 Roosevelt suspected Germany, Italy and Japan were behind a pre-war resurgence of the banned Irish Republican Army, which still is fighting to end partition.

The documents include a tough letter Roosevelt proposed sending to Ireland's prime minister at the time, Eamon De Valera.

It said Britain and the United States were sustaining Ireland's economy, even though their ships lacked the extra protection that bases in the republic could give them.

Roosevelt said Americans "feel a sense of grievance, and that the presence in Dublin of German, Japanese and Italian diplomats 'still further weighs down the balance of neutrality in favor of our enemies.'"

The proposed letter also warned De Valera of Axis subversion.

"The recrudescence and mysterious financing of the banned IRA in 1938" and the capture of Axis agents carrying large sums of money "point to such a conclusion," he said.

Roosevelt's letter asked for bases and the expulsion of Axis representatives. It hinted that a refusal would be regarded as unfriendly and could mean Ireland would be passed by when the United States poured money into crippled Europe at the end of the war.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Peace Corps has started plans to drop about half its 8,000 overseas volunteers in the wake of congressional approval of an appropriations bill far lower than requested.

Joseph A. Blatchford, director of the agency which oversees the Peace Corps, ordered Tuesday preparation for dropping about 4,000 workers in 55 countries.

Blatchford took the action, it was understood, because Congress not only refused to appropriate the $82 million the Nixon administration requested for the program but cut funds to a level one official said was "just one step above putting us out of business altogether."

Court to Test Minister Order

MOOSOMIN, Sask. (CP) —

A decision by Education Minister Gordon MacMurchy exonerating a teacher of a charge of gross misconduct, will be tested in the courts.

The Moosomin School Unit Board, which summarily fired Margaret Gordon Oct. 4 for allegedly allowing her Grade 9 class to read a sex story, met Tuesday night and instructed its legal counsel to take the matter to court.

A committee of inquiry was set up by MacMurchy following the firing and Tuesday the education minister directed that the misconduct charge be dropped. He also instructed that Mrs. Gordon's dismissal on those grounds be set aside.

Doug Fyke, school board chairman, said members were unanimous in their decision to fight the minister's order.

"The board considers the reports of two members of the committee on which MacMurchy based his decision, could not possibly be consistent with the law," Fyke said.

EVIDENCE

"Every bit of evidence presented at the inquiry clearly established, in the opinion of the board, that Mrs. Gordon acted within the legal definition of gross misconduct."

The 24-year-old graduate of University of Saskatchewan who was in her second year of teaching in Moosomin, 140 miles east of Regina, was dismissed after parents complained she had allowed students to read a copy of the underground Vancouver newspaper, Georgia Straight. The copy contained an article describing the sexual experience of a young girl.

SCHOOL ACT

The section of the School Act under which Mrs. Gordon was fired doesn't provide appeal procedures but she asked MacMurchy to intervene and he set up a three-man inquiry.

The inquiry report wasn't made public although MacMurchy said one member dissented from it. The members were Dr. Ken Glenn of Moose Jaw, Sally Coates of Regina and Laurie Burrows of Saskatoon.

Following MacMurchy's announcement, school board Secretary-treasurer John Jackson said he didn't believe the community would be too anxious to see Mrs. Gordon teaching again.

He said one or two parents had threatened to withdraw their children from school if she was allowed to return.

SPECIAL NUMBER FOR ALBERTA RCMP

EDMONTON (CP) — RCMP in Alberta have set up a special telephone system which will enable nearly anyone in the province to reach an RCMP officer with one telephone call.

The system, announced today, went into effect Jan. 1. It was set up after RCMP had studied similar ones used by the Ontario Provincial Police and by the RCMP in British Columbia and Manitoba.

By dialling an operator and asking for ZEnith 50000, anyone who does not live within the Edmonton, Calgary, Red Deer, Peace River, Banff and Lethbridge exchange areas can be put in touch with the nearest detachment. Persons living in those exchange areas can reach detachments with a local call.

An RCMP spokesman who said the system is designed to be used under any circumstances, not just emergencies, said it will allow the force to "do away with our smaller detachments" and still provide protection in rural areas.

Store Fined $300 For Misleading Ad

WINNIPEG (CP) — Dominion Stores Ltd., was fined $300 Tuesday in provincial magistrate's court after pleading guilty to a charge of misleading advertising in connection with a special detergent offer at three city stores.

Federal Crown Attorney Hersh Wolch told court that between last June 12 and 24 the company advertised a five-pound box of detergent for $1.91, on which were the words: "price marked reflects one pound free — buy five pounds for four."

The standard five-pound box of the same detergent on adjacent shelves also was offered for $1.91.

Following a complaint, members of the combines investigation branch went to the stores and interviewed officials, but returned the following day to find no action had been taken, Wolch said.

He said six other Dominion stores in the city either did not take part in the special or had the correct price — $1.51 — marked on the box.

Defence lawyer Alan MacInnes said the special offer was made by the manufacturer, but a mistake had been made at the stores in pricing the goods. He could not understand why the price had not been changed, following the complaints.

"There is no excuse, Dominion Stores admits it," he said.

White, Blue Plates

EDMONTON (CP) — Motor vehicle licence plates in Alberta this year will be white on blue and will go on sale March 1, the department of highways announced today. The 1971 plates were white on green.

A suggestion that the province follow British Columbia's lead by implementing aluminum plates has been rejected so Albertans will continue to receive steel plates.

Farmers To Unite

REGINA (CP) — Delegates to the 22th annual meeting of the Saskatchewan Federation of Agriculture Tuesday endorsed a proposed new farm organization that would unite all farmers in the province.

Association officials indicated that a more aggressive selling of the idea would wait until perhaps the fall of 1972. By then, all the commodity groups which make up the existing association would have had a chance to meet and formally endorse the new organization.

Drug Centre Closes

EDMONTON (CP) — T.R.U.S.T., the city's drug crisis centre, closed its doors permanently last weekend because, said its organizers, "it was no longer relevant to the present drug scene."

"Essentially we were only baby-sitting kids on drugs and that's not the answer," said David Gladders, the former co-ordinator of the eight-man staff. "It didn't do anything to really help the kids and it was only a band-aid approach to the social problem."

Director Named

WINNIPEG (CP) — Victor Martens, secretary and director of administration for the Canadian Grain Commission, will be the first director of the new Canadian Grains Institute, it was announced Tuesday.

The announcement by the institute's provisional board of directors said Martens, 51, will be responsible for organization, selection and development of an instructional program.

TENSION MOUNTS BETWEEN TWO YEMENS

SANAA, Yemen (Reuter) — Tension on the remote mountainous border between the two Yemens is mounting amid a paradox—the Soviet Union furnishes military assistance and advisers to both sides.

No one really expects a full-scale war to break out in the rugged, southwest corner of the Arabian peninsula, the land reputed to have been ruled once by the legendary Queen of Sheba. But the danger of fighting is there.

The present dispute is not directly between the neighbors, the northern Yemen Arab Republic and the People's Democratic Republic of Yemen—commonly called South Yemen.

The odd confrontation arises because South Yemen's

Marxist government based in Aden is busily engaged in putting down rebels who are said to make use of the territory to the north—the Yemen Arab Republic.

And the northern government here in Sanaa has become increasingly exasperated at alleged border incursions from the south against the dissidents.

Sanaa has warned the South Yemen authorities to call a halt to these or face military counter action.

Sources say the most serious incident was in October, when there was a two-day armored thrust by about 4,000 troops from the south that is said to have penetrated about 25 miles inside North Yemen.

The chief significance of the operation lay in its size and in usually reliable reports that it was co-ordinated by a high-ranking Russian officer from a forward command base near the border.

The armed forces of north and south both use Soviet equipment and have Soviet advisers working with them, although the Russian presence has been steadily reduced in North Yemen since the end of the civil war.

The Soviet Union and other Communist countries are more firmly entrenched in South Yemen. They are assisting a Marxist National Liberation Front regime that came to power when Britain gave the territory—composed of the colony of Aden and some Arab sultanates—independence at the end of 1967.

MANY DRUGS 'USELESS'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Acknowledging it has failed to enforce laws regulating non-prescription drugs, the U.S. federal government announced a sweeping review Tuesday which could ban some familiar home remedies, modify others and curb "indefensible" advertisements for even those that win approval.

The federal Food and Drug Administration cited as "cause for concern" — and perhaps a harbinger of future findings — a study of 420 non-prescription drugs by the National Academy of Sciences National Research Council. Only one-fourth of them were rated effective, the FDA said.

"The FDA is concerned that many present formulations do not have the claimed effect, have inadequate instructions for effective use by the consumer, or are promoted in deceptive and indefensible ways," FDA commissioner Charles Edwards said.

Non-prescription drugs are those sold "over the counter" without prescription and the FDA's 26 categories include mouthwashes, laxatives, antiperspirants, sunburn lotions, vitamin-mineral products, dandruff removers, hemorrhoid salves, sleeping pills, cough medicines, vomit inducers, toothpastes, contraceptives, and menstrual products.

"All too often basically good products with long and useful histories are being promoted in deceptive and indefensible ways," Edwards said. He said the FDA program would help resolve "the frustrations of a public besieged with claims and counter-claims, with testimonials and with doubtful assertions of comparability."

Edwards said the Federal Trade Commission, which regulates deceptive advertising, had promised to use the FDA's rules as a basis for action against errant drug advertisers. In some cases Edwards said he would recommend to the FTC that a drug manufacturer be forced to run "corrective" ads advising the public of past deceptions.

Aspirin Users File $1.5M Ad Lawsuit

DETROIT (AP) — A $1.5 million suit has been filed in U.S. district court charging the makers of Bayer Aspirin, the American Medical Association, and the American Broadcasting Co. with conspiring to deceive the public with false advertising claims.

Also named as defendants were Detroit television station WXYZ and an unidentified advertising agency.

The AMA is charged with publishing false claims that Bayer aspirin is superior to other, less expensive brands of aspirin.

The aspirin maker Sterling Drugs, Inc., the advertising agency and the broadcasting organizations are accused of publicizing the AMA claims "knowing them to be untrue."

The suit was filed Monday on behalf of all aspirin users by lawyer John Toomey of Ann Arbor, Mich.

Union Fails In Bennett Bargain Bid

VANCOUVER (CP) — The B.C. government Employees Union Monday lost a court bid to bargain directly with Premier Bennett and his cabinet instead of with the civil service commission.

Mr. Justice James MacDonald upheld a submission of the attorney-general that the commission is the personnel arm of the government and the union must make its representations to it.

Commenting on the decision, John Fryer, the union's general secretary, said that a decision has not yet been made on whether to appeal the ruling. However, he added that the union is not upset over it "because it doesn't do us any harm."

Ambulance Crashes

WINNIPEG (CP) — A 53-year-old Gimli, Man., woman was injured Monday afternoon when the ambulance in which she was being transported to hospital was involved in a two-vehicle crash.

Lena Pelluck was being transported to Winnipeg General Hospital from the hospital in Gimli, 50 miles north of Winnipeg, in an Interlake ambulance when the collision took place three blocks from the Winnipeg hospital. Mrs. Pelluck is reported in good condition with neck and chest injuries.

ENGINE MAKER FACES HUGE BOEING CLAIM

SEATTLE (AP) — The Boeing Co. has filed a claim for about $94 million with the United Aircraft Corp. for early "deficiencies" in the engine which powers the 747 superjet, the Seattle Times said Monday.

The Times said Boeing had lodged claims last year but recently submitted a detailed statement to United Aircraft, parent company of Pratt and Whitney Aircraft, builder of the JT9D engine.

Boeing spokesman Pete Bush said Boeing submitted an "informal" report to United Aircraft about a year ago stating that the engines did not live up to expectations.

United Aircraft chairman William Gwinn said in a letter to stockholders that the Boeing claim was being reviewed in the light of a counter-claim which United could bring against Boeing.

Women's Lib in Japan —How Papa-San Blew It

You can always trust a good reporter to get right to the heart of a subject—the nitty and the gritty, no less. Not surprisingly, my old friend Jack Wasserman has demonstrated it again in his three-part CBC television documentary on modern Japan. Good for you, Jack!

What Wass has brought back from the not-so-mysterious east is the conclusive, terribly depressing evidence of the decline and fall of the last of the men's worlds, that best of all possible worlds for the male ego and psyche soon to be but a cherished memory.

I suppose we shouldn't be all that surprised. Since Japan began to rise, Datsun-like, from the ashes of the atomic bombs, her capacity for imitating the best (and sometimes the worst) of our occidental society has thrust her into the forefront of the industrial nations. It's been a yeast ferment, for better than 25 years; that was sure to bring profound changes to a traditional way of life.

What could be more predictable, then, than the inevitability that the relationship between the sexes should be particularly vulnerable? While the emerging tycoons of Japan were looking inescapably to the western world for designs to emulate, millions of lovely, almond eyes were looking yearningly for a feminist way of life to emulate. The result has been a sexual revolution, an outward transition from the kimono to the mini-skirt, even more dramatic in what's hidden from the eye. In the wildest dreams of the North American women liberationists there could have been no more awesome victory, yet it was won entirely without bloodshed.

Wasserman documents in detail the demise of the geisha, the very symbol of that way of life once so beautifully rigged for the male. Jack had on camera, in fact, a real-life geisha and it was like seeing the last of the Peregrine Falcons. It's a breed so in danger of extinction, indeed, that only last week the National Geisha Association wistfully announced emergency plans for the recruitment of young, refined ladies willing to undergo the rigorous training of a profession dedicated entirely to making life more pleasant for the Japanese man. The initial response, it would appear, is, "No way, Charlie-san."

The geisha has been on the way out since Japan's defeat. In those austerity days immediately after the great humiliation the Japanese businessman, her traditional client, was staying home with mom and the kids. The occupation force of American troops, too, caused many of the ladies to slip into less piquant, better-paying roles. Still, a few have kept to the tradition.

Since they've no counterpart in the western world their role has always been misunderstood. It is really quite simple and altogether delightful. They were not the playthings of the Japanese male — hanky panky was absolutely out — but simply an ornament in their dull and driving lives.

I saw them in action one memorable evening in a Hiroshima teahouse when I was the guest of some of that city's leading lights on the 10th anniversary of the dropping of The Bomb. These exquisite, kimono-clad young women performed three functions, each with consummate skill and gaiety. They graciously served our food and drink. They sang and danced beautifully. Finally, perhaps most importantly, they laughed, listened and adroitly manoeuvred the conversation in the most pleasant channels.

I came away with the impression that I'd seen hospitality elevated to an art form and, in fact, as Wasserman pointed out, that's precisely what it is since the true geisha is trained from girlhood to be the hostess with the mostest. It simply never crossed their minds — and there were few if any militant liberationists around to plant the idea — that giving enjoyment to men might somehow be degrading.

The gentlemen of Hiroshima, being traditionalists of the old school, were quite genuine in their belief that this was the way things ought to be and had no awareness whatsoever that they were, so to speak, cooking their own goose. Japanese men generally, in those days before the roof saved in, were mystically convinced that their wives were perfectly content, and always would be, to fill the time-honored role of faithful devotion, a serenity so complete that it was not uncommon for a wife to join her husband in suicide.

In that man's world the average woman's life was one of drudgery, child-bearing and obedience. That was the price to be paid for the security of a respectable marriage, more often than not arranged by the parents. There was no social life with her husband as we know it. The teahouse was the place for entertaining. It was strictly a stag affair. The Japanese man was forever impressing foreigners with the practicality of the arrangement. Paradise, he would tell you, was living in an American-style house with Chinese cooking and a Japanese wife. He truly believed, poor sap, that it would be ever thus.

The female revolt that has swept those islands in the last 10 years was obviously ordained to everyone but the Japanese male. Something had to give. It could have been a gradual process if the men had compromised, had employed the tactics of the rear guard action as we occidentals have so cunningly employed them. But the Japanese men were either too busy or too intransigent and the society that was toiled for them was crumbling.

Wasserman tells me the evidence is everywhere. Women's liberation groups abound. Girls are crowding into the universities and the business offices, relentlessly in pursuit of full equality. Women are even entering the political scene. And in the sanctity of the home the housewife is fast discarding the confining kimono. The geisha, herself, is becoming extinct for the simple reason that the Japanese housewife has put her dainty foot down; Papa-san will take her to the tea-house or dam-damn well stay at home.

In retrospect, it seems astonishing that the Japanese man, with his genius for absorbing and improving on the concepts of the western culture, failed to learn his lesson, to wit: You do not stand up to the feminist winds of change, Papa-san, you lean with them.

Strike Vote Set at St. Joseph's

A strike vote will be taken Jan. 19 at St. Joseph's Hospital among 400 members of the Hospital Employees Union, it was learned today.

The hospital is one of a number at which HEU is taking strike votes in its dispute with the B.C. Hospitals Association, representing 73 hospitals, over a new contract.

Union officials said earlier strike votes would be held at selected hospitals, including one in Victoria, but they declined to identify the hospital.

HEU also represents employees at Royal Jubilee, St. Mary's, Mount St. Mary and Queen Alexandra Solarium, in Greater Victoria.

Negotiations between HEU, with 10,500 members in B.C., and the BCHA collapsed after a government-ordered ceiling of 6.5 per cent on wage and fringe benefits increases in 1972.

WHAT DO YOU DO when it's a raw winter's day, the water's so cold it hurts your toes and all those tourists with their sandwich crusts are in Florida? If you're a local cormorant or gull, you rest yourself on a boom log at Elk Lake and reminisce about the good old days.

Few Teachers Leave BCTF

Final figures released today show that only five of the 1,400 teachers in Greater Victoria have decided to opt out of the B.C. Teachers' Federation.

Great Victoria Teachers' Association spokesman John Sitwell said today the figures are "a very strong show of force" for the federation.

Through government legislation in 1971, the "closed shop" of the BCTF was opened up, allowing for voluntary membership in the organization. Previously membership was mandatory for all B.C. teachers.

Asked if he thought the government move had made teachers defensive about their organization, Sitwell said:

"It may be that teachers are defensive but this is still a pretty strong show of solidarity."

It made teachers find reasons for joining the organization.

Sitwell said there should be more participation in organization affairs now that teachers have joined the BCTF on their own accord.

He also said the BCTF will have a more meaningful voice in education, especially in dealing with individual school boards, since almost 100 per cent of the province's teachers have decided to join on their own.

The provincial figures for membership in the BCTF were "in the very high 90s," Sitwell said.

Submarine Fighter Honored

A presentation aboard Canada's top destroyer-escort in anti-submarine warfare took place on HMCS Qu'Appelle today.

Rear-Admiral Richard Leif presented her skipper, Cmdr. John Rodocanachi with the Anti-Submarine Proficiency Award, won by beating out 19 other destroyer-escorts on both coasts.

The award was based on a 20-month cycle of performance from assessments made on exercises afloat, mortar and torpedo firings and "Mock-ups" in shore training establishments.

Now undergoing refit in the Naden Graving Dock, Qu'Appelle is due to be fully operational again May 5.

Firm to Review Housing Plans In Colwood

A review of plans for Ocean Cement Ltd.'s big housing development in Colwood will be made soon by Genstar Ltd. of Montreal, which last month purchased Ocean Cement.

In an interview from Montreal, Rutledge said that with the purchase barely completed Genstar will "look at these things" as it becomes more involved in Ocean Cement affairs.

W. F. Foster of Vancouver, president of Ocean Cement, confirmed that the plans for the project, which is called Ocean View, are now before the properties department of Genstar.

IN ABEYANCE

He said "this very aggressive" company will hand down a decision on Ocean View after Jan. 13 when all the shares are expected to be in from Ocean Cement shareholders.

He said that meanwhile all Ocean Cement plans are being held in abeyance.

Meanwhile, Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell has called for a public hearing (see Page 32) for Jan. 18 on the proposed relocation of Metchosin Road in regard to the project, which over 20 years would accommodate 20,000 persons in 2,500 units on Ocean Cement's 810-acre gravel pit site.

This announcement has caught the Capital Regional

EMERY
... what's happening?

District Board by surprise, Richard Emery, Colwood representative on the board, said today.

"We don't know what is happening," Emery said.

The regional board last summer approved the Ocean View project in principle and set up an ad hoc committee to study the plans.

However, the road relocation comes under the jurisdiction of the department of highways, and the plans have met opposition within the department.

Emery said that a meeting to discuss the announcement will take place today between his regional executive director Dennis Young and planner Tony Roberts.

Emery, who is on the ad hoc committee, said Ocean View has yet to come up with any technical detail on the project. "There are all kinds of questions to be asked about technical matters."

He was responding to criticism by Mrs. Shirley Wilde, a spokesman for the Albert Head Ratepayers Association who says Emery has failed to inform Colwood residents about the project.

NO MAP

She said it will be difficult for residents to express their views at the government hearing because they have "a lack of information."

She said Emery ignored a request by the association to post a detailed map on the project.

Emery said that at this stage it would be useless to distribute "a nice colored map about what is supposed to happen."

L. J. Glassford, Ocean Cement manager here, said that the hearing is apparently the outcome of a conflict between the department of highways, which is opposed to the road relocation, and the department of mines, which approved the plans in connection with the reclamation project.

Ocean Cement had originally hoped to have government approval by now so it could start soon on the first stage of development.

Teacher Head Accused Of Clouding Pay Issue

B.C. Teachers' Federation president Adam Robertson today was accused of "clouding the issue" by blaming arbitration costs of $250,000 on the 6.5 per cent teacher salary increase limit imposed by Education Minister Donald Brocks.

The charge came from Jack Armstrong, chairman of the Saanich school board, who said $250,000 is the total arbitration bill and will be shared by all school boards and the local teachers' associations.

In Greater Victoria, the four boards offered a single arbitration sitting which would have been economical but teachers refused this, said Armstrong, who admitted, he was not happy with the present teacher salary settlement.

Teacher salary increase announced to date throughout the province range between 7.4 and 7.9 per cent. Saanich school district teachers have been awarded a 7.6 per cent pay increase.

"Once the Vancouver school board settled for an 8.9 per cent raise there was no way other boards could have matched this figure," Armstrong said in his defence of arbitration costs.

The chairman also said that for the majority of B.C. teachers who are on the annual increment system, the salary increase amounts to nearly 11 per cent.

Two 'Asked' to Court

Verbal "appearance notices," part of the new Bail Reform Act, were issued today to two youths who appeared in Victoria provincial court Tuesday.

Prosecutor John Macintyre said the two had been asked to appear because the appearance notice forms are not ready.

Theodore G. Wilson, 18, of 2721 Henderson, pleaded guilty to stealing a record from the F. W. Woolworth store and was remanded to Jan. 14 for pre-sentence report and sentence.

He was asked to appear when he was apprehended Monday afternoon.

Michael L. Morrill, 18, was asked to appear at the same time and pleaded not guilty to common assault.

In a trial on Tuesday afternoon, the assault charge was quashed by Judge William Ooster when the judge pointed out that the charge contained a technical error.

NAVY

MARINE SCIENCES

The navy's replica of the Hudson's Bay Company's sidewheeler "SS. Beaver" is up for grabs.

The provincial government is one of the chief parties interested in getting the ship which "showed the flag" to British Columbians in centennial years.

Deputy provincial secretary Laurie Wallace said today: "Both the government and the navy spent a great deal of money on her in 1966, 1967 and 1971."

"We've asked to be kept abreast of what happens to her."

Officially, chances of the government getting the Beaver look rosy.

Decommissioned Oct. 14, 1971, the Beaver was declared surplus and referred to the Crown Assets Disposal Corporation for disposal on Dec. 8, 1971.

CAD's provincial manager R. S. Bradley was contacted in Vancouver today and asked exactly what the government's chances are.

He said the order of priority when ships and other department of national defence property come up for tender is:

"If any other federal department requires or want it, they get first priority. Then the provinces get first refusal, then municipalities."

Bradley said "Many, many letters and phone calls have been received by us from people wanting the Beaver, some from Victoria. One man offered $10,000."

Although the Beaver's home port was Victoria, to date the city of Victoria has not shown an interest in bidding for the vessel.

Among the municipalities who have expressed an interest are the mainland communities of New Westminster and Fort Langley.

Victoria CADA representative Gerry Spark said today the Beaver will be sold, complete with her paddle wheels and other trappings that transform her from an ammunition tender into a replica of the ship that first put in at Victoria in 1843, to be greeted by an armada of Indian war canoes.

Built at the local Yarrow shipyard in 1957, the 104-foot ship has an 18-foot nine-inch beam and is powered by two auxiliary diesel engines.

Spark says her lifeboats have been removed and some of her interior equipment, such as refrigerators,

Beneath her costume of wood, her original steel-hull is in perfect shape.

Pollution 'Army' Wages Second Battle

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — "General" Mollie Lovinger formed an army complete with colonel, majors, captains and lieutenants and blitzed phosphate detergents out of Dade County. Now the "Pollution Revolution" is on the march for more and better sewage treatment plants.

"We can celebrate, but we aren't finished yet," said the 58-year-old woman whose brigade of retirees was responsible for an ordinance that made the sale of phosphate

detergents illegal as of New Year's Day.

"We're getting into sewage treatment plants now, and we also want to look at the recycling thing," she said. "There's lots to do, and we are the people with the time to do it."

Mrs. Lovinger said the group is determined to force cities in Dade County to build more effective plants and using the same tactics of petitions and public forums will concentrate on getting federal funds to pay for the plants.

Mrs. Lovinger and her husband live at Point East, a development of 1,260 condominium apartments inhabited by about 2,000 retirees. It was after Mrs. Lovinger wrote an article in the development newsletter about the pollution danger to South Florida waters that the retirees decided to move against phosphate detergents.

The "Pollution Revolution" army named Mrs. Lovinger general. After an anti-phosphate ordinance was written, the "Pollution Revolution" army spent two months standing at street corners, super markets and other public places collecting 10,000 signatures supporting it.

Then the army asked for and got a hearing before the commission. The result was the adoption of an ordinance outlawing phosphate detergents Jan. 1, 1972.

Sex education lecture for students in Grades 11 and 12

Course Gives Students Healthy View

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Senior high school students here have a chance to examine things such as containers for birth control pills during studies of family planning.

Mary Burdon, a young teacher who pioneered the family-planning course which went into official operation last April, says allowing students to view the containers helps to illustrate the numerous products on the market.

Although London secondary schools began the program in 1971, Miss Burdon has been teaching it at her school for close to five years.

"I was a rabble rouser, I guess, and I probably would have lost my job," she said in an interview. "But when the London board decided way back about 1964 to investigate the danger of introducing such a course, I was asked to sit on the curriculum committee."

David, Alpaugh, who also teaches the new course to Grade 11 and 12 students, said: "My whole reason is to teach students their responsibility of their sexuality and to relate maturely to one another."

"I don't even like the term sex education because it sensationalized this whole area that really coincides with the entire program which starts in kindergarten."

The course includes sections on marriage, menstruation, medical terminology and general relations between male and female.

The listening about words such as vagina, erection and servitum soon ends when the novelty of using the "forbidden" language wears off.

"It's passed on from generation to generation that sex talk is dirty, and when you start breaking down those traditions, you start to have a healthier outlook on sexuality," said Mr. Alpaugh.

Male and female students attend classes together in the family-planning course and teachers say there have been no complaints from parents. Many of whom were relieved the school system was handling the subject in co-operation with the London Academy of Medicine.

91st Birthday Celebrated

On Thursday Mrs. Frank Gibbs celebrates what she has aptly named "a little Christmas". It's her 91st birthday. She has lived in Victoria almost 70 years. She married and raised a family here. In 1909 when "my tucker started acting up," a move was made to Sandringham Private Hospital where, she says, "I'm surrounded by friendship and everyone takes good care of me."

Frail of body, but with a quick wit and a keen mind, Mrs. Gibbs keeps up her interest in every day happenings as well as treasuring many memories of days that are gone.

Born in 1881 in Toronto, one of 14 children in the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Keates ("only eight of us lived"), Margaret quite early showed a remarkable ability for sewing.

Born With Needle, Thread

"Indeed, my mother used to say I was born with a needle and thread in my hand."

That ability brought her first prize in a school sewing contest at the age of 8.

In her late teens she went to work in the Toronto store of the T. Eaton Company. And it was there, when she was 21, that a former employee of the store; by then settled in Victoria, persuaded her to "head west."

"She was back in Toronto looking for someone to assist in establishing a dressmaking department in the David Spencer store in Victoria," Margaret Gibbs remembers.

"I'd always had a hankering to see the Pacific Coast. So, I said I'd come out and try it for a year."

A quiet look-of-pleasure touched her bright eyes as she added: "When the boat came in to the old Hudson's Bay dock on Wharf Street on May 4, 1902, I took one look at the little town and I knew I'd come home."

Spencer's dressmaking department didn't flourish so it wasn't long before this enterprising young woman was "in business for herself" in a shop in the old Adams block.

There she was soon designing gowns and sewing for some of the elite homes in the city. There, too, she was insisting

elizabeth

that "boned bodices were not necessary when boned corsets were worn."

And, much to the disbelief of her clientele, she was also predicting that the day would come when women would not wear boned corsets. In fact, she told them; they would not wear corsets at all.

It was in those years that Margaret Keates met her future husband, Frank Gibbs, member of a family that went back in Victoria's history to the 1860s. He was on the staff of Brackman-Ker Milling Company.

They were married on May 4, 1910, exactly eight years after the bride set foot in Victoria.

Her Family Came First

From then on husband, family two sons and two daughters and home took precedence. "I closed the store and while I did lots of sewing after that, it was all for them."

Forty years ago, Frank Gibbs died. One son "Went" as a child and the second son died in 1968, a year before I gave up the house and moved into Sandringham.

A daughter, Frances Dawson, lives in Victoria, the other, Sheila Coombs, in Smith Falls, Ontario. There are nine grandchildren and eight "great-grandchildren."

You can see then, that Margaret Gibbs' idea that tomorrow is "a little Christmas," is no idle saying for her.

There will be a party, a birthday cake, and through letters, cards, gifts, or in person, all her family will be there.

LONDON (Reuters) — A leading British researcher on test-tube babies was reported Tuesday as saying he is ready to go ahead with implanting a human embryo in a woman, if he needs is a suitable mother.

Dr. Douglas Bevis, who has carried out research at the Jessop Hospital in Sheffield, northern England, is one of several British doctors working on the problems of test-tube babies.

"We have made a lot of progress but we cannot guarantee that this will be a success the very first time," he is quoted by The Guardian as saying.

B.C. Service Women 'Superior'

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Women are brighter than men, and women in British Columbia are the brightest of all.

This statement wouldn't have much impact if it was attributed to a big-brothering women's lib advocate.

But when it comes from a man like Capt. Felix Carriere, you sit up and listen.

Carriere is the recruiting officer through whose Victoria office provincial recruits — male and female — take their first steps toward the wearing of the green.

Superior Brand

Why is the western brand of women superior to her counterparts across Canada?

"British Columbia and Ontario have the best school systems in the country," Carriere explains. "This shows up clearly in the tests we give."

Carriere asserts that women have proven themselves faster, more painstaking and efficient in the trades open to them in the armed forces.

The academic standard is set higher for women recruits than for men. Men can squeeze in with a Grade 8 education, but all women must have at least Grade 10.

'Makes Sense'

"This makes sense," says Carriere, "because they're required to handle more demanding jobs than the men."

Lt.-Col. Mary Vallance, women adviser for the armed forces, recently predicted that in two years more than 3,000 women will be on the armed forces' rolls.

At present, the female strength stands at about 1,040.

Has the armed forces finally realized that if you combine quality and quantity you end up giving the taxpayer more for his defence dollar? Not really, says Carriere.

The decision to open up the ranks, he adds, is mainly the result of recommendations made by the Royal Commission on the Status of Women.

More trades are being made available to women in the armed forces and, for the first time, women recruits are getting a financial boost through college.

This is done through MOTP, (Medical Officers Training Plan).

Under the plan, future doctors and pharmacists must have completed three years toward their bachelor degree under their own steam.

Free Tuition

For their final year and the following three years of medicine they receive free tuition and an allowance for books.

On top of this they receive a monthly pay cheque that rises from $200 a month to about $650 a month during their year of internship.

The commission had also advocated that women be admitted as officer cadets into military colleges.

Carriere thinks there is little chance of this happening — at least in the near future.

But his reasons for this opinion are not the ones that first come to mind.

'Tough Life'

"Although girls do well in civilian universities, it's a different thing when it comes to military colleges."

"It's a tough life for an officer cadet. Every moment is planned, from 6:30 a.m. until 10 p.m."

"There's not the same freedom for experimentation. They're rigidly controlled to develop in a military sense and not allowed to bite the hand that feeds them (the federal government)."

"It would be too tough a life for a girl."

Carriere says that studies are now under way that will lead to new avenues of work for women officers and non-officers.

But dream as they will, it appears unlikely that this generation of servicewomen will every fly a plane or pound the deck of a naval ship, even as a ship's doctor.

"I don't think this will happen," says Carriere. "Where the requirements are very severe, we'll keep the ladies away as much as possible."

With a Gallic gesture, he cites an example:

"Imagine if you will a lady at the controls of one of our jets that's able to do 1,400 miles an hour. Something goes wrong — and she finds herself face to face with a mountain."

No Ladies

"Such a thing could happen to a dog — or a man — but never a lady."

He agrees that, good though they may be, women's place in the armed forces has still a long way to go.

"It's a small world for women in the service — but it's growing."

British Medics Sought By Desperate Newfies

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CPI) — Newfoundland's department of health is short on medical men and there has been increased activity in 1971 to recruit more doctors, especially in Great Britain, for the island's cottage hospital service.

Health Minister Ed Roberts recently announced that two senior medical officers from the provincial department of health were interviewing and assessing prospective candidates in London, Leeds, Manchester, Newcastle, Edinburgh, Glasgow and Dublin.

Doctors Recruited

Earlier in 1971, the department recruited 34 doctors in Great Britain who took over their duties in July.

Roberts said: "It isn't easy to attract doctors to Newfoundland." But he was optimistic over the results of last year's recruiting campaign. The number of applicants and their qualifications were the highest since the campaign began.

He credited most of the success to the government's indenture arrangement with graduating medical students.

The financial assistance program, started in 1959, offers medical students grants up to $2,500 a year to help them with their education and living expenses.

In return for each two years a student accepts government financial assistance he agrees to practise in government service for one year, and practise an additional year in any area of Newfoundland and Labrador he wishes, not necessarily in government service.

"Last year there were 19 medical graduates joining the island's cottage hospital system to begin their terms of service in return for the financial assistance provided by the government during their years of study," Roberts said.

This was the largest influx of new graduate medical doctors into the government service since the financial assistance program began. In 1970 17 graduating medical doctors entered government service and this year 13 are scheduled to do so.

With fewer recruits this year and the scheduled retirement of seven senior medical officers the recruiting campaign is expected to be intensified.

There are 19 cottage hospitals in Newfoundland with two or more resident doctors. The largest, James Paton Memorial Hospital at Gander, has 12 doctors on staff. About 120 of the province's 466 practising doctors are government-employed and 55, or almost half, have been imported from outside Canada.

Lowest Ratio

Newfoundland has the lowest ratio of doctors to population in Canada. The Newfoundland Medical Association rates it as one doctor to every 1,600 or 1,700 people compared with the Canadian average of one to 800 people.

During the last 10 or 12 years there has been a tremendous increase in health costs. Added to considerable hospital construction and improvements are comprehensive hospital insurance and free diagnostic service with medical care superimposed in 1969.

Many Bad Memories for Bengali Girl, 9

SALT LAKE REFUGEE CAMP (AP) — Her little dress is torn, and her hair needs washing, but Chanchala Roy is an attractive girl.

She is a nine-year-old Bengali schooled in the art of survival. She learned it from a 125-mile forced march, dodging bullets and disease along the way, and eight months in the wretchedness of Salt Lake, India's largest reservation for 10 million refugees from East Pakistan before it became Bangladesh.

Chanchala's parents say they will take her back with the rest of the family when the Indian government begins repatriating the refugees in a few thys. They will be given a little money and a bit of food and sent on their way.

But for Chanchala there are many bad memories back in her village of Baranapal, 60 miles south of Dacca.

"Grandma was killed during the long way here," the little girl said in Bengali.

tearful at the memory. "We walked for many nights, sleeping during the daylight, moving mainly after dark."

"Often I had to run off the road with mommy because soldiers were coming, and once we ran into some Pakistani soldiers who shot at us."

Some of the people were killed, but I don't know how many because we ran into the jungle."

Synagogues Welcome Visitors

DEAR ABBY: Can you tell me why non-Jews are not allowed to visit Jewish synagogues? Don't tell me this is not true because I was personally turned away. — A Gentle.

DEAR GENTLE: According to a rabbi, never is anyone asked upon entering a synagogue whether he is Jewish.

During the High Holy Days (three days a year) all synagogues are crowded with congregation members and there are no extra seats available. In this kind of situation, as in an overcrowded theatre, concert hall, where there is simply no room, understanding and co-operation is expected.

Outside of these rare instances, all branches of Judaism cordially welcome non-Jewish visitors.

DEAR ABBY: My son is 15 and he thinks he is in love.

The person he is in love with is two years younger than I am, and I am 34.

Would you put a stop to this romance, or would you let it go on? My son said if I tried to put a stop to it, I might just as well forget him as a son.

I could press charges against the woman, but she has had her share of problems, and I don't want to put her through any more. She left a very good husband for my son, and although I think she must be crazy to want a 15-year-old kid, she does treat him awfully good.

If you have any advice for

dear

off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

DEAR NERVOUS: Unless you want to press charges against the woman, there is nothing you can do.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Forecast for Thursday, January 6, 1972.

By SIDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Your work gains greater recognition. You also enjoy more personal appeal. People listen and respond. But key must now be service. You have to improve methods, discard outmoded concepts.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You get proverbial second chance. Means you correct previous error. Possibility exists to save and earn. To gain prestige. Leo individual could figure prominently. Make new start.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): What happens now is apt to be swift. A quick call, a personal appearance, special agreement. Get group public relations counsel. Closing report should be reviewed. Refuse to be shortchanged.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Soft-sell approach now brings best results. Don't attempt to force issues. Stress humor, versatility. Be easier rather than anxious. You gain needed time. Element of luck is on your side.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): If you are observant, profit results. Aquarius person could play prominent role. Be willing to listen to opposing views. Avoid tendency toward extravagance. Choose simple direct methods.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): What has been backing progress is removed. Be flexible, ready for change and variety of experiences. Member of opposite sex plays key role. Be analytical. Find reasons why. Reject superficial.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You can bring joy back to household. Depends upon willingness to be naïve, to utilize common sense, of throw aside tantrums. Examine yourself. Then you can also know others. This will lead to peace.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Your evaluation of practical financial situation could leave something to be desired. Realize time now is your ally. This is another way of encouraging you to wait. Friend is misinformed.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Watch diet. Don't give in to temptation which is detrimental to health. You receive numerous compliments. Separate sincere good wishes from cynical observations. You will gain additional understanding.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Finish rather than initiate projects. You have allies working in your behalf behind scenes. Key now is to broaden horizons. Communicate — get message across through advertising, promotion.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Friend could provide money-making information. Be willing to take chance on your abilities. Leo figures prominently. Generally displayed in past now will be repaid. Key is to be productive.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You learn by observing actions of others. Means this is a time to wait, look and listen. Important person volunteers to teach. Accept. Don't permit false pride to stand in way of progress.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you appreciate home, family. Artistic musical inclinations are marked. You are going to get more for your efforts. Once close to you has been urging more initiative. This is good advice. You will be following it and benefiting accordingly.

Afraid to Open Your Mouth?

Bad breath often becomes a real problem for many people with deteriorating dentition... gum trouble, caps, bridgework and especially dentures. Only your dentist can rectify these conditions. But Steri/sol Oral Antiseptic does much to control accompanying bad breath. Steri/sol is specially designed for this purpose. Steri/sol's formulation contains an exclusive, active ingredient called Hexetidine that deprives bacteria of thiamine. Without thiamine, the mouth-germs that cause bad breath cannot live. In fact, Steri/sol with Hexetidine is so effective, it kills 95% of these mouth-germs within 15 minutes. Then it clings to the mouth and gum tissue to control bad breath for up to 10 hours. No wonder many dentists use Steri/sol.

Try Steri/sol with Hexetidine. It costs more than you usually pay for a mouthwash, but then Steri/sol is not your usual mouthwash. Sold only at pharmacies.

Success
Charted

LONDON (AP) — Success shows in school children by the time they reach the age of seven, a British educational survey concluded Tuesday.

The National Child Development Study, following the lives of 17,000 children born in March, 1958, found that middle-class children have a 17-month lead over their working-class school mates.

Those from upper-middle-class homes with two cars, color TV and household labor-saving gadgets are even further ahead, if their parents are happy and limit their offspring to two or three.

Children of parents who left school for jobs as soon as they were legally able to do so are six months behind those whose parents remained in school as long as they could.

Results of the comprehensive survey were disclosed by Sir Alec Clag, chief education officer in Yorkshire.

He said that children from homes without basic amenities such as a bathroom and inside toilet are eight months behind those from better dwellings. A working-class child's chance of being a poor reader is six times greater than one from the middle class and his chance of not being able to read at all is 15 times greater.

Volunteers Needed

The Greater Victoria Unit of the Canadian Cancer Society is looking for about 100 volunteers for its residential canvas campaign in April.

Volunteers will be asked to attend two meetings in February and March in order to become familiarized with the society's work and the campaign program.

This year's campaign will concentrate on one selected Greater Victoria area and will be a one-night blitz.

Identification will be given to all canvassers.

Those wishing to help should phone either 382-3442 or 382-3414, or call in at 857 Caledonia.

CHURCH ACCUSED OF INVESTING IN WEAPONS

NEW YORK (CP-AP) — A research agency of the National Council of Churches accuses 10 major Protestant denominations in the United States of complicity with military contractors through their stockholdings in corporations producing war materiel.

Some of the denominations have been outspoken against the Vietnam war.

"Like other investors, the church has placed itself in a position of complicity with the irresponsible, immoral and socially injurious acts of the corporations represented here," the group said in a report made public Tuesday night.

The study found that the 10 denominations, representing about 25 per cent of U.S. church membership, and the National Council itself have a total of nearly $203 million invested in 29 companies that last year produced more than $10 billion in war materiel.

The report said: "The churches are providing an important amount of economic support for the military-industrial complex and the war in Southeast Asia. . . . They are assisting in the manufacture and use of weapons of mass human and environmental destruction."

The church, "with its tradition and unique role as a moral leader in society, has a special obligation to question that complicity," the report said.

The 50-page report was prepared by the Corporate Information Centre, a research group set up by the council last year to gather data to help churches in their growing effort to apply moral criteria in choosing investments.

Frank P. White, director of the centre, said the report did not imply that the churches were being hypocritical in their investment practices up to now, since the whole question of setting social criteria as a factor is so new.

The report did not recommend that the churches divest themselves of their defence stocks.

White estimated that the three major religions in the U.S., Protestant, Roman Catholic and Jewish, had about $22 billion invested in the stock market.

The study found the biggest of the 10 denominations, the United Methodist Church, has nearly $60 million invested in 23 prime defence contractors, 14 per cent of its total investments.

The other churches listed and their investments in companies producing military hardware include:

United Presbyterian Church, $57 million; American Baptist Convention, $30.5 million; Episcopal (Anglican) Church, $29.9 million; Lutheran Church in America, $7.7 million.

GARDENING
hilda beastallCommon Plant Needs
A Little Attention

Petunia is probably the plant name best known by beginning gardeners. It is almost a symbol of plants in general, for it is used in queries by new gardeners when what they really want is something quite different.

Although of Argentine origin, the petunia will flower well as a summer bedding plant in all parts of Canada, but its ability to do this depends on three to four months of care prior to blooming.

Here in the southern part of British Columbia, oetunias can be relied on to give continuous bloom from mid-May to mid-September if two important requirements are met by the home gardener.

First is the sowing of the seeds indoors (preferably in a greenhouse) before the end of January; the second is to transplant the young plants with first buds formed, to a sunny place outdoors during the early days of May.

To have petunias for sale by early May, even commercial growers must sow early, giving almost three full months of care.

This, added to the high price of good petunia seed (it is listed at around $750 for an ounce of a double strain) accounts for the difference in price per dozen between one type of bedding plant and another of faster development.

The home gardener can raise a few good plants if light and space is available for this long period of early growth. For the later stages of "hardening-off" a coldframe is needed with constant attention to covering with the glass on chilly nights in spring, yet exposure to full light and generally cooler outdoor conditions.

Petunia seed germinates within five to seven days with a soil temperature around 80 deg. F. As they emerge, seedlings should find the air temperature about 60 deg. F.

This is where a slightly heated greenhouse is useful. The dwelling-house air temperatures are too high, and lack of overhead light draws seedlings sideways into weak little plants.

Petunia seed is quite tiny but not impossible to sow well spaced, say at a quarter-inch apart. If approximately at this distance each will have light and air enough to prevent losses.

The soil surface should not be constantly wet, or the common fungous disease called damping-off soon takes over, causing the tiny seedlings to collapse.

A fine dusting of screened sand particles on the surface of the seedling soil mixture helps the new gardener to avoid this trouble.

An even temperature of 50 deg. F. is fine after the seedlings are set into flats of good compost, where at two inches apart they will slowly grow into sturdy plants.

During February and March is a real necessity to these low growing, squatty little plants, so they develop into their typical shapes.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

In today's deal, our West defender came up with a false card that had the effect of putting declarer to a guess. In the post-mortem analysis, it was revealed that declarer should not have spent his time trying to determine whether West was falsecarding, for whether the latter's play was true or false, declarer had it in his power to fulfill his slam contract.

North-South vulnerable. South deals.

4NT Pass 5♥ Pass
6♠ Pass Pass Pass

Opening lead: Two of ♦.

East put up the king on West's opening diamond lead, and South captured the trick with his ace. Declarer then led a trump to dummy's ace — and on this trick West false carded by playing the queen of trumps.

Declarer now tried to decide whether the queen was really a singleton, or whether it was a falsecard, from the doubleton Q-J. He finally came to the conclusion that the queen was what it appeared to be — a singleton. So, at trick three, when he returned a trump off dummy, he finessed his ten-spot.

As is evident, West won this trick with the jack. He then returned a club, and when declarer finessed dummy's queen, East's king took the setting trick.

From declarer's point of view, it was a guess as to whether West's queen was a singleton. Nevertheless, on the trump return off dummy, South should have played his king. On this given day, he would have caught West's jack, and his slam would be "in the bag."

But suppose the queen had been a singleton. In this case, West would have failed to follow suit to the second trump lead, and East would now possess the high jack.

The ace of diamonds would then be cashed, after which dummy would be entered via the heart queen. South would now ruff out dummy's remaining diamond. Two more rounds of hearts would then follow. Hearts and diamonds would now be eliminated from the North-South hands.

A trump would be led next, putting East into the lead with his (presumed) jack — and East would be end-played. If he led a diamond, South would discard his losing club as he ruffed the trick with dummy's last trump. And if East led a club instead, declarer would make two club tricks. Thus, technique would have accomplished what guesswork didn't.

By J. A. H. HUNTER

We have 2229 for the game today, three 2s and a 9. Using all four each time, but no other digits at all, you form expressions for consecutive numbers from one up.

Any arithmetical signs may be used, but no summation (that's not the simple plus) or factorial symbols. Don't forget decimals, powers and roots (no extra digits).

For example,  $22 \div 2 = 11$  is a solution for 11.

The limit without a break in consecutivity seems to be only 60. I shall be glad to check solutions, and will send hints to help in future games if requested.

Muskie Favorite For Democrats

By GRHAM LOVELL

WASHINGTON (Reuter). Senator Edmund Muskie, of Maine seems certain of a run-away victory in New Hampshire's Democratic party primary election next March—the first electoral step in the punishing, expensive and possibly fruitless campaign to unseat President Nixon later this year.

Few political analysts at present expect Nixon to be defeated in November—he will announce his almost-certain election plans in about 10 days' time—but most agree that Muskie will be "the man to beat."

Muskie formally entered the presidential race Tuesday night with a 10-minute television address in which he appealed for a chance to make the United States "a nation of high moral leadership and high purpose."

His declaration was no surprise—he had been following the campaign route for the last year, building up campaign staff and collecting financial and physical support. But the outcome in New Hampshire March 7, would be crucial to his chances when the Democrats nominate their candidate in Miami in July.

McGOVERN TOUGH

He is from a neighboring New England state, and seems assured of an easy triumph over other Democratic party challengers. At present, there are likely to be at least three others, and one of them—fellow Senator George McGovern—promised a tough fight.

The New Hampshire primary is the first of 24 state elections.

McGovern, who tried to assume the mantle of the late Senator Robert Kennedy in 1968 and win the Democratic nomination as a "peace candidate" for the presidency, registered for the New Hampshire primary Tuesday and promised "I am not going to concede this state or any state (to Muskie)."

Others competing for the state's Democratic vote include Indiana Senator Vance Hartke and Los Angeles Mayor Sam Yorty.

GUNS COME OFF COPTERS

SAIGON (AP) The U.S. Army is taking the guns off all its red cross-marked medical evacuation helicopters in Vietnam, painting most of them white and putting out millions of leaflets and posters appealing to the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese not to shoot at them.

The new test program aimed at reducing aircraft losses and casualties was begun Oct. 1. The idea of painting the helicopters white was to make it easier for the Viet Cong to recognize them as medical and not combat helicopters.

The leaflets stress the mercy mission of the medical helicopters, that they are unarmed and that they will pick up both friend and foe.

The messages also urge the Viet Cong not to fire on olive drab helicopters marked with red crosses.

Tax Rates Seesaw Across Country

JOEY TURNS COLUMNIST

Canadian Press

Ontario residents will have a lower provincial income-tax rate when they file 1971 returns and Prince Edward Islanders will pay more. In other provinces the rates will be unchanged from 1970.

For the next tax year, 1972, Nova Scotia so far is the only province that has announced income-tax increases, which means there will be higher payroll deductions.

Other provinces have announced or are planning changes in tax laws for 1972. The reason for the changes is that the method for computing the provincial tax in relation to the federal tax has been changed with the implementation of a new federal tax system.

Finance department officials of seven provinces—all except N.S., Ontario and Quebec—have said they will change the rates to get the same yield that would have been received under the old system.

A Cross-Canada survey by The Canadian Press shows that only Ontario followed the federal government in reducing taxes for 1971, the year for which Canadians soon will be filing tax returns.

CUT FEDERAL TAXES

The federal government reduced taxes by three per cent from July 1, 1971, and also from that date the three-per cent income surtax imposed since 1968 was eliminated. The net effect for 1971 for most taxpayers was to reduce taxes for the full year by about the amount of the surtax for 1970 if a taxpayer had no change in income level.

The Ontario government's first announcement was that it also would cut its income tax by three per cent from mid-year but when details were revealed, the government was more generous. The reduction was about 3.6 per cent and the effect was to reduce the full-year's taxes by about 1.8 per cent.

Prince Edward Island increased its tax rate from July 1, 1971. The increase in rate was about 18 per cent which meant the amount of tax collected for the full year would be about nine per cent higher.

The provinces, except Quebec, have the federal government collect income taxes and the provincial share until this year has been calculated as a percentage of the federal basic tax.

In all provinces there may be some reductions for many taxpayers filing 1971 returns because of changes in the federal tax law.

MAY SEE CHANGE

For the 1972 tax year, Nova Scotia and possibly Ontario taxpayers may notice a change in payroll deductions for provincial taxes.

Nova Scotia, in addition to adjusting to the new system, has raised its rate by about 26 per cent. A finance department spokesman says the government estimates the increase will provide about $14 million in additional revenue. The Ontario government has announced that it will continue the three-per cent income-tax reduction through 1972 to conform with federal intentions. This may mean a slight reduction in payroll deductions in Ontario because of delays in revising tax deduction tables. The tax cut was announced in October and was retroactive to July 1, 1971.

The Quebec government has announced it plans changes in its tax law, including reductions for low-income groups and increases for those in high-income brackets, but details have not been released. A government spokesman has said provincial payroll-deduction schedules will continue unchanged until new legislation is adopted.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Premier Joseph Smallwood says he will write a regular column for The News after retiring from politics Feb. 7.

The 71-year-old premier, who returned to St. John's Tuesday from a Florida vacation, said he would not be a member of the morning daily's staff.

He said the column would not interfere with his plans for extensive travel and other writing. He said recently he planned to write "at least a half-dozen" books.

Mr. Smallwood worked as a reporter with The Telegram from 1918 to 1921. He later worked at the Halifax Herald, the Boston Herald-Traveler and various New York newspapers.

A Liberal leadership convention Feb. 4-5 will elect a successor to Mr. Smallwood. The News was purchased last month by a group headed by William R. Callahan, former mines, agriculture and resources minister in Mr. Smallwood's cabinet. Mr. Callahan was defeated in the Oct. 28 provincial election.

Montreal Police Get Parity

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal police received salary increases Tuesday bringing them to the level of Toronto policemen.

Metropolitan Toronto's 3,500 policemen settled arbitration awards last week which raised a first-class constable's salary to $10,750.

The Montreal settlement gives 3,800 policemen an automatic average increase of almost 10 per cent and a lump sum of $130 in retroactive pay.

A one-year contract agreement last October included a built-in parity clause with their Toronto counterparts.

The Toronto decision means an annual increase of $145 for sergeants, $155 for lieutenants and $170 for captains.

The Montreal agreement signed Oct. 1, 1971, gave an increase of $905 a year for first-class constables, retroactive to Jan. 1, bringing their salaries to $10,820.

Negotiations for the 1972 contract will have to begin within weeks as the new contract was retroactive to Jan. 1.

QPP ALSO GAIN

The Toronto settlement also gives a $69 increase to the Quebec Provincial Police 4,000-man force.

The QPP agreement on new contract terms last Dec. 13, which were based on the average paid police in Montreal, Toronto, the Ontario Provincial Police and RCMP. It gave the QPP a basic salary of $10,471.

The adjustment for QPP officers is the same for all ranks from constables to sergeant because there is no rank differential payment.

New scales will bring a first-class constable's salary in the QPP to $10,540, corporals $11,540 and sergeants $12,640. All increases are retroactive to last April.

Policemen in suburban Town of Mount Royal also will be affected by the Toronto agreement since they agreed to a two-year contract last October giving them parity with Montreal and Toronto retroactive to last April 1 in both cases.

Canadian Nobel Prize Urged to Spur Basic Research

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada should have its own version of the Nobel prize awarded for science done in this country to inspire excellence in basic research, a study for the Science Council of Canada suggests.

At the same time, a council for lost causes might be worthwhile to provide money for research proposals that cannot find support elsewhere.

These are two suggestions by Dr. Peeter Kruus, a Carleton University physicist and chemist whose background study of basic research was made public today.

He recommends that, faced with limited funds for basic research, more money than at present should go to oriented basic research while ensuring that free basic research goes on at least at present levels.

His report makes no recommendation about the relative shares of research funds which should be spent on basic research and on research aimed at applying scientific knowledge.

Free basic research is de-defined as original investigation undertaken without relationship to a practical mission or problem.

In 1967, about $100 million was spent on this kind of research, roughly 0.15 per cent of the gross national product.

Oriented basic research is defined as original investigation undertaken in fields where a lack of knowledge is hampering the accomplishment of some mission. This cost about $96 million in 1967.

Free and oriented basic research together represent about 28 per cent of total spending on research and development, or about 1.3 per cent of the gross national product.

In 1970, free and oriented basic research cost about $255 million. Of this, $189 million was spent in universities, $49.4 in federal government laboratories and $17 millions in industry.

Dr. Kruus suggests the nation would benefit from more oriented basic research spending. But he says little about how much free and how much oriented should be done in government and industry.

In universities, free basic research seemed to have too high a share of the research dollar if research is financed for more than simply cultural reasons.

He says a reasonable five-year plan for federal financing of university research "would consist of holding the level of support of free basic research constant while that of oriented basic research increases . . ."

He adds that this should be done in such a way that the total amount of basic research for each faculty member stays about the same.

There were many important difficulties to be ironed out in the area of research financing. These included clarification of the constitutional roles of the federal and provincial governments.

It also included provision of real prizes for basic research such as Nobel-type prizes and funding research proposals that were radical, exciting and too unorthodox for current awarding committees to back.

Consent At 16?

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian Medical Association has asked Justice Minister John Turner to lead moves for a uniform age of consent across Canada.

In a letter made public Tuesday, Dr. J. D. Wallace, general secretary of the medical body, hints that 16 would be an acceptable age at which a patient could begin agreeing to surgical, medical and dental treatment.

This is the age of consent in Britain in this respect. In Canada, the age of consent ranges from 21 in Newfoundland, Prince Edward Island, New Brunswick, Quebec, Yukon and Northwest Territories to 18 in Alberta, Manitoba and Ontario.

It is 19 in British Columbia, Saskatchewan and Nova Scotia. Quebec and Prince Edward Island have started procedures to lower the age to 19.

The suggestion, not yet adopted as official medical association policy, refers only to consent to the provision of health care. It does not cover laws on legal drinking, voting or other actions such as driving.

Wallace told a news conference that confusing differences in age of consent are creating problems with patients seeking birth control pills, abortions, treatment for venereal disease and help with drug problems.

The difficulties are especially acute in centres near boundaries of provinces with different ages of consent.

In his letter to Turner, Wallace suggests that the whole question be referred to the commissioners on uniformity of legislation, an advisory body to which federal and provincial government can refer such questions.

Douglas Geekie, communications director for the association, said the current requirement is proving a barrier to young people seeking needed treatment because it involves parental knowledge.

Doctors were able to provide treatment only in cases of emergencies without prior parental consent.

Without this protection, the doctor faced legal action for giving needed treatment without parental consent, even in cases of venereal disease.

Tiny Pill Terror Trip

LONDON (AP) — Moods of terror and suicide produced by a tiny pill the size of a pinhead is the new danger facing British teen-agers, police say.

Called a microdot, the deceptively small, purple pill packs super-concentrated doses of the hallucinatory drug LSD.

One youth died after he took a microdot at Christmas and threw himself under a bus.

"I am deeply concerned about the use of this completely new form of LSD," said Willis Vickers, police chief of Harlow, a town on the outskirts of London.

"Normally the drug produces hallucinations. But these microdots create fear, terror and suicidal tendencies."

And the hallucinatory "trip" lasts 24 hours instead of the six to eight hours produced by normal dosage.

"Youngsters tend to take several at a time — with very drastic consequences," one drug expert said.

Volcano Toll 17

SANTIAGO (Reuter) — Seventeen people died in the eruption of Villarica volcano last week, the government announced Tuesday. The volcano, 450 miles south of Santiago, returned to a dormant state again Sunday after two days of eruptions which sent streams of lava towards four villages.

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

Understanding Learning Disabilities

In recent years, scientists have become aware that there are many children, perhaps one in every 20, with what is called a "learning disability." The parents may be told of the condition by the school psychologist or a pediatrician. Or the parents may have noticed a slowness or awkwardness of movement, or a failure to develop a sense of right and left, or up and down.

The child may lack a normal attention span; he may be overactive or underactive; he may become easily frustrated when at times he has trouble keeping up with other children in school, and he may have changeable moods and explosions of temper.

The child with this condition commonly has average or even above-average intelligence, his hearing and sight are likely to be normal, and he may have no obvious physical handicaps. He may live in an average or above-average home, culturally and economically, and for these reasons it is difficult to understand why he should have a peculiar difficulty in learning to read (called dyslexia) and write.

Some of these children have an inadequate or erratic memory for many printed words, or while reading or writing they will reverse some of the words. Also, they tend to be poor at spelling and their ability to read is below the level of reading competence for children of their age. Their penmanship may be slow, poor in form, irregular in slant and general appearance, and it often is not as the writer intends it to come out. Such a child may write from right to left; to him a capital B may look more like a 13, or a 1 and a 3.

In an excellent booklet, Beverly D. Williams, an Illinois teacher who is the mother of a child with a learning disability, says that the most important thing is to know that the child is not deliberately disobeying. Because of his peculiar handicap, he does not always understand what you are saying, or what you are expecting of him. Also, even when he understands your request, he may forget it immediately. Or he may be distracted by something, or he may just not be able to carry out what you told him to do. The parent should get his complete attention before asking him to do something.

The child requires very special understanding and patience from his parents and teachers because he suffers from anger, disappointment and feelings of inadequacy when as often happens his fellow students jeer at him because he cannot handle school requirements or social situations. What he needs more than anything else is some praise when he has done well. Mrs. Williams suggests that the parents try to find something that he does well and keep complimenting him about that. He needs to feel wanted and worthy of love. When a child receives much praise and approval for the correct things he does his problems often decrease in importance.

Will the Real Duane Thomas Please Stand Up

DALLAS (AP) — Duane Thomas yanked his jersey off in the dressing room and looked his questioner square in the eye: "Man, don't ever try to interview me after a game."

This was after Thomas had scored a touchdown on a two-yard run Sunday to help Dallas Cowboys to a 14-3 National Conference title victory over San Francisco 49ers.

This is the way it has been since Thomas rejoined the team after a stormy dispute with management over money that ran well into the regular season.

"We've come to accept him as he is," says coach Tom Landry.

Landry went to great lengths Monday to explain Thomas' attitude to reporters, but admitted "I don't know if I can enlighten you."

HAS ONE AIM

Landry said, "He is a unique person. His sole object is to be prepared to play football. He does it his own way. He doesn't like any distractions. At meetings he says maybe two words. He seldom is not ready to play... he listens... he doesn't ask many questions."

This comes from a man

Thomas called "a plastic man... no man at all" in a July tirade.

Landry said, "Thomas acts as if he is not part of the team but he is part of the team. The team has to understand him and I believe they do. We've never asked him why he doesn't talk to reporters or sign autographs."

"The team wants to understand him," Landry added.

Landry said he talks to Thomas a lot "about everything."

WASN'T GOOD DAY

He said Thomas didn't have a particularly good day against the 49ers because "none of the offence had a good game except for Walt Garrison. Thomas is the type of runner who uses his blocking tremendously."

"The blocking wasn't there and he was trying to find a hole. When he has an opening he really heads for the goal."

"While he's waiting for the blocking, it looks like he isn't doing anything. But he really can run."

Thomas made the boast in July that the Cowboys could never get to the Super Bowl again without him.

In his mysterious way, maybe he was right.

Friday Re-elected School Board Head

LAKE COWICHAN — Brent Friday, an accountant with Western Forest Industries Ltd. at Honeycomb Bay, has been re-elected as Lake Cowichan school chairman for his third term.

Friday became chairman his first year as school trustee.

Jim Paisley, a foreman with B.C. Forest Products Co. Cowichan sawmill division at Youbou, was re-elected vice-chairman.

Instead of trustees volunteering for committees, Friday said he appointed them this year.

Committee chairmen are:

Trustee Paisley, finance; Trustee Bernice Sawkins, education; Trustee Paul Slobodan, building and grounds; and Bob Godfrey, transportation.

Trustee Ray Roch of Youbou will be the board's representative on the Malaspina Regional College Board.

New Look Proposed At Planning

NORTH COWICHAN — Ald. Don Morton recommended Monday that council look into the updating of municipal planning.

He told North Cowichan aldermen the Cowichan Valley Regional district is having planning done, and suggested council wait until this is complete to avoid duplication.

Morton said the regional plan could be a good point from which the next North Cowichan planning report could start.

Morton said he was replying to statements made by retiring alderman Jim Roome who urged council to carry out planning for future zoning.

Morton said that until now the municipality's planning followed closely the report prepared by Tony Parr in 1964.

NO DEVIATION

"In the past eight years we have made no major deviation from these recommendations. We have allowed no small subdivisions without municipal water and no general type of development without planning sewers," he said.

Morton said council has tried to retain the agricultural characteristics of part of the 75 square miles which make up North Cowichan.

He said heavy industry has been concentrated in two main areas and "we have moved along with forestry development. All was taken into account with the re-framing of the zoning bylaw in 1967."

Morton said that Parr strongly recommended a joint water board with Duncan.

"This, of course, we have been asking for ever since. We are hoping it can be brought about this year," he said.

TENDER

UNIVERSITY OF VICTORIA

McPHERSON LIBRARY

ADDITION

Sealed tenders for the construction of the McPHERSON Library Addition (see page 1) will be received by the University up to 2:00 p.m. (Pacific Standard Time) on Friday-February 10, 1972 and will be opened in public immediately thereafter.

Tenders shall be made out on the form provided by the Architect and shall be delivered to the office of the Vice-President (Admin.) in the Sedgewick Building, University of Victoria.

Plans and Specifications and Tender Documents may be obtained from Sidali, Dennis Warner, Suite 612-610, View Street, Victoria, B.C. upon payment of $100.00 in cash or by certified cheque. The sum will be refunded if plans and specifications are returned to the Architect's office within two weeks after the date set for the closing of tenders.

Tenders shall be good for sixty days and shall be accompanied by a $40,000.00 bond in the form set out in the contract documents. A Performance Bond in the amount of 50% of the contract price shall be furnished by the successful tenderer.

The lowest of any tender will not necessarily be accepted.

J. T. Kyle, Vice-President (Admin.) University of Victoria.

Most Expensive Cruise

LONDON (CP) — The world's most expensive ocean cruise — and that's official — starts today from La Havre, France, and Southampton, England.

The 1,150 wealthy passengers aboard the French Line's 66,000-ton flagship France will be able to make a stop-in China, the first ever for a luxury cruise.

When the France ties up in Hong Kong — one of the 27 ports of the 91-day voyage — her passengers will have a chance to join an excursion train into China.

The lowest fare for the cruise is nearly $5,300 and the highest — for four persons in a suite — nudges $75,000.

A French Line spokesman described the cruise as "without doubt the most expensive ever."

Women outnumber men on the passenger list and there are 412 unmarried persons on board. But the average age of the passengers is 67. Two extra doctors have been taken on for the three-month voyage, plus a batch of coffins.

Four hundred passengers will board in New York when the France arrives there Monday, joining 650 from Europe and 100 from Britain.

Driver Sought By Police

City police are looking for a man who drove a young girl to hospital Monday after his car knocked the youngster down at Fort and Cook.

The girl received only bruises in the accident but the driver didn't report to police after taking the youngster to Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Police said charges were "not necessarily" being considered but it was a matter of clearing up the record.

The driver was described as "man with glasses. His car is believed to be a light-blue Buick."

Police want the man to phone the traffic division.

Cabinet Shuffle

TORONTO (CP) — Treasurer Darcy McKeough was appointed minister designate of a new department of financial and intergovernmental affairs and three new provincial secretaries were named in a major Ontario cabinet portfolio shuffle today.

Education Minister Robert Welch becomes provincial secretary for social development. Health Minister A. B. R. Lawrence provincial secretary for resources development, and Attorney-General Allan Lawrence provincial secretary for justice.

These are the so-called policy ministers promised in a reorganization of government structure announced last month by Premier William Davis.

The ministers will retain their present portfolios until the restructuring process is completed, perhaps before the new session opens in the spring.

'Ping Pong' Salvage May Raise Doria

NEW YORK — Since the morning of July 26, 1956, when the Italian Line's Andrea Doria sank after a collision off Nantucket, her name has carried a promise of salvage and a lure of riches.

The Andrea Doria cost $29 million to build, carried $2 million in furnishings and another $2 million in cargo, not to mention the private riches of its passengers locked in numerous staterooms.

The dreams so far have been just that. Traditional salvage methods to recover the ship in 225 feet of water have proved impossible or economically impractical.

"Since traditional methods wouldn't work, more unorthodox ways have been suggested. One was to fill the ship with ping-pong balls to float her to the top."

THEORY This concept failed to take into consideration the fact that the thin-shelled hull would be crushed before they got down 15 feet.

But in November, a 2,400-ton barge was raised from 50 feet below the Gulf of Mexico by what was called a technically improved version of the ping-pong ball theory.

The sunken barge was stuffed with hollow spheres 11 inches in diameter made of polyethylene in the first demonstration of the pressurized sphere injector buoyancy system developed by the Cyclo Manufacturing Company of Denver.

Jim Helbig, executive vice-president of Cyclo and inventor of the system, says the system has no depth limitation. The only qualification might be that at extreme depths helium would be used instead of air. He contends that the system is cheaper than any other at any depth.

EQUAL PRESSURE The first step of the process is to pressurize the sphere aboard the salvage vessel to an internal pressure equal to or slightly greater than the water pressure at the depth of the sunken vessel.

The balls are then delivered through a 12-inch funnel that has been inserted in the ship by divers. When a sufficient number of sphere have been delivered and buoyancy has been achieved, the vessel begins to rise and the spheres automatically expel air.

Helbig believes his system opens a new world of ocean salvage. "Formerly any large ship that would sink in 150 feet of water was a total loss. It won't be now," he says.

RARE ASIAN OTTERS looked unhappy in small pet shop cage, so Uvic math student Stephen Lane, 21, bought them and has them more comfortably housed at home, 269 Plowright Rd. Asian "dwarfs" were trapped in Thailand, but importer here couldn't sell them for asking price of $199 each. Lane bought the pair for $40, and will turn them over to Stanley Park Zoo in Vancouver, where keeper Al Best is interested in them for children's section. Animal-lover Lane also has two-year-old pet goat named Mildred which enjoys tobogganing. He will get chance to view more wildlife next year when he and girl friend travel to Africa to work on Anglican mission among Bantu tribesmen.

New Stone Agers Found

Firemen Thanked

PORT MORESBY, New Guinea (Reuter) — An Australian patrol has made contact with previously-unknown communities of Stone Age tribesmen living in the remote mountains of western Papua.

The total of about 100 people, living in small settlements, are believed to be the last major group in the vast territory never to have seen a white man.

A statement released here by the Australian administration of the territory said the tribesmen were found in September by the acting district commissioner, Robin Barclay, during a patrol in the Nomad sub-district of Western Papua.

The patrol spent 33 days pushing through one of the most inaccessible and isolated areas of Papua-New Guinea, around the headwaters of the Nomad, Damani, Cecilia and Carrington rivers.

In an earlier patrol, Barclay had made contact with a previously-undiscovered group of 18 people.

"We made this group a starting point for contacting further groups of unknown tribes," he said.

His September patrol, carried out despite incessant rain and cold, found five remote Stone Age hamlets. Most contained less than 25 people.

The administration statement said an aerial survey had earlier confirmed that isolated communities existed in the area. Barclay reported that the people living in the tiny village had no well-developed political organizations, did not engage in warfare or sorcery and had little ritual life.

ROAM FOR ROOTS

"They were essentially nomadic people who roamed far and wide collecting edible roots, hunting game and making sagos."

"The communities are breakaways from parent tribes. Some of the breaks are so far back in time that the present inhabitants have no knowledge of their affiliation."

Barclay said the people in three of the hamlets originally came from the southern highlands of Papua-New Guinea.

The other two hamlets had been established in difficult and sometimes impossible terrain by people who wanted to escape from the fighting and killing which characterized the life style of their parent tribe, he explained.

The people encountered were strong and robust, though short, Barclay said. He saw only three elderly people, and he believed the average lifespan of the tribesmen did not extend beyond middle age.

"Little can be done to help these people as long as they continue to live in their present inaccessible position," he said.

A city woman has credited the Victoria fire department with saving her life when she was overcome by smoke in an apartment fire early Saturday.

Kay Rowley, 49, of 1003 Vancouver, phoned the fire department Monday to thank firemen who revived her after she lost consciousness during a mattress fire in her suite.

The fire has been blamed on careless smoking.

Firemen used artificial respiration on the woman and contained the fire to the one apartment in the three-storey building. Damage was estimated at $500.

Miss Rowley was treated at St. Joseph's Hospital and released Sunday.

Loyalty to Lin Hard to Kill

TOKYO (AP) — Reports from mainland China suggest that Mao Tse-tung's ideological lieutenants are having to push reluctant provincial officials to fall in line with a campaign to discredit the man long regarded as Mao's political heir.

Lin Biao, the 64-year-old defence minister, was picked to succeed Mao at the ninth party congress three years ago. He has dropped from sight since June and his eclipse has been accompanied by hints of a fall from grace.

The Chinese government and Communist party press have been waging what Western experts interpret as a campaign by innuendo against Lin. Some analysts suggest Lin even tried a coup, failed and died during flight from China.

Lin clashed with Mao and Premier Chou En-lai, the thinking goes, over Peking's decision to unfreeze its relations with the West and open the way for a visit by President Nixon.

PRESS WORRIES

Whatever Lin's fate or the reason for his disappearance, the Peking press clearly is worried about some deviant strain of Communist Chinese thought and is going all-out to blunt it.

"The emergence of erroneous lines, bad elements and bad deeds in the party is neither strange nor something to be feared," said the Peking Review. "The question is how we correctly understand and deal with it."

The official journal said true Communists could capitalize on the "anti-party elements in the guise of party members" by regarding them as examples of what not to do.

Communists who "do not understand the role of teachers by negative examples are not thoroughgoing dialectical materialists," the article said. Western experts see the recent anti-deviationist cheer-leading as particularly significant since it coincides with suggestions that the leadership is worried about public apathy and military reluctance to purge Lin and his followers, especially in the provinces.

Experts believe the provinces are chary of an all-out purge because local leaders still recall the 1968 Cultural Revolution and the turmoil it caused, including trouble for party officials.

Many provinces are controlled by party functionaries who rose to power under Lin and a number of them continue to support him. This loyalty also is considered a factor in the armed forces, which Lin headed as defence minister.

Ancient Temple Sites Systematically Looted

PHILADELPHIA (WP) — The world's ancient temples and buried civilizations — the only records of the way earlier man lived — are being looted systematically for cash, archaeologists report.

Modern-day grave robbing is getting so fierce, Denise Puleston says that one gang shot and killed a member of an archaeological expedition that interrupted looting at a Mayan site in La Naya, Guatemala, last March.

"We're dealing with a problem that is getting worse," Froelich Rainey, professor of anthropology at the University of Pennsylvania, told a session of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. "There won't be any art objects left anywhere if this keeps on the way it has been going," he said.

The looting of archaeological sites and ancient temples is going on all over the world, the archaeologists agreed. Some of it is done for private collectors and some to supply artifacts for tourists. But many of the world's leading museums have bought stolen ancient art for their collections.

These museums, Frederick Asher of the University of Minnesota said, "are congratulated for their new acquisitions rather than condemned for purchasing hot merchandise."

Clifford Evans, chairman of the department of archeology at the Smithsonian Institution, and David Owen of the University of Pennsylvania, said U.S. foreign services and military men ship tons of priceless antiquities home through diplomatic pouches and the army postal system. Mail circulated through these systems is not generally inspected by customs officials.

"Virtually every foreigner's home in Turkey is a miniature museum — and everything leaves the country when the owners do," Owen said.

Evans said he tried to get the U.S. state department to prevent American diplomats from illegally looting historic sites, but was told that that would interfere with the diplomats' personal rights.

The U.S. Peace Corps was more cooperative, Evans said, when he reported that one volunteer was digging up antiquities for his own collection under the guise of teaching — Ecuadorians pre-Columbian history.

The organized looting of archaeological sites is often an important item in the economy of an underdeveloped nation. In Costa Rica, for example, the looting industry employed more than 4,000 persons and brought a half-million dollars into the nation's economy, Dwight Heath of Brown University said.

In India, Asher said, gangs rob temples that are still being used for worship. Just last year more than 100 sculptures were taken from temples at Khajuraho and a seventh century bronze image "of extraordinary art historical importance," was taken from a temple, Asher said. One museum was robbed at gunpoint.

VICTORIA TIMES

Jewish Groups Head for Clash

NEW YORK TIMES

JERUSALEM — Tensions between ultra-Orthodox and secular Jews in Israel are moving toward a serious political confrontation.

A new chief rabbi of Israel is to be elected this month under new and controversial electoral regulations.

At the same time, a power vacuum seems to have opened in the religious leadership, and ultra-Orthodox factions have unleashed their militants in an apparent bid for power over the religious community.

Doctors, bus drivers, and others who do not observe the strict injunctions of religious law in their daily lives are being subjected to a campaign of harassment, which has spread out in recent weeks from Jerusalem's Mea Shearim quarter, home of the most Orthodox elements of the country.

FEARED

Buses and cars driving near Mea Shearim on Saturday nights, just after the end of the Sabbath, are stoned and feared weekly. Pathologists who carry out autopsies, forbidden in Jewish law, are threatened with death or revenge in anonymous letters, telephone calls and abusive messages scrawled on their front doors. Doctors in the leading hospitals of Israel have gone on strike in protest.

Top police officials admit that they cannot stop the harassment and cannot penetrate the closed society of the Orthodox neighborhoods to identify the activists.

Israeli leaders have spoken out against religious extremists. Defence Minister Moshe Dayan, a champion of secular Jewish rights, calls their behavior "a scandal." Newspaper columnists warn that if the Orthodox militancy is allowed to continue unchecked, then the threat of a divided nation may indeed materialize.

CONFLICT

The conflict of religious and secular interests has been a serious problem in Israel since before statehood.

It has come to a head again now because of political manoeuvrings among rival religious factions, and the general mood of self-serving militancy across much of the society where external pressures of war have faded in 16 months of cease-fire.

The issues are equally sensitive for Israel's relations with foreign Jewish communities in which firm observance of religious law is sometimes seen as more crucial to Jewish identity than it is in Israel.

Government officials say that encouragement and financial support to the militant groups is coming from abroad, mainly Orthodox communities in New York, but also from England and Austria.

CONTRIBUTIONS

One can hear American accents among Yeshiva students demonstrating against desecration of the Sabbath in Mea Shearim. Americans doing a year abroad of rabbinical studies here, and bringing the techniques of college campus activism with them.

Traditionally Orthodox Jews around the world have a well-developed system of financial contributions for the Orthodox inhabitants of Jerusalem, a tie that pre-dates the fundraiser of modern Zionist organizations.

The essence of the current debate has been stated by Rabbi Shlomo Goren, chief rabbi of Tel Aviv and a leading contender for the post of Ashkenazi chief rabbi of Israel in this month's election.

OBSERVE LAW

He believes that the restoration of national sovereignty for the Jewish people in 1948 justified new interpretations of ancient religious law. Goren and his supporters argue that now, for the first time since the destruction of the temple in 70 A.D., there are other ways of being an observant Jew.

The ultra-Orthodox hold that state or no state the law must be observed just as it was through the long centuries of dispersion.

Goren, the long-time chaplain of the armed forces, has the support of leading figures of the Israeli Government to succeed the present chief rabbi, Isser Unterman, now 87 years old.

Oil Tycoon Death Ends Canadian Era

TORONTO (CP) — Robert A. Brown Jr., one of the last of Canada's wheeling-dealing oil tycoons, died in hospital here Tuesday at age 57.

Mr. Brown of Calgary was president of Home Oil Co. Ltd., the last of Canada's big independently-owned oil firms until its takeover in 1971 by Consumers' Gas Co. of Toronto.

Consumers gained control after Mr. Brown tangled with the federal government when he tried to sell control to Ashland Oil Co. of Kentucky. The government blocked the deal.

Mr. Brown followed his father into the oil business and inherited his father's high-risk, high-stakes approach to the business.

BECAME A PARTNER

He began his full-time oil career in 1936 when he became a partner of his father and helped to drill 23 successful wells.

Associates described him as stubborn, hard-driving and a dedicated businessman.

He gained control of Home Oil in 1952 and under his leadership the company searched for oil and gas in Canada, Alaska, Britain and in the North Sea.

TEXT LEAK PROBED

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — The White House instructed U.S. government agencies to take a harder line in public and private with India during last month's India-Pakistan war and questioned whether the United States would be able to supply Pakistan with arms through third countries, the Washington Post says.

Details of top-level White House discussions were disclosed in the newspaper today by syndicated columnist Jack Anderson, who, The Post says, made available the full text of three highly-classified documents describing meetings of the National Security Council's Washington Special Action Group.

One of the documents released by Anderson is printed in full on Page 14.

Investigations are under way by the government into the source of the leak. Their appearance now could compare with the Pentagon Papers scandal, the top secret document which traced and analysed U.S. involvement in the Vietnam war.

No Hydro Bid On Pipeline

British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority is not listed among the five companies bidding for the right to build a natural gas pipeline to Vancouver Island.

Public Utilities Commission chairman Dr. J. F. K. English today named five companies — four in Vancouver and one in Nanaimo — which have been invited to present submissions before the PUC at hearings to be held later this year.

One of this group, Georgia Gulf Transmission Ltd. of Vancouver, is not listed at the provincial companies office as a registered company in B.C.

TWO RESIGN

A second company bidding, Malaspina Gas Pipeline Ltd. of Vancouver, was rocked by the resignation of two of its three directors. Resigning are former Victoria mayor R. B. Wilson and Allan McGavin of Vancouver.

Hydro chairman Dr. Gordon Shrum today refused to say why Hydro did not appear among the companies named by English. The PUC chairman said Hydro did not make a formal application for the right to go before the commission's hearings.

English said Hydro had communicated with the PUC but had not given information "in the same terms of reference" as the other companies. In addition to Georgia Gulf Transmission, English named the following companies seeking the right to build the pipeline: Centennial Natural Gas Pipeline Ltd. of Vancouver, Island Transmission Company Ltd. of Nanaimo, Malaspina, and Pacific Northern Gas Ltd., also of Vancouver.

Thursday at 9:30 a.m. at the Hotel Georgia in Vancouver the PUC will convene a pre-hearing conference to set dates for submission of technical data necessary for the full hearings later on.

One confusing aspect of the situation is that the PUC has invited Hydro to be at the conference Thursday as an "interested party," as English put it.

Shrum confirmed Hydro will attend the conference, but he refused to shed any light on why the crown corporation was not named in the group English announced today.

"I can't give you any more information other than to say we will be at the conference tomorrow," Shrum said.

Disclosure that Georgia Gulf Transmission is not a registered company did not upset English.

"At this point we're not concerned whether they are registered or not, because this will come out at the hearing," he said.

PIPELINE CASE

Further complicating events surrounding the pipeline case is the resignation of Malaspina Pipeline directors Wilson and McGavin.

Their resignation was disclosed Tuesday. Malaspina, put together this year by Premier Bennett's former executive assistant Daniel Ekman, now is left with only Vancouver investment dealer Dick Whittall as a director.

Wilson, a former Victoria mayor, and McGavin, a bakery owner, told the Times today their resignations had nothing to do with public criticism of Malaspina's bid which centred around Ekman's close relationship with the premier.

Wilson said he resigned three weeks ago, as did McGavin, because revised terms of reference for application announced late this fall by Bennett created a "whole new ball game."

Wilson was referring to a decision Bennett made which allowed non-Canadian-owned companies to seek permission to build the pipeline. Last spring Bennett said submissions would have to come from only Canadian-owned companies and specifically excluded Westcoast Transmission Ltd. from bidding.

U.S. CONTROL

Westcoast is an American controlled company, its subsidiary Pacific Northern Gas is one of the firms named by English.

"Originally the government's intention was not to allow Westcoast Transmission to bid on it to keep all the bids from Canadian companies. I gather that now any-

275 Postmen Suspended; 1,000 Given Reprimands

TWO FOR TEA, just you and me, is the word from this chihuahua pup to his friend the mutt, but there's no information on who did the pouring. Owner of the puppy, Mrs. A. S. Bloomfield of Win-

Workers Incited Pre-Yule Strike

Times News Services

OTTAWA — A total of 275 letter-carriers were suspended today by the post office for their part in an illegal walkout last November.

Twenty-five of the men were handed five-day suspensions to take effect immediately and the other 250 got one-day suspensions to be spread over the next three weeks.

About another 1,000 men were sent letters of reprimand.

The men staged the illegal walkout for several weeks in November to protest the post office's hiring of part-time workers during the Christmas season.

Postmaster-General Jean-Pierre Cote told members of Parliament at that time that his department would take action against the illegal walkout and after a "thorough investigation" the suspensions and letters of reprimand were announced.

INTERNAL DECISION

The post office department spokesman said the decision was "an internal one" made by the department. The problem was an administrative one concerning employees who had disobeyed, he said.

The Letter Carriers' Union, to which the men belong said today it had no statement to make concerning the post office's measures. However, most of the executive of the union spent the day in meetings and it was expected they would make a statement later in the day or Thursday.

IN THREE AREAS

The government's punitive action concerned letter carriers in three main areas — Hamilton and St. Catharines, Saint John, N.B., and Halifax. All but 63 men in the Hamilton area were suspended for either five days or one day, the spokesman said.

In the Atlantic region, three men were suspended for five days in Halifax and three for the same time in Saint John.

Mujibur To Be Free Saturday

KARACHI, West Pakistan (Reuter) — Sheikh Mujibur Rahman, the detained East Pakistan leader who has been named president of Bangladesh, now is expected to be given his freedom Saturday.

This is the latest estimate available as leading figures in the sheik's outlawed Awami League already have begun converging on Rawalpindi for his release.

President Zulfikar Ali Bhutto of Pakistan announced Monday that he was giving Mujib his liberty unconditionally, but did not say exactly when.

Mujib, 51, idol of East Pakistan, was held for more than nine months in a West Pakistan prison and recently was transferred to house arrest.

He is supposed to have one more round of talks with Bhutto before he regains his freedom.

Bhutto is at present in Larkana, his hometown in Sindh province where he is celebrating his 44th birthday today.

7 LIVES FOR ONE

TORONTO (CP) — Last summer Wallace Connolly spared the life of his mongrel dog, Jackie, even though a veterinarian suggested that the injured pet be destroyed.

Early Tuesday, Jackie repaid the favor seven times over, barking to wake up Mr. and Mrs. Connolly and their five children as fire destroyed their Scarborough home.

Jackie, a seven-year-old brown and black part terrier, was mauled by a big dog last summer and a veterinarian had little hope he would recover.

But Mr. Connolly took the dog to another vet who put him in an animal hospital until he recovered.

Terror In The Sky

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "All of a sudden the tail went up and it seemed like we were on a roller coaster," a passenger recalled in describing the effect that clear air turbulence had on a National Airlines jumbo jet with 331 persons aboard.

Twenty-five persons were injured, three severely, when the plane encountered the mysterious weather phenomenon Tuesday at an altitude of 31,000 feet over Texas.

"Everything went flying," a passenger said. "People's shoes were torn off their feet. Meals were being served and there was food going everywhere."

Another said: "I felt my head hit the ceiling. Then my whole body was pressed against it. I looked down and could see the floor coming up."

Scientists know little about the air turbulence that slammed the plane's tail. It occurs in generally clear weather between 20,000 and 35,000 feet and can't be detected even by radar.

The Boeing 747 jetliner was three hours out of Miami on a five-hour nonstop flight to Los Angeles.

LASTED ONLY SECONDS

"I think the whole thing lasted about three seconds," said a stewardess, Yvonne Mariett, 20, of Miami.

The unexpected jolt was felt most by those at the rear of the plane. Miss Mariett said she "looked down the aisle and saw people falling out of their seats." The airline said no one with a fastened seat-belt was hurt.

"People were screaming, kids were crying and some were panicking," said one of the passengers, Navy Medical Corpsman Calvin Shirley, 22, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla. He and two doctors aboard helped the injured as the plane continued to Los Angeles.

The injured were taken to three hospitals. A National spokesman said the only apparent damage to the plane was dents and holes in interior walls from luncheon trays and light baggage. Federal Aviation Administration inspectors pronounced the plane structurally sound, and it returned to Miami later in the day.

Nixon Gives Go-Ahead To Build Space Shuttle

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) — President Nixon today authorized the development of a $5.5 billion space shuttle vehicle to carry U.S. manned and unmanned civilian and military payloads between earth and orbiting space laboratories.

Nixon made the decision at a meeting at the western White House with National Aeronautics and Space Administration director James Fletcher and his deputy, George Low.

The manned spacecraft centre in Houston has been designated the lead centre with program management responsibility, over-all engineering and systems integration and performance requirements for the shuttle.

The system is expected to take six years to develop. It should be operational by the end of this decade.

NASA has been pushing for this program

with the end in sight this year of the Apollo moon manned missions.

The shuttle will consist of a booster and an orbiter. It will take off like a rocket, fly in orbit like a space ship and land like an airplane.

Fletcher demonstrated a model of the shuttle to Nixon during a picture-taking session in his office overlooking the Pacific ocean.

Fletcher explained that the space ship will have a pilot, co-pilot and would be capable of carrying two passengers.

The space shuttle will be the first reusable space vehicle, Fletcher explained to Nixon.

Nixon and Fletcher made the shuttle announcement while the president was awaiting the arrival of Japan's prime minister, Eisaku Sato, for meetings Thursday and Friday.

KAISER CHIEFS 'BENEFIT' FROM SHARE SELL-OFF

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Top officers and directors of Kaiser Steel and its parent, Kaiser Industries Inc., secretly bought stock in a Canadian subsidiary that was not available to United States investors, The Wall Street Journal reports.

The transaction, which company officials claimed was legal, was intended as an "executive benefit," the paper says.

The Journal said the Kaiser insiders later sold a large portion of stock in Kaiser Resources Ltd., the Canadian subsidiary, at a profit. Shortly afterwards, the stock began a precipitous decline as the Canadian company disclosed that its huge coal-mine venture had run into formidable problems, the newspaper says.

Kaiser officials said they had no knowledge of the company's problems when they sold the stock, The Journal reports.

The initial purchase, involving 63,000 shares costing some $750,000, was made through a Canadian investment company set up to evade the ban on U.S. sale of the Canadian securities, the paper says.

Girl Survives Peru Jungle Air Crash

navista Tuesday by two woodcutters who found her semi-conscious, floating down the Pachitea River aboard the log and vine raft. From there she was flown to a U.S. missionary centre at Pucallpa, 500 miles northeast of Lima, and reunited with her father.

Her mother is missing in the crash.

Later today the plane's owners said the plane's wreckage had been located in a jungle area following directions given by the girl.

The girl was reported suffering from hunger, exhaustion, cuts and bruises, but she seemed to be in fair shape.

ARE BIRD EXPERTS

Juliane's father, Dr. Hans Koepcke, and her mother had lived in Peru for more than 20 years and were the leading authorities on Peruvian birds. The girl graduated from high school a few days before Christmas, and she and her mother took the plane Christmas Eve to join Dr. Koepcke at Pucallpa.

Amanda de Pina, a nurse at a medical post in Tournavista, said Juliane remembered looking out the window and seeing an engine after, then the airliner lurched and she suddenly found herself flying through the air.

The next thing the girl remembered, the nurse said, was waking up amid the wreckage, still strapped to her seat and covered by the bodies of three or four other passengers.

The terrified girl ran from the scene, stopping only to pick up a Christmas cake which she had been bringing to her father.

The cake lasted three days. After that Juliane ate nothing, the nurse said.

The injured were taken to three hospitals.

A National spokesman said the only apparent damage to the plane was dents and holes in interior walls from luncheon trays and light baggage. Federal Aviation Administration inspectors pronounced the plane structurally sound, and it returned to Miami later in the day.

Lawyer Rejects QC Appointment

Vancouver lawyer Kenneth E. Meredith Tuesday rejected his appointment as a Queen's Counsel, charging the award often is given for political reasons.

Meredith was one of 23 persons receiving the award this year. Among them was Vancouver mayor Tom Campbell whose appointment surprised and displeased some members of the legal profession.

Meredith did not refer to specific cases in his reasons for rejecting the award.

Campbell has a law degree but has never practised. Attorney-General Leslie Peterson said today he was not disappointed to hear of Meredith's decision.

"That's his prerogative," Peterson said. "You know lawyers I think, are probably the most independent-minded people in any profession; and if you had them all agreeing on something I think I'd be a little worried."

Peterson said QCs are given for both public service and legal reasons to men who "have made their mark" in these areas. He said he has no plans to discontinue the practice.

TEXT LEAK PROBED

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — The White House instructed U.S. government agencies to take a harder line in public and private with India during last month's India-Pakistan war and questioned whether the United States would be able to supply Pakistan with arms through third countries, the Washington Post says.

Details of top-level White House discussions were disclosed in the newspaper today by syndicated columnist Jack Anderson, who, The Post says, made available the full text of three highly-classified documents describing meetings of the National Security Council's Washington Special Action Group.

One of the documents released by Anderson is printed in full on Page 14.

Investigations are under way by the government into the source of the leak. Their appearance now could compare with the Pentagon Papers scandal, the top secret document which traced and analysed U.S. involvement in the Vietnam war.

No Hydro Bid On Pipeline

British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority is not listed among the five companies bidding for the right to build a natural gas pipeline to Vancouver Island.

Public Utilities Commission chairman Dr. J. F. K. English today named five companies — four in Vancouver and one in Nanaimo — which have been invited to present submissions before the PUC at hearings to be held later this year.

One of this group, Georgia Gulf Transmission Ltd. of Vancouver, is not listed at the provincial companies office as a registered company in B.C.

TWO RESIGN

A second company bidding, Malaspina Gas Pipeline Ltd. of Vancouver, was rocked by the resignation of two of its three directors. Resigning are former Victoria mayor R. B. Wilson and Allan McGavin of Vancouver.

Hydro chairman Dr. Gordon Shrum today refused to say why Hydro did not appear among the companies named by English. The PUC chairman said Hydro did not make a formal application for the right to go before the commission's hearings.

English said Hydro had communicated with the PUC but had not given information "in the same terms of reference" as the other companies.

In addition to Georgia Gulf Transmission, English named the following companies seeking the right to build the pipeline: Centennial Natural Gas Pipeline Ltd. of Vancouver, Island Transmission Company Ltd. of Nanaimo, Malaspina, and Pacific Northern Gas Ltd., also of Vancouver.

Thursday at 9:30 a.m. at the Hotel Georgia in Vancouver the PUC will convene a pre-hearing conference to set dates for submission of technical data necessary for the full hearings later on.

One confusing aspect of the situation is that the PUC has invited Hydro to be at the conference Thursday as an "interested party," as English put it.

Shrum confirmed Hydro will attend the conference, but he refused to shed any light on why the crown corporation was not named in the group English announced today.

"I can't give you any more information other than to say we will be at the conference tomorrow," Shrum said.

Disclosure that Georgia Gulf Transmission is not a registered company did not upset English.

"At this point we're not concerned whether they are registered or not, because this will come out at the hearing," he said.

PIPELINE CASE

Further complicating events surrounding the pipeline case is the resignation of Malaspina Pipeline directors Wilson and McGavin.

Their resignation was disclosed Tuesday. Malaspina, put together this year by Premier Bennett's former executive assistant Daniel Ekman, now is left with only Vancouver investment dealer Dick Whittall as a director.

Wilson and McGavin, a bakery owner, told the Times today their resignations had nothing to do with public criticism of Malaspina's bid which centred around Ekman's close relationship with the premier.

Wilson said he resigned three weeks ago, as did McGavin, because revised terms of reference for application announced late this fall by Bennett created a "whole new ball game."

Wilson was referring to a decision Bennett made which allowed non-Canadian-owned companies to seek permission to build the pipeline. Last spring Bennett said submissions would have to come from only Canadian-owned companies and specifically excluded Westcoast Transmission Ltd. from bidding.

U.S. CONTROL

Westcoast is an American controlled company. Its subsidiary Pacific Northern Gas is one of the firms named by English.

"Originally the government's intention was not to allow Westcoast Transmission to bid on it to keep all the bids from Canadian companies. I gather that now any

275 Postmen Suspended; 1,000 Given Reprimands

TWO FOR TEA, just you and me, is the word from this chihuahua pup to his friend the mutt, but there's no information on who did the pouring. Owner of the puppy, Mrs. A. S. Bloomfield of Winniipeg, is trying to find a new home for the little guy and had hopes that the picture would cause more action than a storm in a teacup. In the meantime it's two for tea.

Workers Incited Pre-Yule Strike

Times News Services

OTTAWA — The post office suspended 275 letter carriers today for their part in an illegal walk-out last November.

Twenty-five of the men were handed five-day suspensions to take effect immediately and the other 250 got one-day suspensions to be spread over the next three weeks.

About another 1,000 men were sent letters of reprimand.

The men staged the illegal walkout for several weeks in November to protest the post office's hiring of part-time workers during the Christmas season.

Postmaster-General Jean-Pierre Cote told members of Parliament at that time that his department would take action against the illegal walkout and after a "thorough investigation" the suspensions and letters of reprimand were announced.

The post office department spokesman said the decision was "an internal one" made by the department. The problem was an administrative one concerning employees who had disobeyed, he said.

The Letter Carriers Union to which the men belong said today it had no statement to make concerning the post office's measures. However, most of the executive of the union spent the day in meetings and it was expected they would make a statement later in the day or Thursday.

The government's punitive action concerned letter carriers in three main areas — Hamilton and St. Catharines, Saint John, N.B., and Halifax. All but 63 men in the Hamilton area were suspended for either five days or one day, the spokesman said.

In the Atlantic region, three men were suspended for five days in Halifax and three for the same time in Saint John.

These men were considered responsible for "inciting" the men to walkout illegally, the post office spokesman said.

7 LIVES FOR ONE

TORONTO (CP) — Last summer Wallace Connolly spared the life of his mongrel dog, Jackie, even though a veterinarian suggested that the injured pet be destroyed.

Early Tuesday, Jackie repaid the favor seven times over, barking to wake up Mr. and Mrs. Connolly and their five children as fire destroyed their Scarborough home.

Jackie, a seven-year-old brown and black part terrier, was mauled by a big dog last summer and a veterinarian had little hope he would recover.

But Mr. Connolly took the dog to another vet who put him in an animal hospital until he recovered.

Terror In The Sky

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "All of a sudden the tail went up and it seemed like we were on a roller coaster," a passenger recalled in describing the effect that clear air turbulence had on a National Airlines jumbo jet with 331 persons aboard.

"Twenty-five persons were injured, three severely, when the plane encountered the mysterious weather phenomenon Tuesday at an altitude of 31,000 feet over Texas.

"Everything went flying," a passenger said. "People's shoes were torn off their feet. Meals were being served and there was food going everywhere."

Another said: "I felt my head hit the ceiling. Then my whole body was pressed against it. I looked down and could see the floor coming up."

Scientists know little about the air's turbulence that slammed the plane's tail. It occurs in generally clear weather between 20,000 and 35,000 feet and can't be detected even by radar.

The Boeing 747 jetliner was three hours out of Miami on a five-hour nonstop flight to Los Angeles.

"I think the whole thing lasted about three seconds," said a stewardess, Yvonne Mariett, 20, of Miami.

"The unexpected jolt was felt most by those at the rear of the plane. Miss Mariett said she 'locked' down the aisle and saw people falling out of their seats." The airline said no one with a fastened seat-belt was hurt.

"People were screaming, kids were crying and some were panicking," said one of the passengers. Navy Medical Corpsman Calvin Shirley, 27, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla. and two doctors aboard helped the injured as the plane continued to Los Angeles.

The injured were taken to three hospitals.

A National spokesman said the only apparent damage to the plane was dents and holes in interior walls from luncheon trays and light baggage. Federal Aviation Administration inspectors pronounced the plane structurally sound, and it returned to Miami later in the day.

Nixon Gives Go-Ahead To Build Space Shuttle

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) — President Nixon today authorized the development of a $5.5 billion space shuttle vehicle to carry U.S. manned and unmanned civilian and military payloads between earth and orbiting space laboratories.

Nixon made the decision at a meeting at the western White House with National Aeronautics and Space Administration director James Fletcher and his deputy, George Low.

The manned spacecraft centre in Houston has been designated the lead centre with program management responsibility, over-all engineering and systems integration and performance requirements for the shuttle.

The system is expected to take six years to develop. It should be operational by the end of this decade.

NASA has been pushing for this program

with the end in sight this year of the Apollo moon manned missions.

The shuttle will consist of a booster and an orbiter. It will take off like a rocket, fly in orbit like a space ship and land like an airplane.

Fletcher demonstrated a model of the shuttle to Nixon during a picture-taking session in his office overlooking the Pacific ocean.

Fletcher explained that the space ship will have a pilot, co-pilot and would be capable of carrying two passengers.

The space shuttle will be the first re-usable space vehicle, Fletcher explained to Nixon.

Nixon and Fletcher made the shuttle announcement while the president was awaiting the arrival of Japan's prime minister, Eisaku Sato, for meetings Thursday and Friday.

Girl Survives Peru Jungle Air Crash

PERU (AP) — A 17-year-old girl survived an airliner crash in the Peruvian jungle on Christmas Eve, wandered for days in the tropical rain forest, swam across flooded areas and waded through swamps, then built a raft that carried her to a woodcutters' camp.

Juliane Koepcke, the daughter of two noted German-born ornithologists, was brought to the jungle colony of Tour-navista Tuesday by two woodcutters who found her semi-conscious, floating down the Pachitea River aboard the log and vine raft. From there, she was flown to a U.S. missionary centre at Pucallpa, 500 miles northeast of Lima, and reunited with her father.

Women's Lib in Japan —How Papa-San Blew It

You can always trust a good reporter to get right to the heart of a subject—the nitty and the gritty, no less. Not surprisingly, my old friend Jack Wasserman has demonstrated it again in his three-part CBC television documentary on modern Japan. Good for you, Jack!

What Wass has brought back from the not-so-mysterious east is the conclusive, terribly depressing evidence of the decline and fall of the last of the men's worlds, that best of all possible worlds for the male ego and psyche soon to be but a cherished memory.

I suppose we shouldn't be all that surprised. Since Japan began to rise, Datsun-like, from the ashes of the atomic bombs, her capacity for imitating the best (and sometimes the worst) of our occidental society has thrust her into the forefront of the industrial nations. It's been a yeasty ferment, for better than 25 years, that was sure to bring profound changes to a traditional way of life.

What could be more predictable, then, than the inevitability that the relationship between the sexes should be particularly vulnerable? While the emerging tycoons of Japan were looking inscrutably to the western world for designs to emulate, millions of lovely, almond eyes were looking yearningly for a feminist way of life to emulate. The result has been a sexual revolution, an outward transition from the kimono to the mini-skirt, even more dramatic in what's hidden from the eye. In the wildest dreams of the North American women liberationists there could have been no more awesome victory, yet it was won entirely without bloodshed.

Wasserman documents in detail the demise of the geisha, the very symbol of that way of life once so beautifully rigged for the male. Jack had on camera, in fact, a real-life geisha and it was like seeing the last of the Peregrine Falcons. It's a breed so in danger of extinction, indeed, that only last week the National Geisha Association wistfully announced emergency plans for the recruitment of young, refined ladies willing to undergo the rigorous training of a profession dedicated entirely to making life more pleasant for the Japanese male. This initial response, it would appear, is, "No way, Charlie-san."

The geisha has been on the way out since Japan's defeat. In those austerity days immediately after the great humiliation the Japanese businessman, her traditional client, was staying home with mom and the kids. The occupation force of American troops, too, caused many of the ladies to slip into less piquant, better paying roles. Still, a few have kept to the tradition.

Since they've no counterpart in the western world their role has always been misunderstood. It is really quite simple and altogether delightful. They were not the playthings of the Japanese male — hanky panky was absolutely out — but simply an ornament in their dull and driving lives.

I saw them in action one memorable evening in a Hiroshima teahouse when I was the guest of some of that city's leading lights on the 10th anniversary of the dropping of the Bomb. These exquisite, kimono-clad young women performed three functions, each with consummate skill and gaiety. They graciously served our food and drink. They sang and danced beautifully. Finally, perhaps most importantly, they laughed, listened and adroitly manoeuvred the conversation in the most pleasant channels.

I came away with the impression that I'd seen hospitality elevated to an art form and, in fact, as Wasserman pointed out, that's precisely what it is since the true geisha is trained from girlhood to be the hostess with the mostest. It simply never crossed their minds — and there were few if any militant liberationists around to plant the idea — that giving enjoyment to men might somehow be degrading.

The gentlemen of Hiroshima, being traditionalists of the old school, were quite genuine in their belief that this was the way things ought to be and had no awareness whatsoever that they were, so to speak, cooking their own goose. Japanese men generally, in those days before the roof caved in, were myopically convinced that their wives were perfectly content, and always would be, to fill the time-honored role of faithful devotion, a servility so complete that it was not uncommon for a wife to join her husband in suicide.

In that man's world the average woman's life was one of drudgery, child-bearing and obedience. That was the price to be paid for the security of a respectable marriage, more often than not arranged by the parents. There was no social life with her husband as we know it. The teahouse was the place for entertainment. It was strictly a stag affair. The Japanese man was forever impressing foreigners with the practicality of the arrangement. Paradise, he would tell you, was living in an American-style house with Chinese cooking and a Japanese wife. He truly believed, poor sap, that it would be ever thus.

The female revolt that has swept those islands in the last 20 years was obviously ordained to everyone but the Japanese male. Something had to give. It could have been a gradual process if the men had compromised, had employed the tactics of the rear guard action as we occidentals have so cunningly employed them. But the Japanese men were either too busy or too intransigent and the society that was tooled for them was crumbling.

Wasserman tells me the evidence is everywhere. Women's liberation groups abound. Girls are crowding into the universities and the business offices, relentlessly in pursuit of full equality. Women are even entering the political scene. And in the sanctity of the home the housewife is fast discarding her old, blind, confining loyalties, just as she's forever discarded the confining kimono. The geisha, herself, is becoming extinct for the simple reason that the Japanese housewife has put her dainty foot down. Papa-san will take her to the tea-house but dam'd well stay at home.

In retrospect, it seems astonishing that the Japanese man, with his genius for absorbing and improving on the concepts of the western culture, failed to learn his lesson, to wit: You do not stand up to the feminist winds of change, Papa-san, you lean with them.

Strike Vote Set at St. Joseph's

A strike vote will be taken Jan. 19 at St. Joseph's Hospital among 400 members of the Hospital Employees Union, it was learned today.

The hospital is one of a number at which HEU is taking strike votes in its dispute with the B.C. Hospitals Association, representing 73 hospitals, over a new contract.

Union officials said earlier strike votes would be held at selected hospitals, including one in Victoria, but they declined to identify the hospitals.

HEU also represents employees at Royal Jubilee, St. Mary's, Mount St. Mary and Queen Alexandra Solarium, in Greater Victoria.

Negotiations between HEU, with 10,500 members in B.C., and the BCHA collapsed last month after a government-ordered ceiling of 6.5 per cent on wage and fringe benefit increases in 1972.

WHAT DO YOU DO when it's a raw winter's day, the water's so cold it hurts your toes and all those tourists with their sandwich crusts are in Florida? If you're a local cormorant or gull, you rest your self on a boom log at Elk Lake and reminisce about the good old days.

Few Teachers Leave BCTF

Final figures released today show that only five of the 1,400 teachers in Greater Victoria have decided to opt out of the B.C. Teachers' Federation.

Great Victoria Teachers' Association spokesman John Sitwell said today the figures are "a very strong show of force" for the federation.

Through government legislation in 1971, the "closed shop" of the BCTF was opened up, allowing for voluntary membership in the organization. Previously membership was mandatory for all B.C. teachers.

Asked if he thought the government move had made teachers defensive about their organization, Sitwell said:

"It may be that teachers are defensive but this is still a pretty strong show of solidarity."

It made teachers find reasons for joining the organization.

Sitwell said there should be more participation in organization affairs now that teachers have joined the BCTF on their own accord.

He also said the BCTF will have a more meaningful voice in education, especially in dealings with individual school boards, since almost 100 per cent of the province's teachers have decided to join on their own.

The provincial figures for membership in the BCTF were "in the very high 80s," Sitwell said.

Submarine Fighter Honored

A presentation aboard Canada's top destroyer-escort in anti-submarine warfare took place on HMCS Qu'Appelle today.

Rear-Admiral Richard Leir presented her skipper, Cmdr. John Rodocanachi with the Anti-Submarine Proficiency Award, won by beating out 19 other destroyer-escorts on both coasts.

The award was based on a 20-month cycle of performance from assessments made on exercises afloat, mortar and torpedo firings and "Mock-ups" in shore training establishments.

Now undergoing refit in the Naden Graving Dock, Qu'Appelle is due to be fully operational again May 5.

Firm to Review Housing Plans In Colwood

A review of plans for Ocean Cement Ltd.'s big housing development in Colwood will be made soon by Genstar Ltd. of Montreal, which last month purchased Ocean Cement, George Rutledge, vice-president and treasurer of Genstar, said today.

In an interview from Montreal, Rutledge said that with the purchase barely completed Genstar will "look at these things" as it becomes more involved in Ocean Cement affairs.

W. F. Foster of Vancouver, president of Ocean Cement, confirmed that the plans for the project, which is called Ocean View, are now before the properties department of Genstar.

IN ABEYANCE
He said "this very aggressive" company will hand down a decision on Ocean View after Jan. 13 when all the shares are expected to be in from Ocean Cement shareholders.

He said that meanwhile all Ocean Cement plans are being held in abeyance.

Meanwhile, Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell has called for a public hearing (see Page 32) for Jan. 18 on the proposed relocation of Methosin Road in regard to the project, which over 20 years would accommodate 20,000 persons in 2,500 units on Ocean Cement's 810-acre gravel pit site.

This announcement has caught the Capital Regional District Board by surprise,

EMERY

... what's happening?

Richard Emery, Colwood representative on the board, said today.

PLANS OPPOSED

"We don't know what is happening," Emery said.

The regional board last summer approved the Ocean View project in principle and set up an ad hoc committee to study the plans.

However, the road relocation comes under the jurisdiction of the department of highways, and the plans have met opposition within the department.

Emery said that a meeting to discuss the announcement will take place today between he, regional executive director Dennis Young and planner Tony Roberts.

Emery, who is on the ad hoc committee, said Ocean View has yet to come up with any technical detail on the project. "There are all kinds of questions to be asked about technical matters."

He was responding to criticism by Mrs. Shirley Wilde, a spokesman for the Albert Head Ratepayers Association who says Emery has failed to inform Colwood residents about the project.

NO MAP

She said it will be difficult for residents to express their views at the government hearing because they have "a lack of information."

She said Emery ignored a request by the association to post a detailed map of the project.

Emery said that at this stage it would be useless to distribute "a nice colored map about what is supposed to happen."

L. J. Glassford, Ocean Cement manager here, said that the hearing is apparently the outcome of a conflict between the department of highways, which is opposed to the road relocation, and the department of mines, which approved the plans in connection with the reclamation the project requires.

Ocean Cement had originally hoped to have government approval by now so it could start soon on the first stage of development.

Teacher Head Accused Of Clouding Pay Issue

B.C. Teachers' Federation president Adam Robertson today was accused of "clouding the issue" by blaming arbitration costs of $250,000 on the 6.5 per cent teacher salary increase limit imposed by Education Minister Donald Brocks.

The charge came from Jack Armstrong, chairman of the Saanich school board, who said $250,000 is the total arbitration bill and will be shared by all school boards and the local teachers' associations.

In Greater Victoria, the four boards offered a single arbitration sitting which would have been economical but teachers refused this, said Armstrong, who admitted he was not happy with the present teacher salary settlement.

Teacher salary increase announced to date throughout the province range between 7.4 and 7.9 per cent. Saanich school district teachers have been awarded a 7.6 per cent pay increase.

"Once the Vancouver school board settled for an 8.9 per cent raise there was no way other boards could have matched this figure," Armstrong said in his defence of arbitration costs.

The chairman also said that for the majority of B.C. teachers who are on the annual increment system, the salary increase amounts to nearly 11 per cent.

Two 'Asked' to Court

Verbal "appearance notices," part of the new Bail Reform Act, were issued two youths who appeared in Victoria provincial court Tuesday.

Prosecutor John MacIntyre said the two had been asked to appear because the appearance notice forms are not ready.

Theodore G. Wilson, 18, of 2721 Henderson, pleaded guilty to stealing a record out of the F. W. Woolworth store and was remanded to Jan. 14 for pre-sentence report and sentence.

He was asked to appear when he was apprehended Monday afternoon.

Michael L. Morrill, 18, was asked to appear at the same time and pleaded not guilty to common assault.

In a trial on Tuesday afternoon, the assault charge was quashed by Judge William Oster when the judge pointed out that the charge contained a technical error.

The navy's replica of the Hudson's Bay Company's side-wheel steamer, Beaver, is up for grabs.

The provincial government is one of the chief parties interested in getting the ship which "showed the flag" to British Columbians in centennial years.

Deputy provincial secretary Laurie Wallace said today:

"Both the government and the navy spent a great deal of money on her in 1968, 1967 and 1971."

"We've asked to be kept abreast of what happens to her."

Officially, chances of the government getting the Beaver look rosy.

Decommissioned Oct. 14, 1971, the Beaver was declared surplus and referred to the Crown Assets Disposal Corporation for disposal on Dec. 8, 1971.

CAD's provincial manager R. S. Bradley was contacted in Vancouver today and asked exactly what the government's chances are.

He said the order of priority when ships and other department of national defence property come up for tender is:

"If any other federal department requires or want it, they get first priority. Then the provinces get first refusal, then municipalities."

Bradley said: "Many, many letters and phone calls have been received by us from people wanting the Beaver, some from Victoria. One man offered $10,000."

Although the Beaver's home port was Victoria, to date the city of Victoria has not shown an interest in bidding for the historic vessel.

Among the municipalities who have expressed an interest are the mainland communities of New Westminster and Fort Langley.

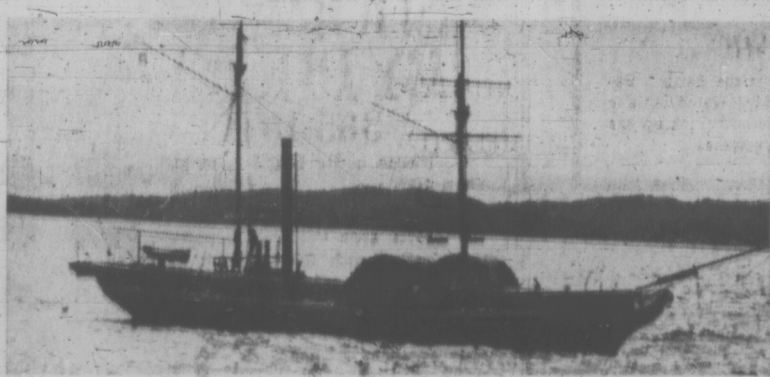

Victoria CADA representative Gerry Spark said today the Beaver will be sold, complete with her paddle wheels and other trappings that transform her from an ammunition tender into a replica of the ship that first put in at Victoria in 1843, to be greeted by an armada of Indian war canoes.

Built at the local Yarrow shipyard in 1957, the 104-foot ship has an 18-foot nine-inch beam and is powered by two auxiliary diesel engines.

Spark says her lifeboats have been removed and some of her interior equipment, such as refrigerators,
